BIG PALATINE ROAD PLANS

Cheer New Signals

The crowd that assembled at "death corner" of Palatine and Buffalo Grove roads cheered when stoplights were activated Friday morning at 10:30.

The corner was the scene of two deaths Sept. 25, as well as numerous non-fatal accidents.

Laura Ann Teschke, daughter of Mrs. Roseann Teschke, a leader of September's homeowner protest at the corner, flipped the switch on the yellow Electro-Matic traffice control. The seven week job of re-engineering traffic lanes and installing the lights was completed.

William Lynch, chief engineer for the Cook County Highway Department, and Joseph Peck, construction engineer for the State of Illinois, were present to put their stamp of approval on the job.

AS WORKMEN began to move the barricades preventing cars from crossing Palatine Road at the intersection, merchants from the Convenient Shopping Center on the southeast corner, hard-hit by loss of customers to the north, helped carry the wooden horses away.

It was damp and cold at the corner, but the merchants who estimate they lost 20 per cent of their customers due to the road closing had warm smiles on their faces.

Homeowners were gleeful.

Mrs. Teschke who lives at 1925 Birchwood Lane, leader of the highly-publicized demonstration to obtain stop lights, said she was "very happy" and expressed thanks to the work crews. The work had been finished a week ahead of schedule.

"People do count," said Mrs. John Freismuth, 1937 Evergreen Terrace.

"IF WE EVER need any more work done here, we want your crew," she called to one of the state emergency crew workmen.

President of the Arlington Vista Homeowner's Assn., Kenneth Rateike, expressed appreciation of the state's efforts to improve the deadly intersection.

The barricades from the Palatine-Buffalo Grove job will now be moved to Palatine and Wheeling roads to temporarily halt traffic from that road onto the Palatine junior expressway.

Lights are scheduled for the intersection of Palatine and Wheeling roads this Spring.

THE ONLY job remaining at the Palatine-Buffalo Grove intersection is to remove the temporary extension of the light on the southwest corner after Commonwealth Edison Co. moves a pole now blocking vision from the west.

Vandals Break

Twelve windows broken by vandals at Mark Twain School in Wheeling last Sunday have been replaced according to School Dist. 21 Business Manager Walter Fuller.

Damage has been estimated at about $1,000 for the breakage of both Plexiglass and regular windows in the building by vandals between 6 and 12 p.m. Sunday.

LIGHTS ON! Stoplights at the "death corner" of Palatine and Buffalo Grove roads were switched on at 10:30 a.m. Friday. Mrs. Roseann Teschke, leader of the homeowner's protest that led to the installation of the lights, helps her daughter Laura Ann switch on the stop lights for the first time. Shari Krinski is the girl caught in the squeeze in front of the switch box.

Include Underpass By Summer, 1970

by MARY DRESSER

Palatine Road "junior expressway" between Wolf Road and Highway 53 will get a face lift in the summer of 1969 and an underpass beneath Arlington Heights and Rand Roads is planned for the following summer.

The Cook County highway Department, after considering both an overpass or underpass as methods of routing traffic on the junior expressway past the two roads, has discarded overpass plans.

Since the Northgate shopping center is at Rand and Palatine and the Monaco shopping area at Arlington Heigh's Road and Palatine, the county has concluded there will be less inconvenience if the expressway underpasses the two big local arteries.

Another argument for the underpass is the present uncertainty about the location of the Rand corridor expressway. County Highway Supt. Richard Golterman says his department doesn't want to build an overpass in an area that could require extensive change.

So far, the Illinois Department of Highways has been unable to pinpoint the spot where the Rand Corridor Expressway will cross Palatine Road.

The state is still waiting for a report from its consulting engineers recommending a route for the future expessway.

Golterman warns that the county will not wait indefinitely for the state to decide the route of the Rand Expressway.

"If it takes them too long, the county will go ahead with the underpass in 1970," Golterman told the Herald.

This summer the county will put stoplights at the intersection of Wheeling Road and Palatine Road in Prospect Heights. Entrance and exit from Palatine to Wheeling Road was blocked Friday when crews moved blockades from the completed project at Palatine and Buffalo Grove Roads to the new site.

The county also intends to spend the summer widening the junior expressway from Wolf road to Highway 53. The present grass median strips separating the expess lanes from the local lanes will be replaced with curbing. This will widen the expess lane allowing cars to pass. Roll over or curb type median strips will be installed.

One of the reasons there has been confusion concerning the Palatine Road junior expressway is the county has jurisdiction over building roads while the state handles maintenance after roads are completed.

Palatine Road, built by the county, maintained by the state, has been a constant source of overlapping jurisdiction.

The state justifies its installation of lights at Palatine and Buffalo Grove as part of its maintenance function. However, the county has the prerogative to add to its original project and widening the road will be a county job.

Clear Driver In Accident

by TOM WELLMAN

Patricia Numerowski, driver of the car in which two persons died in an auto-bus accident at the Palatine-Buffalo Grove "death corner" in September, was cleared of charges against her Friday by the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court.

Wearing a cast on her arm from injuries suffered in the accident, Miss Numerowski, who lives in Wheeling and attends Wheeling High School heard Judge Paul O'Malley dismiss the charge of driving too fast for conditions.

HOWEVER, THE bus driver, Mrs. Hester Leto of Franklin Park, was bound over to the Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of reckless homicide. She met the bond of $5,000 and was released.

The charge of failure to yield at the intersection against Mrs. Leto was dropped, in lieu of her upcoming appearance before the grand jury. No date was set for her appearance.

Mrs. Leto, who was traveling southbound on Buffalo Grove Road and attempting to cross Palatine Road testified that she did not see the car until just before it collided with her bus.

SHE TESTIFIED that she stopped at the intersection, did not see anything to her left, and started to proceed through the intersection. She said she then saw the car, which seemed to make a "sudden rush" before it struck. She estimated the speed at "65 or so."

Mrs. Jane Buchanan, a nurse from Lake Zurich, said she saw the bus stop, the car approach in the westbound express lane and then swerve into the eastbound lane. She estimated the car's speed at "about 50 miles an hour." Then the collision occurred.

She stopped her car and helped the kindergarten and first grade children in the bus. One of the passengers in the car - Deborah Ann Huber of Prospect Heights - was dead on arrival at the hospital. The other passenger - Susan Larson of Prospect Heights - died later at the hospital.

ANOTHER witness, Mrs. Sandra Wolfe of Prospect Heights, was traveling behind the bus before the accident. She did not see the collision but she heard the impact, which spun the bus completely around.

Arlington Heights police officer Francis Bischoffer testified that when he arrived, children were being removed from the

by TOM WELLMAN

Racing at Arlington Park should end at 7:30 p.m. this summer, and in fact the 3½-hour sessions could end even earlier, if the Illinois Racing Board approves the 1969 racing schedule.

With Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods and Village Atty. Jack Siegel hammering away at the five-man racing board and George Schaller of the Washington Park Jockey Club, the racing board agreed Saturday morning to limit racing to 3½ hours per day.

Woods and Siegel demanded that, when the racing board formally acts on the racing request, that specific starting times for the 3½-hour sessions between noon and 7:30 be approved.

Schaller, representing one of the groups seeking a racing schedule at the park, agreed that his Jockey Club would close off racing at 7:30 p.m.

Siegel commented, "That's just dandy," when Schaller made his move. However, Siegel then demanded that the racing board officially notify the Village of Arlington Heights of the time of their final meeting on the racing schedule.

THE BOARD chairman, Harold Anderson, then said that Woods, Siegel, and the press would be informed within two or three days of the board's decision, intimating that this decision might be reached in a closed session.

Siegel snapped back that a closed meeting could bring legal action against the board.

He threatened to seek, "full legal remedy" if the village was not allowed to attend the meeting.

Later, Anderson conceded that it was evident that the board would seek an Illinois Attorney General's opinion on whether the board could hold a closed session.

MRS. MARJE Everett, of Arlington Park, later stressed again that the race track would race only 3½ hours per day. Siegel replied that he had no objection if racing started earlier than 4 p.m., as long as the session ended at 7:30.

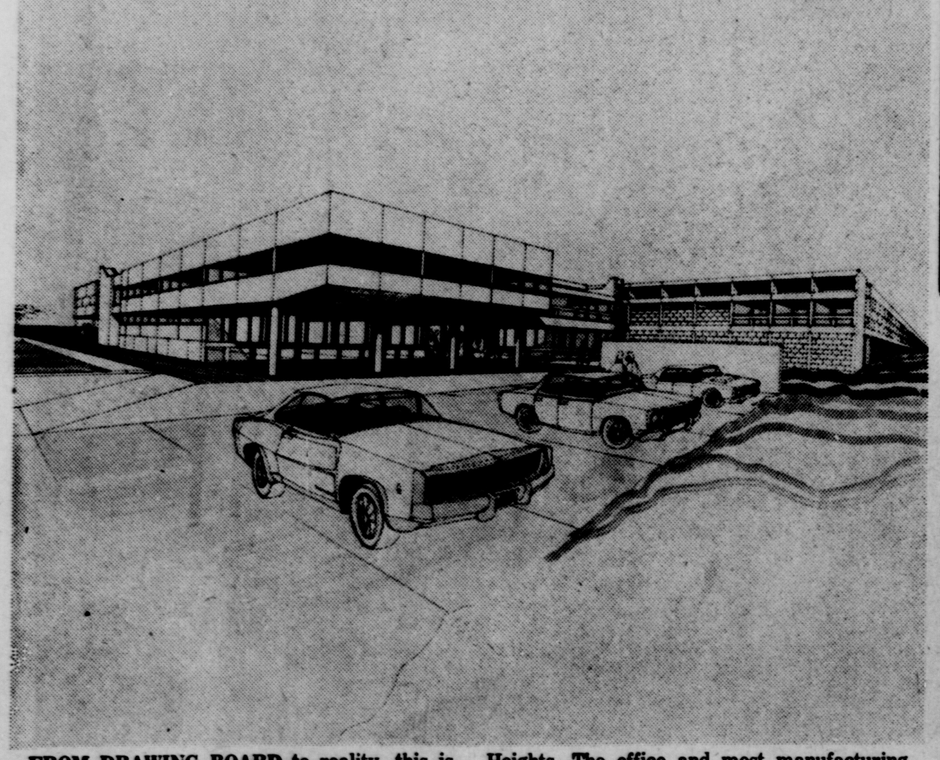
So, if the racing board accepts the schedule and hours, racing will be conducted at the track from May 12 to Sept. 8.

The board will announce its decision on the schedule in a couple days. If its decision comes in a meeting not open to the public, legal action against it could follow.

Futurities

The Village Board will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Municipal Bldg., 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The citizens committee for High School Dist. 214 will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at John Hersey High School, 1900 Thomas.



FROM DRAWING BOARD to reality, this is the new home for Honeywell Commercial division's assembly operation for greater Chicago area, to be built in north Arlington Heights. The office and most manufacturing areas will be fully air-conditioned. The two-story office building will include dining facilities.

Honeywell To Begin Work Immediately

Minneapolis Honeywell hopes to begin construction immediately on its 285,000-square-foot, Arlington Heights factory and to finish work by November, 1969.

Announced in October 1967, the Arlington Heights plant will consolidate the Chicago area operations of the Honeywell's commercial division. The Morton Grove plant will continue operation.

Site for the building is the Arlington Heights Industrial and Research Park on North Arlington Heights Road. Honeywell will use 62 acres near the intersection of Dundee Road and Route 53 to locate the combined office building and assembly plant. The office area will be two stories high, flanked by the single story assembly area.

General contractors for the plant is Miller Davis Co., Melrose Park; architects are Graham, Anderson, Probst and White of Chicago.

Picketing Continues in Dispute

Tangle of Table Grapes

by MARTHA MOSER

No matter how sweet the fruit as it bursts on the tongue, grapes may continue to be a sour issue in the northwest suburbs.

Jewel food stores in the area have become the focal point of a three-year union ferment stemming from the vineyards in California's San Joaquin Valley.

On Nov. 9, a Jewel store at 122 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, became the first area target of a picket against purchase of California table grapes.

This weekend, Jewel stores at 50 W. Golf Rd., 404 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, and 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, were scheduled for Saturday picket lines to boycott grape sales.

A Chicago office of United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO, has enlisted the sympathy and support of Edward Skinner of Wheeling, an area director of Operation Breadbasket, a consumer's pressure organization.

WITH AN OPERATION Breadbasket statement of support behind him, Skinner promised picketing of Jewel food stores until the Jewel Tea Co. has reached an agreement with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

Jewel is the target of boycott action because it broke a previous agreement with the union not to buy California table grapes, Skinner said.

"Jewel is one of the largest food outlets in the Chicago area and we hope that with an agreement with Jewel, other chains will also work out agreements."

THE BOYCOTT ON purchase of table grapes is a three-sided issue that has caught food stores between grape growers, California farm laborers and AFL-CIO efforts to organize a farm workers union.

Shoppers have been caught up in this confusion to the extent they must make labor-management decisions in preparing fruit salad.

Jewel stores now display a sign over produce requesting persons not to buy grapes if they are in sympathy with the efforts of United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

The position of Jewel is that it must offer customers a complete selection of merchandise, according to Bill Newby, Jewel Tea Co. director of community relations.

"It is not our position to deny a product that people want to purchase," Newby said. "The customer has the choice to purchase or not to purchase."

THE UNITED FARM Workers Organizing Committee has requested that Jewel Tea Co. remove California table grapes from its shelves in sympathy with union efforts to financially hurt California grape growers.

Post Office 'Gift' To Speed Mail Service

IT GOES IN HERE. In operation at the Chicago Post Office is an optical character reader (OCR) that reads addresses at the rate of 36,000 letters per hour and shoots them to 277 address bins on its opposite side. As shown here, OCR mail is fed into the machine by hand. The reader consists of four parts: an optical scanner, mail transport mechanism, recognition electronics and address memory. The reader recognizes most type fonts but not handwriting or fancy scrolls and the machine is particular about placement of the address.

Just in time for Christmas, the Chicago Post Office has received its own gift from the U. S. Post Office Department — an electronic mail sorter.

Displayed this week, the optical character reader (OCR) is an experimental step in speeding mail service by reading addresses by electronic eye.

Zipping along at a rate of 36,000 pieces of mail per hour, the OCR reads the city, state and zip code and sends the letter to one of 277 appropriate bins for collection.

ONE OF FIVE OCRs placed in post offices across the country, the machine replaces 12 people sorting mail by keyboard.

Postmaster Henry McGee said in a press conference his Christmas present is "one if the finest pieces of mechanized equipment the post office has introduced and will have an impact on mail service for years to come."

The OCR may not handle suburbanites' Christmas cards, but it is expected to enable the post office to keep pace with a mounting volume of mail.

Until a machine is perfected to read handwriting, the OCR is seen chiefly as a boon to speeding business mail on its way. It comprises about 75 to 80 per cent of postal workers' occupation.

THE CHICAGO Post Office has gone into customer relations to help businesses set up addressing procedures for OCR sorting. Out of nearly four million pieces of business mail now sorted per day, the reader will be expected to handle 500,000 pieces, operating 18 to 20 hours a day.

"Any firm that will let us tag a large volume of mail will get special attention," McGee said. "Because the device has an enormous appetite, the mail will bypass every operation and go right to the machine."

McGee cited advantages of the machine as giving better mail service at a lower cost.

"WE EXPECT IT TO be an integral part of a totally mechanized post office. Tomorrow's postal system will meet tomorrow's needs."

The reader was developed by the communications and electronic division of Philco-Ford Corp., Philadelphia, Pa., at the request of the U. S. Post Office Department. Not a production piece of equipment, the cost of the machine was listed at $200,000 for the scanner and $115,000 for the letter sorter.

OCRs were initially tested in Detroit, Mich., in November, 1965. A new series of machines was then installed in Detroit in 1967.

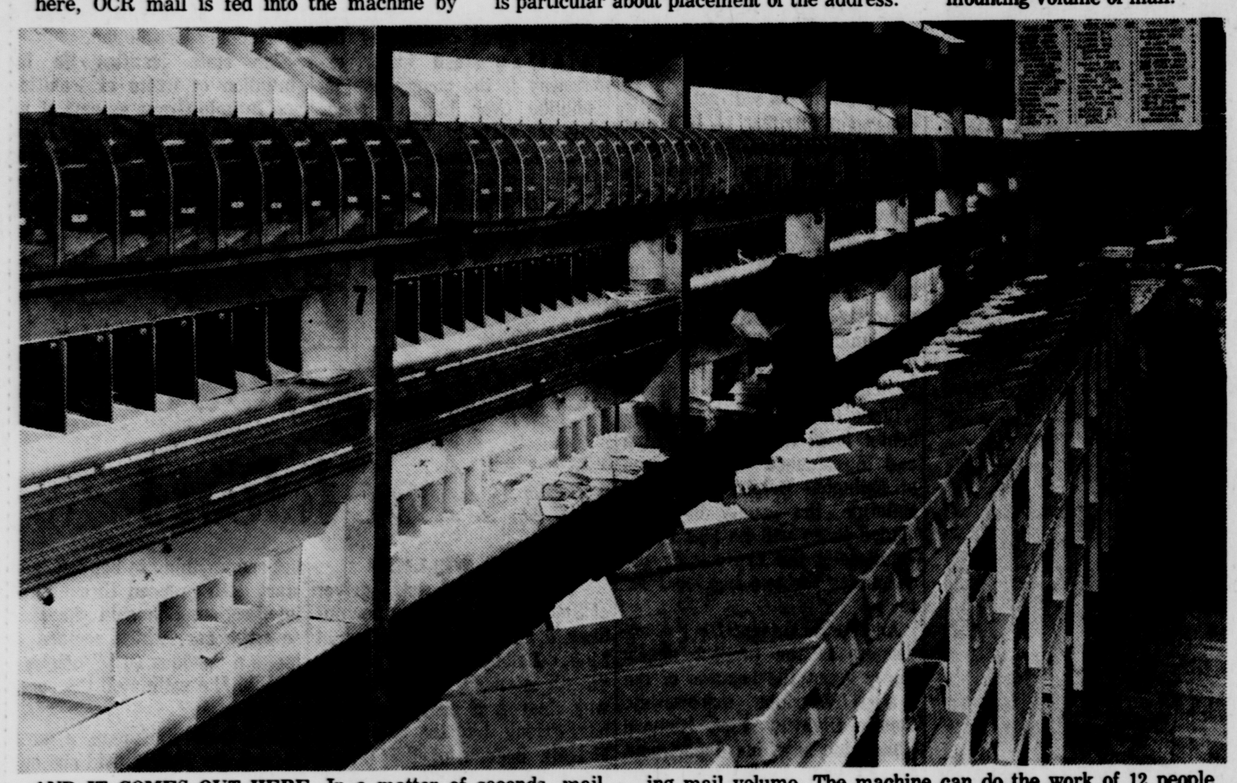
"WE WERE GRATIFIED but realized improvements needed to be made," said John Mampe, representing the U. S. Post Office Bureau of Research and Engineering.

Chicago's scanner represents the latest machine, following Boston, Houston and Los Angeles in receiving equipment. By the end of the year, scanners are to be in San Francisco, Philadelphia and New York City.

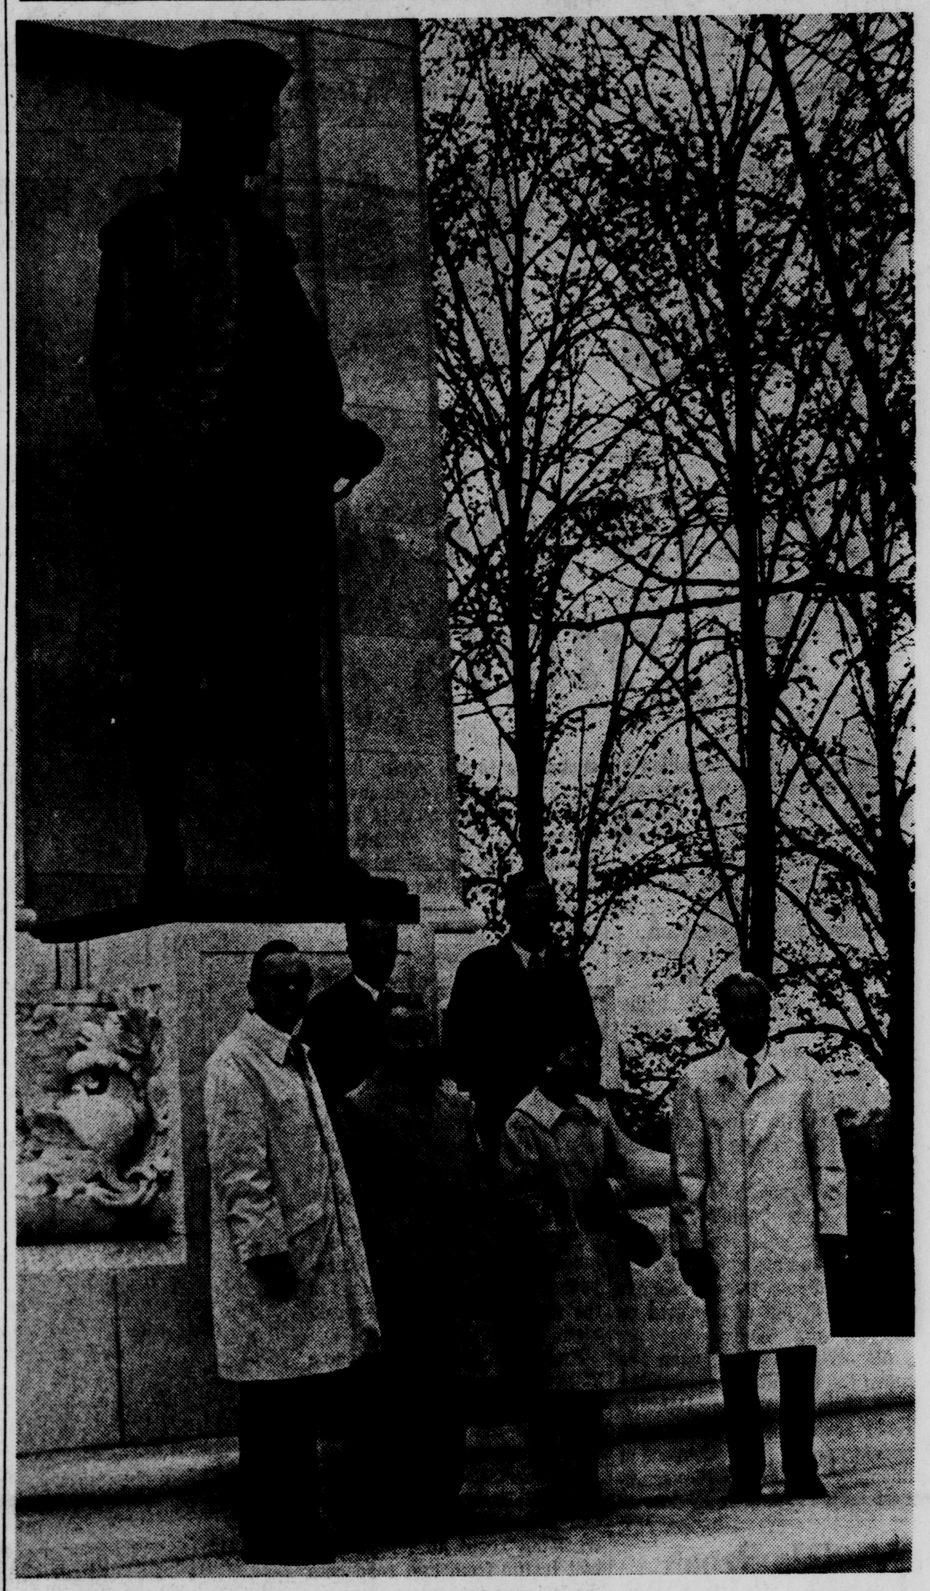
Henry E. Hockeimer, Philco-Ford vice president, said at the press conference mail volume is expected to reach 140 billion pieces a day by 1985, compared to today's 80 billion pieces.

"WE CAN'T continue to sort mail in our major post offices with only the human eye," Hockeimer said.

Current modern sorting methods consist of keyboard coding of addresses as mail passes by conveyor belt before the eye. McGee compared the new machine to a sorting clerk with arms 15 feet long.



AND IT COMES OUT HERE. In a matter of seconds, mail sorted by an optical character reader (OCR) is ready to be picked up for delivery across the country. The Chicago Post Office, a major distribution center, is the fifth post office in the United States to be given an OCR to help handle increasing mail volume. The machine can do the work of 12 people sorting by keyboard coding. Developed by Philco-Ford Corp., OCR still is considered in its experimental stages. But company officials predict economical machines will read handwriting by 1970.



A JOURNEY TO Washington, D.C., was the latest step taken by Rev. Paul Lindstrom, (left) pastor of the Independent and Conservative Church of Christian Liberty of Prospect Heights and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee. Rev. Lindstrom again protested to the State Department and government officials about the continued incarceration of the crew of the USS Pueblo. With Rev. Lindstrom on his latest trip were Michael Sherman of Park Ridge, next to the pastor, and the four members of the family of James Layton, Pueblo crewmember. Panel To Tell Ways To Teach Kids To Read

A panel discussion on different approaches to teaching reading is scheduled at the Central Road PTA meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m.

THE PROGRAM offers parents an opportunity to learn about their children's reading habits and how they are taught at each grade level.

Refreshments will follow the discussion. Parents are reminded that November is membership month and are asked to join the PTA.

Student Book Fair Set for Next Week

The Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows will sponsor a student book fair from Nov. 19 to 23.

Students will be able to browse and purchase books at the fair, which will be open daily from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. Books will be on display in the gymnasium.

THE BOOK fair will not only attempt to spur student interest in reading and building home libraries, but will also contribute to a worthwhile project. The school earns 20 per cent of all sales and profits will be used for the school library materials and books.

All students, parents and visitors are invited to attend. The book fair will include classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books.

The Cardinal Drive PTA is sponsoring the fair, with Mrs. Keith Smith serving as chairman. Her committee is working with Educational Reading Service, a professional book fair company, to furnish an individual selection of books for the fair.

In 1963 he received the Bowl of Hygenia Award, presented annually to the pharmacist who has most distinguished himself in civic and professional activities.

Bates On Dean's List

Jeffrey C. Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bates, 1317 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, has been named to the dean's list at Colgate University for the spring semester.

A sophomore at Colgate, Hamilton, N.Y., Bates is concentrating in political science. He is an Alumni War Memorial Scholar and a Cobb Fellow, and is a member of the University Church board. He works as an assistant to the athletic trainer, and is chairman of the Martin Luther King Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Bates is a 1967 graduate of Prospect High School.

Miss Palmatier Angel Pledge

Nancy Palmatier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Palmatier of 408 S. Patton, Arlington Heights, has become a pledge of the Jake Schaefer Angel Flight at the University of Illinois, Champaign.

Angel Flight is a national honorary organization of college women who have dedicated themselves to being of service to the Air Force, the university, community and the country. It is an auxiliary group in conjunction with Air Force ROTC.

Nancy is a junior majoring in French education and is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

T. Avildsen Wins Award

Thomas K. Avildsen, Palatine, a freshman at Whitewater State University, was awarded second place in a recent photography contest sponsored by the University Center activities board. A fountain was the subject of his picture.

Avildsen is the son of Robert Avildsen, 284 W. Old Plum Grove Road. He plans to major in marketing and to minor in journalism.

Barbara Hertz State Secretary

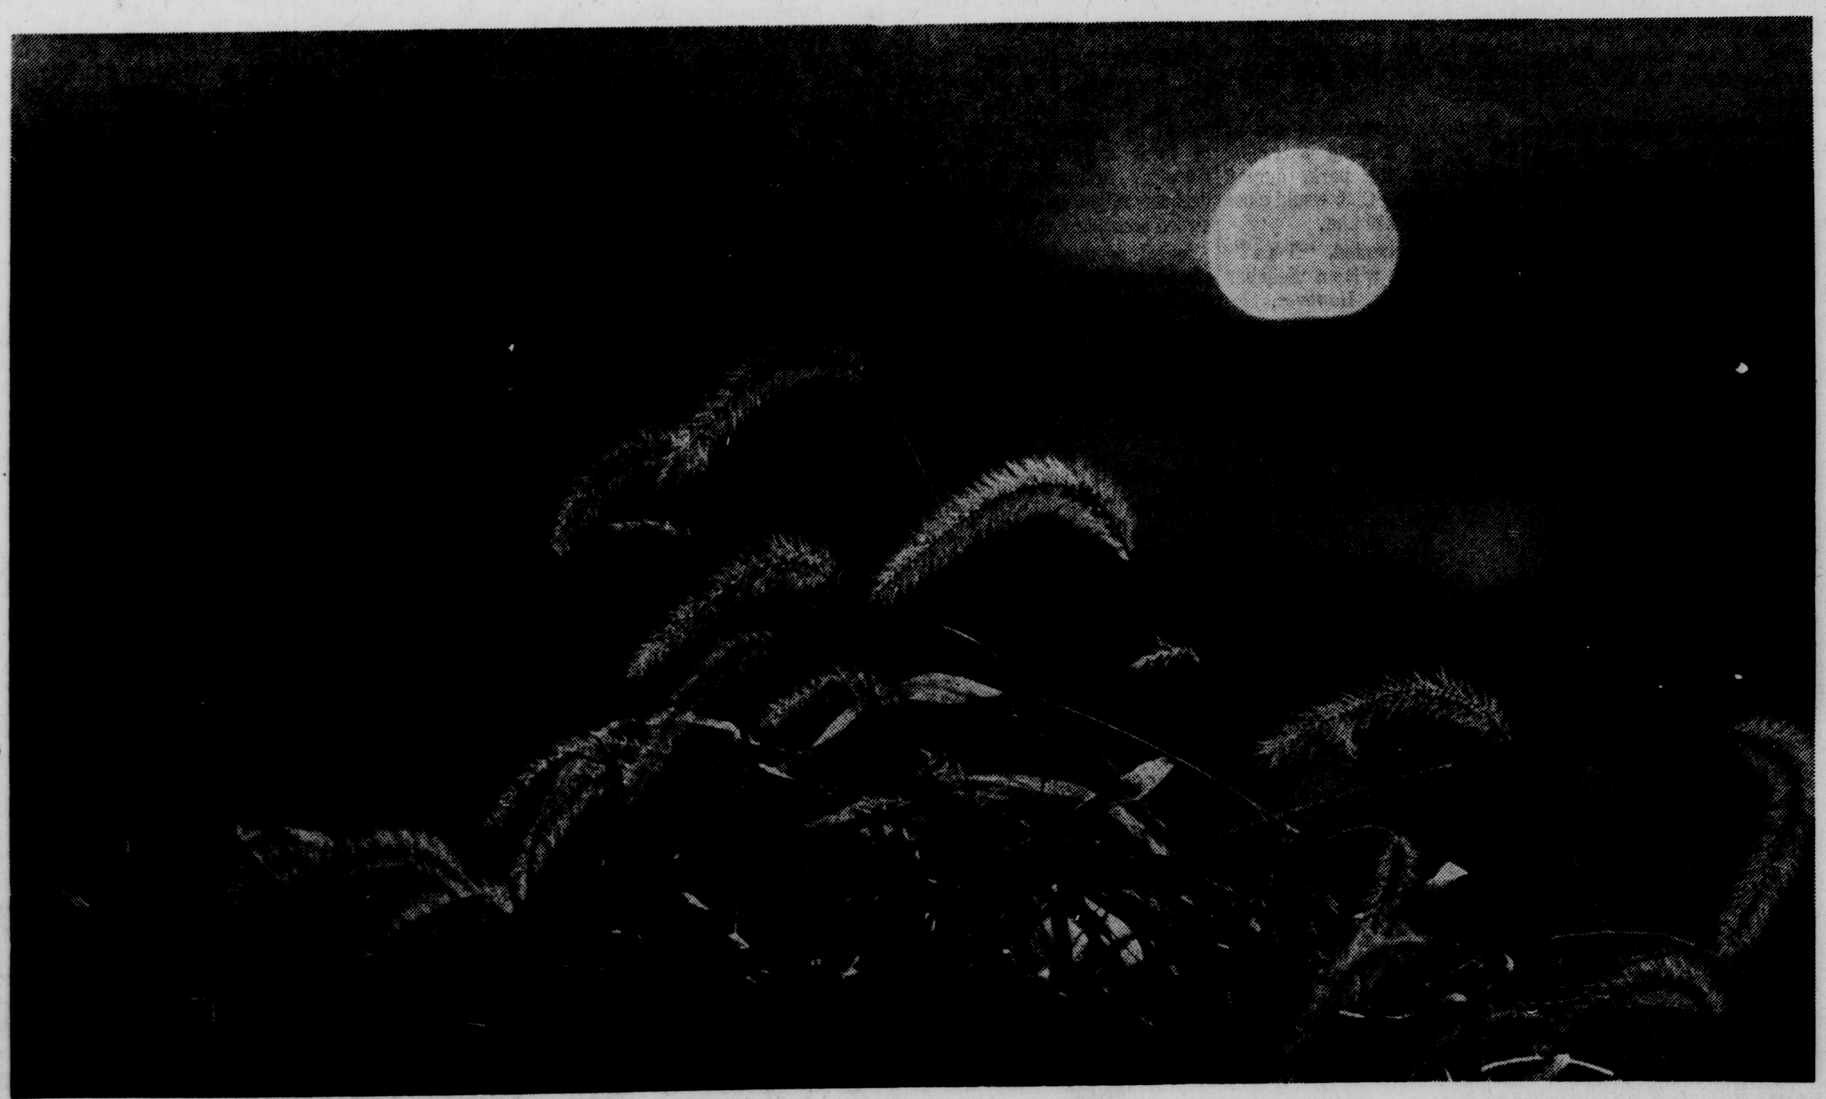
A Palatine co-ed, Barbara Hertz, was recently elected secretary of the student council for exceptional children at the annual meeting of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children in St. Louis.

Miss Hertz, a junior majoring in special education at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill., is the daughter of Mrs. G. Hertz of 39 S. Leonard, Palatine.

Wesleyan Musician

Robert J. Estlund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Estlund of 268 N. Schiller, Palatine, is a member of the 1968-69 Illinois Wesleyan University Orchestra.

Estlund, a 1964 graduate of Palatine Township High School, is a senior music major. He plays the flute in the orchestra.



THE HOURS dwindle down to a precious few, each day growing shorter now with the inevitable advance of winter. These are days without a season, the splendor and bounty of autumn retired, the mantle of snow and ice not yet arrived. All that was green has dried, the cycle ended, a chill and distant sun unable to sustain the bloom.

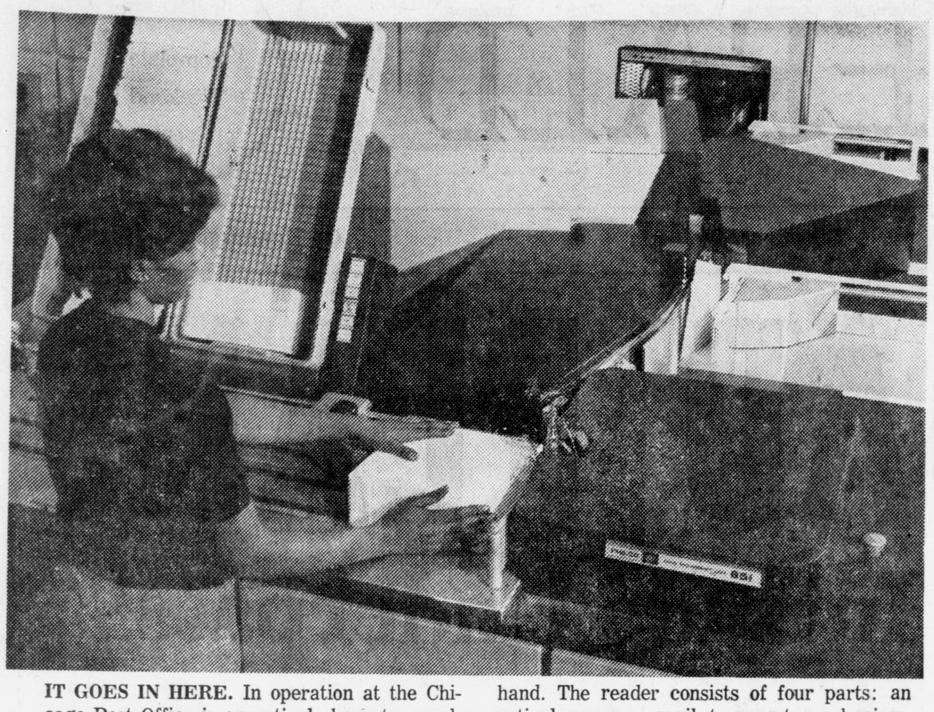
Post Office 'Gift' To Speed Mail Service



IT GOES IN HERE. In operation at the Chicago Post Office is an optical character reader (OCR) that reads addresses at the rate of 36,000 letters per hour and shoots them to 277 address bins on its opposite side. As shown here, OCR mail is fed into the machine by hand. The reader consists of four parts: an optical scanner, mail transport mechanism, recognition electronics and address memory. The reader recognizes most type fonts but not handwriting or fancy scrolls and the machine is particular about placement of the address.

Just in time for Christmas, the Chicago Post Office has received its own gift from the U. S. Post Office Department — an electronic mail sorter.

Displayed this week, the optical character reader (OCR) is an experimental step in speeding mail service by reading addresses by electronic eye.

Zipping along at a rate of 36,000 pieces of mail per hour, the OCR reads the city, state and zip code and sends the letter to one of 277 appropriate bins for collection.

ONE OF FIVE OCRs placed in post offices across the country, the machine replaces 12 people sorting mail by keyboard.

Postmaster Henry McGee said in a press conference his Christmas present is "one if the finest pieces of mechanized equipment the post office has introduced and will have an impact on mail service for years to come."

The OCR may not handle suburbanites' Christmas cards, but it is expected to enable the post office to keep pace with a mounting volume of mail.

Until a machine is perfected to read handwriting, the OCR is seen chiefly as a boon to speeding business mail on its way. It comprises about 75 to 80 per cent of postal workers' occupation.

THE CHICAGO Post Office has gone into customer relations to help businesses set up addressing procedures for OCR sorting. Out of nearly four million pieces of business mail now sorted per day, the reader will be expected to handle 500,000 pieces, operating 18 to 20 hours a day.

"Any firm that will let us tag a large volume of mail will get special attention," McGee said. "Because the device has an enormous appetite, the mail will bypass every operation and go right to the machine."

McGee cited advantages of the machine as giving better mail service at a lower cost.

"WE EXPECT IT TO be an integral part of a totally mechanized post office. Tomorrow's postal system will meet tomorrow's needs."

The reader was developed by the communications and electronic division of Philco-Ford Corp., Philadelphia, Pa., at the request of the U. S. Post Office Department. Not a production piece of equipment, the cost of the machine was listed at $200,000 for the scanner and $115,000 for the letter sorter.

OCRs were initially tested in Detroit, Mich., in November, 1965. A new series of machines was then installed in Detroit in 1967.

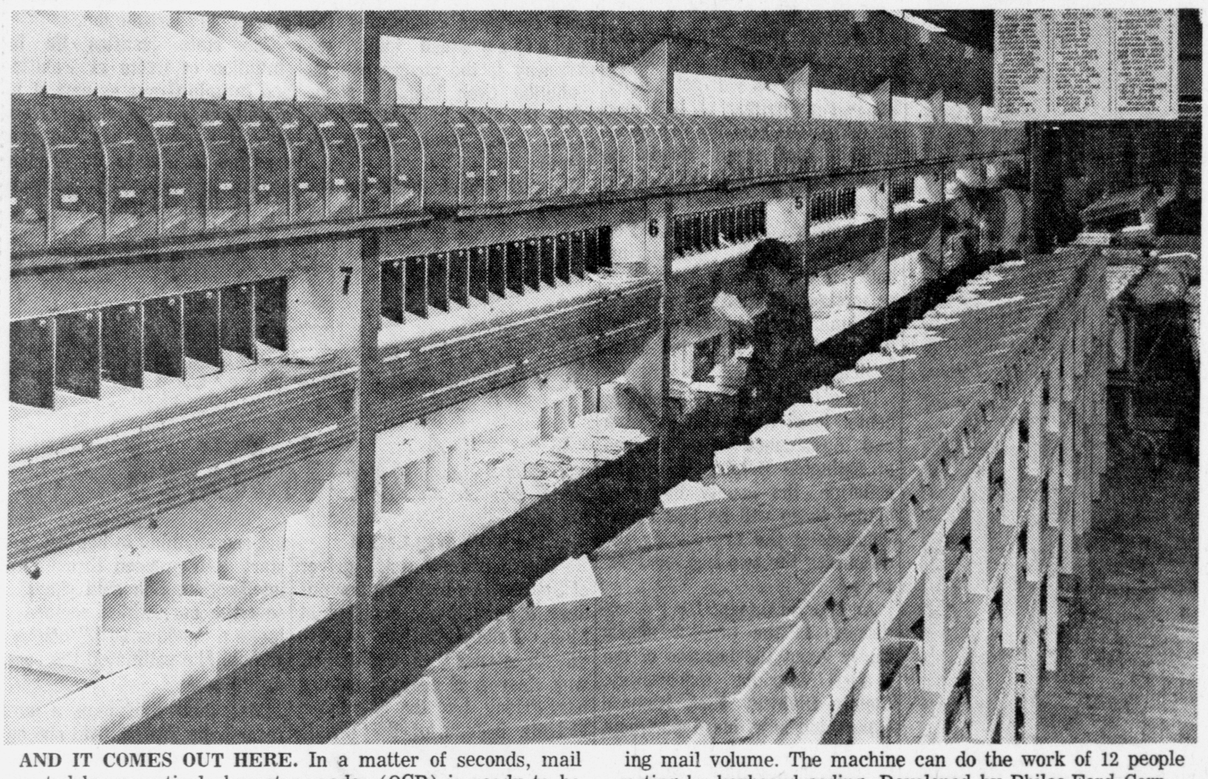
"WE WERE GRATIFIED but realized improvements needed to be made," said John Mampe, representing the U. S. Post Office Bureau of Research and Engineering.

Chicago's scanner represents the latest machine, following Boston, Houston and Los Angeles in receiving equipment. By the end of the year, scanners are to be in San Francisco, Philadelphia and New York City.

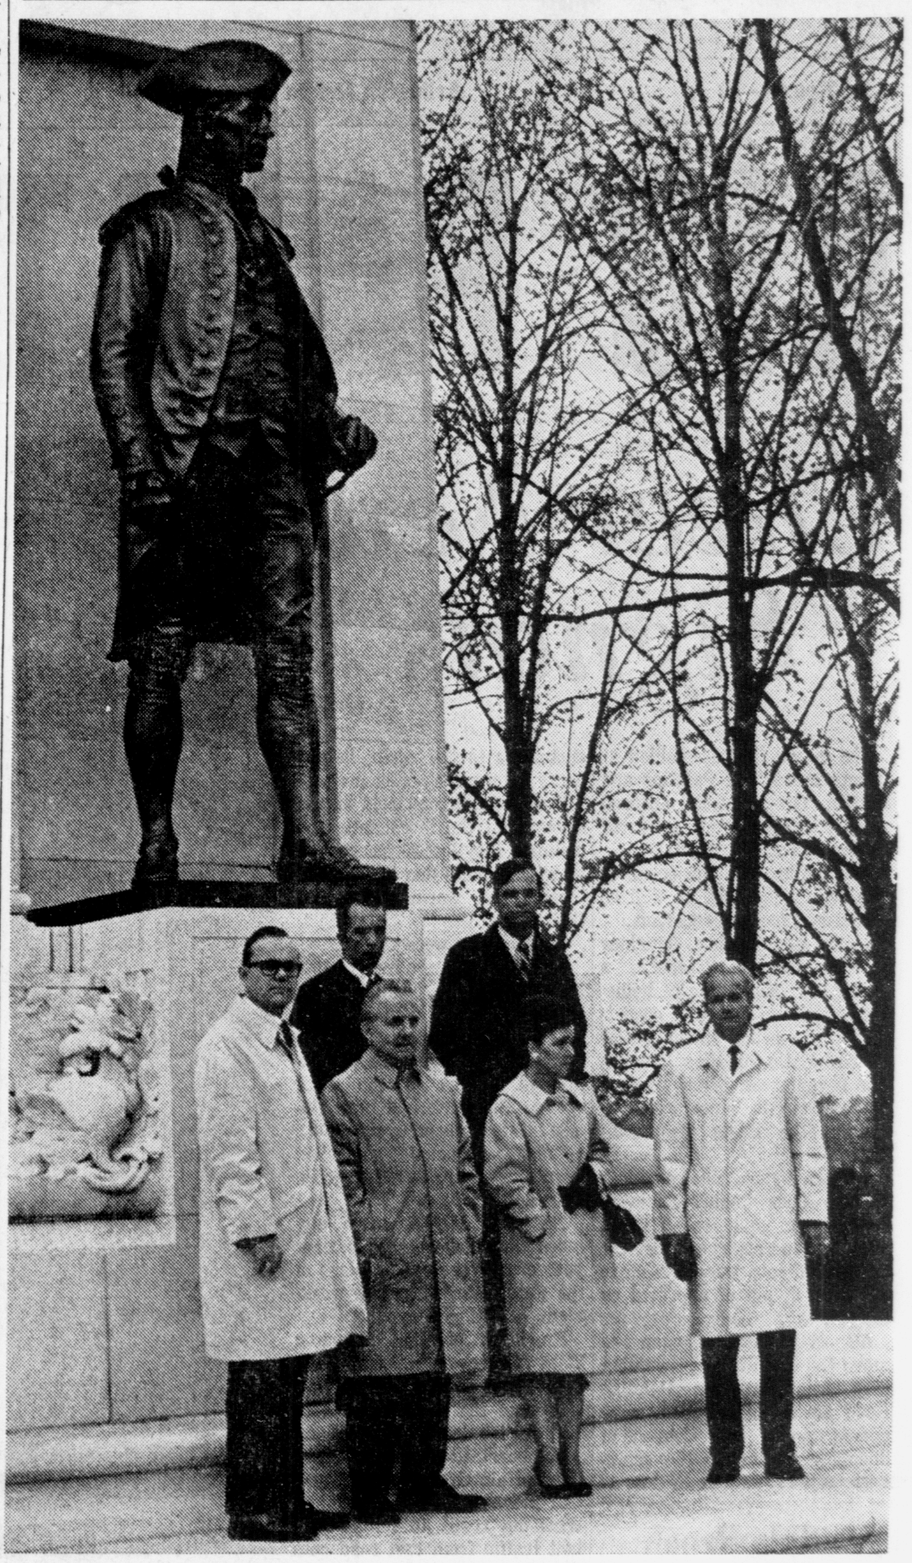
Henry E. Hockeimer, Philco-Ford vice president, said at the press conference mail volume is expected to reach 140 billion pieces a day by 1985, compared to today's 80 billion pieces.

"WE CAN'T continue to sort mail in our major post offices with only the human eye," Hockeimer said.

Current modern sorting methods consist of keyboard coding of addresses as mail passes by conveyor belt before the eye. McGee compared the new machine to a sorting clerk with arms 15 feet long.



AND IT COMES OUT HERE. In a matter of seconds, mail sorted by an optical character reader (OCR) is ready to be picked up for delivery across the country. The Chicago Post Office, a major distribution center, is the fifth post office in the United States to be given an OCR to help handle increasing mail volume. The machine can do the work of 12 people sorting by keyboard coding. Developed by Philco-Ford Corp., OCR still is considered in its experimental stages. But company officials predict economical machines will read handwriting by 1970.



A JOURNEY TO Washington, D.C., was the latest step taken by Rev. Paul Lindstrom, (left) pastor of the Independent and Conservative Church of Christian Liberty of Prospect Heights and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee. Rev. Lindstrom again protested to the State Department and government officials about the continued incarceration of the crew of the USS Pueblo. With Rev. Lindstrom on his latest trip were Michael Sherman of Park Ridge, next to the pastor, and the four members of the family of James Layton, Pueblo crewmember. The local pastor now is organizing a major rally to take place on Jan. 23 at the John Paul Jones statue in Washington, where this picture was taken.

Student Book Fair Set for Next Week

The Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows will sponsor a student book fair from Nov. 19 to 23.

Students will be able to browse and purchase books at the fair, which will be open daily from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. Books will be on display in the gymnasium.

THE BOOK fair will not only attempt to spur student interest in reading and building home libraries, but will also contribute to a worthwhile project. The school earns 20 per cent of all sales and profits will be used for the school library materials and books.

All students, parents and visitors are invited to attend. The book fair will include classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books.

The Cardinal Drive PTA is sponsoring the fair, with Mrs. Keith Smith serving as chairman. Her committee is working with Educational Reading Service, a professional book fair company, to furnish an individual selection of books for the fair.

Clearbrook Dinner Dance Set Dec. 14

Clearbrook Community Assn. for the Retarded will hold a benefit dinner dance Dec. 14, at Waynes Redwood Inn, between Central and Kensington Roads on Rand Road, Mount Prospect.

The dinner dance is for association members and the public, with proceeds going to the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows.

The affair will begin at 8 p.m. and continue until 1 p.m.

Included in the charge of $20 per couple are the food, drinks and entertainment for the entire evening.

TICKETS for the event can be purchased by phoning Mrs. Diane Maathes, 359-1673; Mrs. John Dodge, 392-7633; or Mrs. Marsha Marshall, 358-4480. Social chairman for the dinner dance is Mrs. Charles Grimelli, 401 Indigo Drive, Prospect Heights.

Organized to promote the welfare of all mentally retarded, the Clearbrook Community Assn. for the Retarded has a membership composed of people interested in providing comprehensive programs on behalf of the mentally retarded.

Among the communities represented by the association are Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows.

MEMBERSHIP, at $2 annually, is open to the public. The Clearbrook Community Assn. is a member of the Illinois Assn. for the Mentally Retarded and the National Assn. for Retarded Children.

Currently the association's major project is providing financial assistance to Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, a private agency operated with community support to provide services for retarded children and adults who cannot be served in public programs.

All in a Day's Work

Bob Day, in charge of equipment and outdoor work at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, is also widely in demand for a variety of "inside jobs." Librarians say, "When you're too hot, when you're too cold, when your typewriter ribbon breaks, when you need anything, you call Bob." Day is shown working on the electrical box for the sump pump, but he also is busy putting the library's new record collection on tape. This week he is getting snow blower and brush attachments ready to attach to the library sweeper. The $7,000 piece of equipment is used to sweep leaves during the fall months.

Day, who attended Chicago Technical College, handles the air conditioning and boiler systems and supervises the work of maintenance men. Mrs. Mary Lee Ewalt, head librarian, says anyone who can handle constant requests from 30 women with unfailing courtesy must be a very special person.

Janitor Union Pickets Walk

Pickets from the Janitors Union, wearing earmuffs and "Unfair to Organized Labor" aprons are marching in front of the Dryden Apartments at Dryden Ave. and Kensington Road.

Inside, owner Fred Hendricks says "I served with the British Air Force before the war, with American forces during two wars and I now have a son in Viet Nam. After going through this, I am not about to be intimidated by pickets."

The picketers insist that Hendricks hires non-union men to help him with maintenance work. They talk of seeing a car from a local janitor service drive up to the apartments.

Hendricks says he does all the work himself. He was a widower with five children when he purchased the buildings four years ago and found this type of work enabled him to earn a living and watch his children at the same time.

The union approached him at that time and asked him to hire card-carrying employees. He informed then he intended to take care of the operation alone and said he would join the union. At that time officials vetoed this suggestion and Hendricks no longer wishes to be a member.

One of the men walking before the buildings said the name of the service assisting Hendricks was Ace Maintenance. Company officials said they have never worked for the Dryden Apartments and that they told this to union representatives who stopped in Thursday.

Ray Van Heck, Vice President of Local No. 1 of the Union, told the Herald that a union man should be doing this type of work. "Hendricks doesn't really own the buildings — he doesn't have 51 per cent equity yet," he added.

Van Heck said some firm in Arlington Heights was assisting Hendricks but that he didn't know the name of the organization.

"We will take Hendricks in now if he wishes," he said. Initiation fee for the union is $205, with dues of $30 per quarter.

The union representative said that the picketers will stay on at the Dryden apartments indefinitely.

Hendricks says he will ignore them.

Children's Story-Time Tests New Regulations

New regulations governing the children's Wednesday story-time session at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library go into effect this week.

The popular program enticed so many local 3-to-6-year-old children, accompanied by mothers and toddlers, to the library that proper supervision and enjoyment of the stories was impossible.

Commencing Nov. 20 the children will arrive before regular opening hours. The entrance in the parking lot will be open from 9:15 to 9:30 a.m. to admit pre-schoolers and mothers. The door will then be locked until the normal 10 a.m. admittance time.

The first 75 children to arrive will hear stories in the red-carpeted "reading pit" in the children's section. Members of the Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club will supervise this session. Club members request that children leave toys at home.

Children further back in the line will be read to by a library staff member in another section of the building.

CHILDREN under 3 will be welcome in the Dunton Room during the reading period where the Friends of the Library will serve coffee and hold frequent programs.

Two Arlington Police Promoted

Two officers in the Arlington Heights police department received promotions in brief ceremonies at the village hall Friday morning.

Sgt. Joseph Ostermann was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He joined the force in 1954, and was promoted to the rank of sergeant in 1961.

RICHARD REID was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Sgt. Reid joined the force in 1961. He has been selected by Rotary International to participate in a group study exchange that will visit Hong Kong and Taiwan.

Supt. Strong Looks To Dist. 25 Future

Dr. Donald Strong will speak Tuesday on "What is Ahead for Dist. 25." The school superintendent will address members of parent-teacher associations from Kensington, North, Ridge and Windsor elementary schools and Miner Junior High School.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held at the Miner gymnasium, 1101 E. Miner St.

DR. STRONG will outline some aspects of the district's academic future and tell the group of financial requirements necessary to keep pace with the projected growth of the school system.

Dr. Strong's professional experience includes teaching, administration and counseling positions. He served as superintendent of schools in Joliet prior to joining the Dist. 25 staff in July.

Lutheran General Alumnae To Meet

Extra-sensory perception will be the topic for the November meeting of the alumnae association of Lutheran General and Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing, Park Ridge. The meeting is at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 in the school of nursing located just east of Lutheran General Hospital.

Presenting the program will be Mrs. Bess Krigel, who has appeared frequently on radio and television demonstrating her insights into ESP.

All alumnae of the school are invited to attend the meeting. A business meeting and refreshments will follow the program.

Patton PTA Meets Nov. 19

"Now is the Time to be a Cut Up" is the theme for the Nov. 19 meeting of the Patton School Parent-Teacher Assn.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held in the multi-purpose room of the school, 1616 N. Patton.

Mrs. Kay Laubet, Dist. 25 art consultant, will direct parents in projects similar to those their children are currently working on in school.

THE ACTIVITIES include clay modeling, painting of winter scenes, stitching Christmas pictures and making tree ornaments from cookie dough.

Parents also may choose to work on Christmas cards or make decorative angels by the crayon resist method.

Refreshments will be served during the meeting and work sessions.

Grapes

It is reported the union further requested Jewel to publicly announce a decision not to buy or sell grapes.

Eliseo Medina, field representative for United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, said their aim is grape growers' recognition of their union. Some 80 table grape farmers have refused to acknowledge the union as a bartering agent and economic pressure of not being able to sell their produce is labors' only resort, he said.

Speaking for the California grape growers, Creston Foster, news director for the American Farm Bureau Federation, said union activity is not aimed at the growers but at the farm workers themselves. After failing to get laborers into the union, the FL-CIO is attempting to force the growers into unionizing their labor force, he said.

NEWBY SAID Jewel Tea Co. never had an agreement with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee to not buy California grapes. For a time, Jewel was buying grapes from Arizona because that was the supply source during that growing season, Newby said.

The dispute can be further complicated by inserting a question of fairness of the National Labor Relations Act which specifically excludes agricultural workers from organizing unions.

Impact of the outcome of the struggle could not help but affect the northwest suburbs with its large migrant worker population from Bensenville to Wheeling.

Even now that all the season's grapes are picked and stored, the issue of the grape is complex. California is still the fruitbasket that will be supplying Chicago stores with table grapes for some time.

Neither Skinner nor Medina promise a letup in pressure to get people to boycott buying tabe grapes. Their activity has been endorsed by the Chicago Church Federation and locally by the Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee.

Any effect from the Nov. 9 picketing?

"NOT REALLY," Jewel Mgr. Dennis O'Connell said, answering he had no public response to the boycott either way.

"The company position has to be the position I would take," O'Connell said.

Another Jewel store manager said he would respond to his customers' pressures when the situation comes up. Expecting to be picketed, he said his job is to serve his customers.

Break Weston Ground

Groundbreaking for the first permanent building of the National Accelerator Laboratory (NAL) at Weston will take place Dec. 1.

It will be followed by a reception and open house.

The 6,800 acre site, mostly in DuPage County, will be accessible to labor forces from Cook, Kane and Will counties as well as DuPage. More than 1,000 acres are in Kane County.

The atom smasher itself is expected to have less immediate effect on the county than the related industries which will flock in later.

Estimates predict it will take six to eight years to complete the construction on the site.

Over 2,000 of the nation's top scientists are expected to staff the laboratory with 1,000 university graduate technicians.

Home construction around the project and nearby areas throughout DuPage will increase as more people go to work at the site.

The atom smasher will be shaped like a giant ring, partially underground. It will be one mile in diameter and cost about $375 million.

Annual budget for the project will be about $60 million.

The burden of vocational training programs in the technical field will be laid at the doorstep of William Rainey Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage, according to Gene Graves, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development.

Represenatives from both colleges said that while they are committed to technological programs, they have found them difficult to organize and expensive to operate.

A branch of the University of Illinois could be located in DuPage County near Weston, Graves also suggested.

Graves said he plans to meet with DuPage industrial leaders to stir up interest in the project.

Local churches also will be included to arouse support, he said.

Priest Asks Industry For Aid to Schools

The Catholic school superintendent for the Joliet diocese isn't waiting for the state legislature to bail his high schools out of their financial plight.

An experiment aimed at bridging the gap between Catholic high school costs and income was launched this year in DuPage and other counties by Rev. Niles Gillen.

INDUSTRIES ARE being asked to kick in to support the parochial high schools on the grounds that their taxes will soar if the diocese's students go to public schools instead.

Fr. Gillen says the fund drive is only a stopgap measure. Even if the industrial drive succeeds, he believes Catholic high schools will have to close within five years if additional income is not available to them from state or federal sources.

The campaign Fr. Gillen is mounting is a mix of common sense and the United Fund approach to giving.

In approaching industrial managers, the Catholic schoolman shows the same flare for salesmanship exhibited by his businessman brother, John Gillen of Arlington Heights.

FR. GILLEN MAKES these points:

"The Catholic high schools perform a vital public service."

"Industry pays taxes to support the public schools, but from us they merely take our graduates."

"DuPage County taxpayers save $15 million in school expenses because our Catholic schools are operating."

Based on that approach, Fr. Gillen has gone to business and industry and asked them to give a share of what they would have to pay in taxes if the Catholic schools were closed.

The funds are earmarked for high schools only — for capital improvements and teachers' salaries — and will not be used for supporting elementary schools which already receive major support from local parishes.

The Catholic school office makes available, as part of its drive, per pupil cost of public and parochial school education for each different area of the archdiocese and converts that into estimated tax savings for each industry approached.

THEN THE FIRM is urged to contribute 20 per cent of that saving to the Joliet archdiocesan capital fund drive annually for the next five years.

"If they'd all give just 10 per cent, we'd more than meet our goal," he added.

So far, the drive has raised in the Joliet area $175,000, far from its goal, but there has been keen interest from some key industries and strong encouragement for the attempt from newspapers and public schoolmen.

In DuPage County, the response has been weaker, but the campaign has not yet been fully mounted.

Fr. Gillen admits that the fund drive may be "an idea a little bit ahead of its day."

bus, which was off the frontage road and facing north. The Numerowski car was on the median strip of the express lanes.

Mrs. Leto testified that her driver's license had been suspended for two months in 1960, and that she had another accident, in 1965 or 1966, while driving a school bus.

The accident, which focused county-wide attention on the high accident rate at the intersection, brought emergency crews from the state to install traffic lights at the corner.

THE LIGHTS went into operation at 10:30 Friday morning. At 11:45 Miss Numerowski walked out of the courtroom after the charges had been dropped. She said that the cast and the metal pin in her arm should be gone by Christmas.

The mother of one of the girls killed wept quietly in the hall outside the courtroom. In her hand she held several pictures of her daughter.

Yule Postage Cost –6 Cents For All

WASHINGTON UPI — Christmas cards this year will require the same six-cent stamp as first class mail whether they are sealed or not.

Under a little-noticed provision of the new postal rates, cost for the first ounce was made identical to first class rates — six cents.

A year ago and for many Christmases before that, unsealed greeting cards containing no personal message beyond the sender's signature could be mailed for a penny less than first class.

HOWEVER, cards undeliverable to the given address were neither forwarded nor returned.

For the extra penny this vear you will get one or the other, provided a return address is on the envelope.

The new provisions actually only made the third and first class rates equal for the first ounce, a category that inclues most holiday greeting cards. A card weighing up to two ounces can be mailed third class for just six cents, but it will not be forwarded or returned if undeliverable.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Janitor Union Pickets Walk

Pickets from the Janitors Union, wearing earmuffs and "Unfair to Organized Labor" aprons are marching in front of the Dryden Apartments at Dryden Ave. and Kensington Road.

Inside, owner Fred Hendricks says "I served with the British Air Force before the war, with American forces during two wars and I now have a son in Viet Nam. After going through this, I am not about to be intimidated by pickets."

The picketers insist that Hendricks hires non-union men to help him with maintenance work. They talk of seeing a car from a local janitor service drive up to the apartments.

Hendricks says he does all the work himself. He was a widower with five children when he purchased the buildings four years ago and found this type of work enabled him to earn a living and watch his children at the same time.

The union approached him at that time and asked him to hire card-carrying employees. He informed then he intended to take care of the operation alone and said he would join the union. At that time officials vetoed this suggestion and Hendricks no longer wishes to be a member.

One of the men walking before the buildings said the name of the service assisting Hendricks was Ace Maintenance. Company officials said they have never worked for the Dryden Apartments and that they told this to union representatives who stopped in Thursday.

Ray Van Heck, Vice President of Local No. 1 of the Union, told the Herald that a union man should be doing this type of work. "Hendricks doesn't really own the buildings — he doesn't have 51 per cent equity yet," he added.

Van Heck said some firm in Arlington Heights was assisting Hendricks but that he didn't know the name of the organization.

"We will take Hendricks in now if he wishes," he said. Initiation fee for the union is $205, with dues of $30 per quarter.

The union representative said that the picketers will stay on at the Dryden apartments indefinitely.

Hendricks says he will ignore them.

Groundbreaking for the first permanent building of the National Accelerator Laboratory (NAL) at Weston will take place Dec. 1.

It will be followed by a reception and open house.

The 6,800 acre site, mostly in DuPage County, will be accessible to labor forces from Cook, Kane and Will counties as well as DuPage. More than 1,000 acres are in Kane County.

The atom smasher itself is expected to have less immediate effect on the county than the related industries which will flock in later.

Estimates predict it will take six to eight years to complete the construction on the site.

Over 2,000 of the nation's top scientists are expected to staff the laboratory with 1,000 university graduate technicians.

Home construction around the project and nearby areas throughout DuPage will increase as more people go to work at the site.

The atom smasher will be shaped like a giant ring, partially underground. It will be one mile in diameter and cost about $375 million.

Annual budget for the project will be about $60 million.

The burden of vocational training programs in the technical field will be laid at the doorstep of William Rainey Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage, according to Gene Graves, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development.

Represenatives from both colleges said that while they are committed to technological programs, they have found them difficult to organize and expensive to operate.

A branch of the University of Illinois could be located in DuPage County near Weston, Graves also suggested.

Graves said he plans to meet with DuPage industrial leaders to stir up interest in the project.

Local churches also will be included to arouse support, he said.

Priest Asks Industry For Aid to Schools

The Catholic school superintendent for the Joliet diocese isn't waiting for the state legislature to bail his high schools out of their financial plight.

An experiment aimed at bridging the gap between Catholic high school costs and income was launched this year in DuPage and other counties by Rev. Niles Gillen.

INDUSTRIES ARE being asked to kick in to support the parochial high schools on the grounds that their taxes will soar if the diocese's students go to public schools instead.

Fr. Gillen says the fund drive is only a stopgap measure. Even if the industrial drive succeeds, he believes Catholic high schools will have to close within five years if additional income is not available to them from state or federal sources.

The campaign Fr. Gillen is mounting is a mix of common sense and the United Fund approach to giving.

In approaching industrial managers, the Catholic schoolman shows the same flare for salesmanship exhibited by his businessman brother, John Gillen of Arlington Heights.

FR. GILLEN MAKES these points:

"The Catholic high schools perform a vital public service."

"Industry pays taxes to support the public schools, but from us they merely take our graduates."

"DuPage County taxpayers save $15 million in school expenses because our Catholic schools are operating."

Based on that approach, Fr. Gillen has gone to business and industry and asked them to give a share of what they would have to pay in taxes if the Catholic schools were closed.

The funds are earmarked for high schools only — for capital improvements and teachers' salaries — and will not be used for supporting elementary schools which already receive major support from local parishes.

The Catholic school office makes available, as part of its drive, per pupil cost of public and parochial school education for each different area of the archdiocese and converts that into estimated tax savings for each industry approached.

THEN THE FIRM is urged to contribute 20 per cent of that saving to the Joliet archdiocesan capital fund drive annually for the next five years.

"If they'd all give just 10 per cent, we'd more than meet our goal," he added.

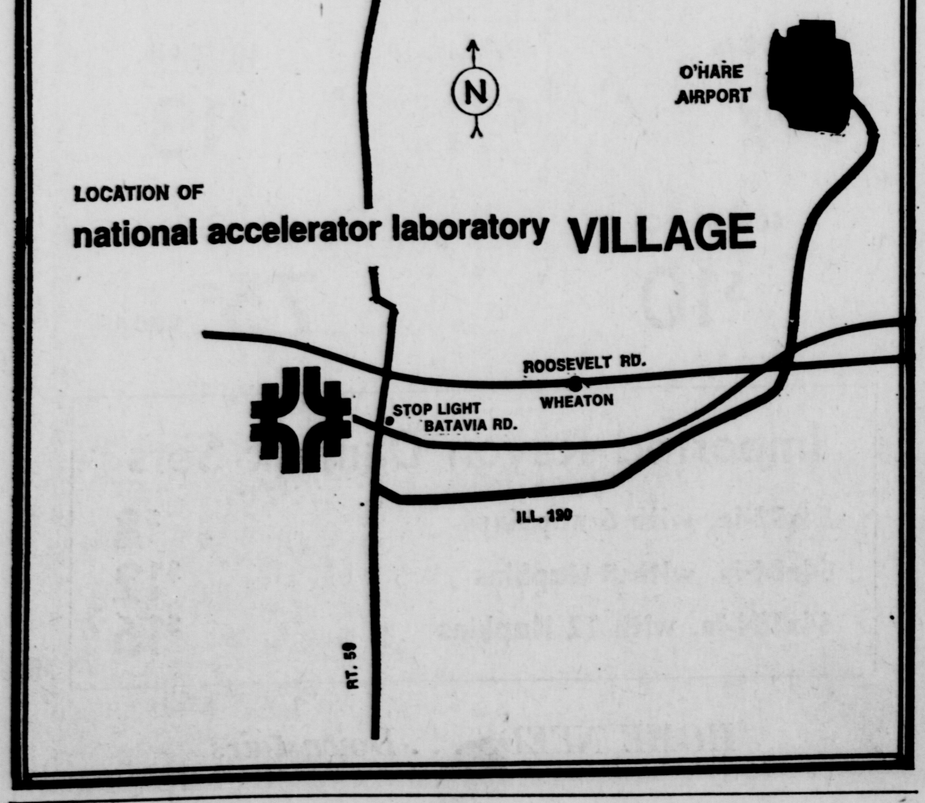
So far, the drive has raised in the Joliet area $175,000, far from its goal, but there has been keen interest from some key industries and strong encouragement for the attempt from newspapers and public schoolmen.

In DuPage County, the response has been weaker, but the campaign has not yet been fully mounted.

Fr. Gillen admits that the fund drive may be "an idea a little bit ahead of its day."



Children's Story-Time Tests New Regulations

New regulations governing the children's Wednesday story-time session at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library go into effect this week.

The popular program enticed so many local 3-to-6-year-old children, accompanied by mothers and toddlers, to the library that proper supervision and enjoyment of the stories was impossible.

Commencing Nov. 20 the children will arrive before regular opening hours. The entrance in the parking lot will be open from 9:15 to 9:30 a.m. to admit pre-schoolers and mothers. The door will then be locked until the normal 10 a.m. admittance time.

The first 75 children to arrive will hear stories in the red-carpeted "reading pit" in the children's section. Members of the Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club will supervise this session. Club members request that children leave toys at home.

Children further back in the line will be read to by a library staff member in another section of the building.

CHILDREN under 3 will be welcome in the Dunton Room during the reading period where the Friends of the Library will serve coffee and hold frequent programs.

Two Arlington Police Promoted

Two officers in the Arlington Heights police department received promotions in brief ceremonies at the village hall Friday morning.

Sgt. Joseph Ostermann was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He joined the force in 1954, and was promoted to the rank of sergeant in 1961.

RICHARD REID was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Sgt. Reid joined the force in 1961. He has been selected by Rotary International to participate in a group study exchange that will visit Hong Kong and Taiwan.

Lutheran General Alumnae To Meet

Extra-sensory perception will be the topic for the November meeting of the alumnae association of Lutheran General and Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing, Park Ridge. The meeting is at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 in the school of nursing located just east of Lutheran General Hospital.

Presenting the program will be Mrs. Bess Krigel, who has appeared frequently on radio and television demonstrating her insights into ESP.

All alumnae of the school are invited to attend the meeting. A business meeting and refreshments will follow the program.

Patton PTA Meets Nov. 19

"Now is the Time to be a Cut Up" is the theme for the Nov. 19 meeting of the Patton School Parent-Teacher Assn.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held in the multi-purpose room of the school, 1616 N. Patton.

Mrs. Kay Laubet, Dist. 25 art consultant, will direct parents in projects similar to those their children are currently working on in school.

THE ACTIVITIES include clay modeling, painting of winter scenes, stitching Christmas pictures and making tree ornaments from cookie dough.

Parents also may choose to work on Christmas cards or make decorative angels by the crayon resist method.

Refreshments will be served during the meeting and work sessions.

bus, which was off the frontage road and facing north. The Numerowski car was on the median strip of the express lanes.

Mrs. Leto testified that her driver's license had been suspended for two months in 1960, and that she had another accident, in 1965 or 1966, while driving a school bus.

The accident, which focused county-wide attention on the high accident rate at the intersection, brought emergency crews from the state to install traffic lights at the corner.

THE LIGHTS went into operation at 10:30 Friday morning. At 11:45 Miss Numerowski walked out of the courtroom after the charges had been dropped. She said that the cast and the metal pin in her arm should be gone by Christmas.

The mother of one of the girls killed wept quietly in the hall outside the courtroom. In her hand she held several pictures of her daughter.

Yule Postage Cost –6 Cents For All

WASHINGTON UPI — Christmas cards this year will require the same six-cent stamp as first class mail whether they are sealed or not.

Under a little-noticed provision of the new postal rates, cost for the first ounce was made identical to first class rates — six cents.

A year ago and for many Christmases before that, unsealed greeting cards containing no personal message beyond the sender's signature could be mailed for a penny less than first class.

HOWEVER, cards undeliverable to the given address were neither forwarded nor returned.

For the extra penny this vear you will get one or the other, provided a return address is on the envelope.

The new provisions actually only made the third and first class rates equal for the first ounce, a category that inclues most holiday greeting cards. A card weighing up to two ounces can be mailed third class for just six cents, but it will not be forwarded or returned if undeliverable.

Supt. Strong Looks To Dist. 25 Future

Dr. Donald Strong will speak Tuesday on "What is Ahead for Dist. 25." The school superintendent will address members of parent-teacher associations from Kensington, North, Ridge and Windsor elementary schools and Miner Junior High School.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held at the Miner gymnasium, 1101 E. Miner St.

DR. STRONG will outline some aspects of the district's academic future and tell the group of financial requirements necessary to keep pace with the projected growth of the school system.

Dr. Strong's professional experience includes teaching, administration and counseling positions. He served as superintendent of schools in Joliet prior to joining the Dist. 25 staff in July.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Janitor Union Pickets Walk

Pickets from the Janitors Union, wearing earmuffs and "Unfair to Organized Labor" aprons are marching in front of the Dryden Apartments at Dryden Ave. and Kensington Road.

Inside, owner Fred Hendricks says "I served with the British Air Force before the war, with American forces during two wars and I now have a son in Viet Nam. After going through this, I am not about to be intimidated by pickets."

The picketers insist that Hendricks hires non-union men to help him with maintenance work. They talk of seeing a car from a local janitor service drive up to the apartments.

Hendricks says he does all the work himself. He was a widower with five children when he purchased the buildings four years ago and found this type of work enabled him to earn a living and watch his children at the same time.

The union approached him at that time and asked him to hire card-carrying employees. He informed them he intended to take care of the operation alone and said he would join the union. At that time officials vetoed this suggestion and Hendricks no longer wishes to be a member.

One of the men walking before the buildings said the name of the service assisting Hendricks was Ace Maintenance. Company officials said they have never worked for the Dryden Apartments and that they told this to union representatives who stopped in Thursday.

Ray Van Heck, Vice President of Local No. 1 of the Union, told the Herald that a union man should be doing this type of work. "Hendricks doesn't really own the buildings — he doesn't have 51 per cent equity yet," he added.

Van Heck said some firm in Arlington Heights was assisting Hendricks but that he didn't know the name of the organization.

"We will take Hendricks in now if he wishes," he said. Initiation fee for the union is $205, with dues of $30 per quarter.

The union representative said that the picketers will stay on at the Dryden apartments indefinitely.

Hendricks says he will ignore them.

It is reported the union further requested Jewel to publicly announce a decision not to buy or sell grapes.

Eliseo Medina, field representative for United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, said their aim is grape growers' recognition of their union. Some 80 table grape farmers have refused to acknowledge the union as a bartering agent and economic pressure of not being able to sell their produce is labors' only resort, he said.

Speaking for the California grape growers, Creston Foster, news director for the American Farm Bureau Federation, said union activity is not aimed at the growers but at the farm workers themselves. After failing to get laborers into the union, the FL-CIO is attempting to force the growers into unionizing their labor force, he said.

NEWBY SAID Jewel Tea Co. never had an agreement with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee to not buy California grapes. For a time, Jewel was buying grapes from Arizona because that was the supply source during that growing season, Newby said.

The dispute can be further complicated by inserting a question of fairness of the National Labor Relations Act which specifically excludes agricultural workers from organizing unions.

Impact of the outcome of the struggle could not help but affect the northwest suburbs with its large migrant worker population from Bensenville to Wheeling.

Even now that all the season's grapes are picked and stored, the issue of the grape is complex. California is still the fruitbasket that will be supplying Chicago stores with table grapes for some time.

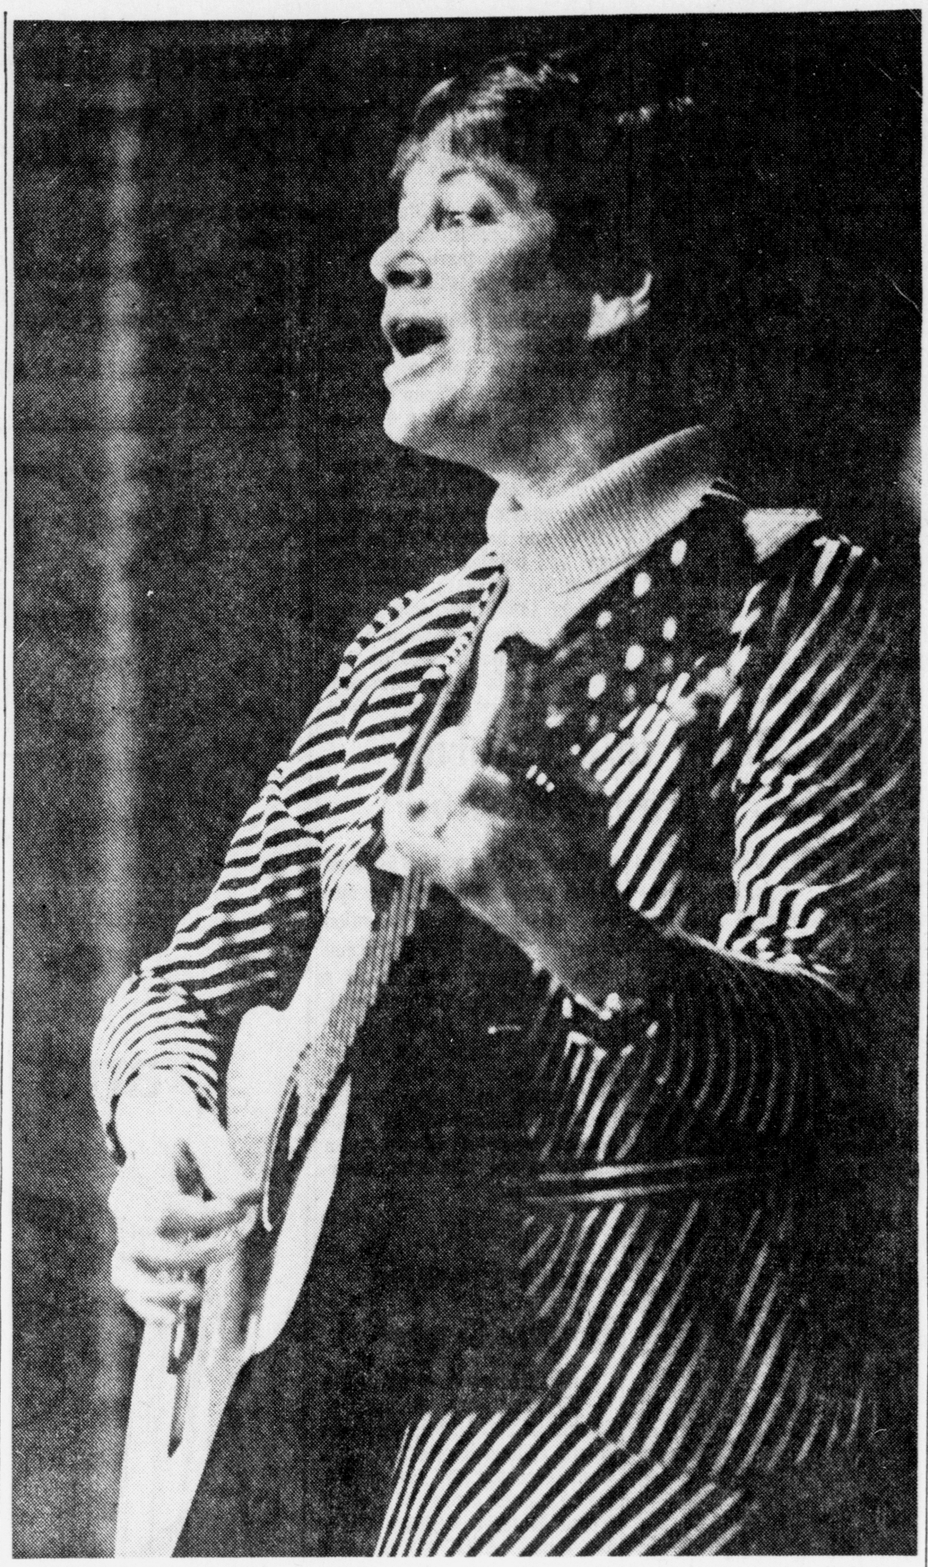
Neither Skinner nor Medina promise a letup in pressure to get people to boycott buying tabe grapes. Their activity has been endorsed by the Chicago Church Federation and locally by the Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee.

Any effect from the Nov. 9 picketing?

"NOT REALLY," Jewel Mgr. Dennis O'Connell said, answering he had no public response to the boycott either way.

"The company position has to be the position I would take," O'Connell said.

Another Jewel store manager said he would respond to his customers' pressures when the situation comes up. Expecting to be picketed, he said his job is to serve his customers.



BRAZILIAN FOLK SONGS now will be recognized by school Dist. 25 students. Valucha, a native of that country, entertained at Windsor and Greenbrier schools Friday. The folk singer, who performs in 11 languages, included popular music and show tunes in her presentation.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Abolish Electoral College? It's Not a New Suggestion

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON UPI - In the past century, more than 300 constitutional amendments have been introduced in Congress to change the way of electing the President. And more will be proposed early in the 91st Congress.

Many-if not most-of the proposals have called for direct election of the President by the voters and doing away with the Electoral College.

In the past, all of the proposals have foundered on the small state's belief that the Electroal College gives them an extra voice in the selection of the President.

Political scientists for years have argued such a belief is an illusion. Increasingly, politicans are inclined to agree.

THE ELECTORAL College system was part of a compromise between large and small states which created the federal union. Without it, there wouldn't have been a union.

The small states feared that if they went into a federal union with the large states, they would be crushed by mere weight of population. The concern was that the large states would run roughshod over the interests of the small states by using their greater voting power.

The compromise was to give each state, regardless of size, a guaranteed representation of two votes in the Senate. This small-state "weighted influence" in Congress was carried over into the Electroal College. Each state was given a voice in voting for President equal to its representation in Congress.

Thus, the small states felt they had protection against being ignored in national elections. They felt assured that candidates for President would have to campaign for small-state support as much as for the electoral votes of the large states.

HOWEVER, that weighted influence started fading quickly as the two-party system developed in the United States and the winner-take-all rule grew in the states.

The winner-take-all rule is the one under which all states now operate. That is, the candidate with the greatest number of popular votes within a state wins all of that state's total vote in the Electroal College.

As a practical matter, it has meant that presdiential candidates have concentrated on cmpaingining in the big cities and states. The winner-take-all rule, it is argued, has just about wiped out the weighted political influence originally given small states under the constitution.

'Kismet' Players

In a recent presentation of "Kismet" at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, three area students were members of the cast.

Becky Balding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Balding of 1706 Walnut, Mount Prospect, a junior, played Princess Zubbediya of Damascus and Dave Borgeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Borgeson of 106 E. Palatine Road, Prospect Heights, a graduate student, played a muezzin of the mosque.

Nancy Treadway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Treadway of 1148 Cambridge Drive, Buffalo Grove, a sophomore, played a townswoman.

Awarded Medal For Heroism

First Lt. William L. Kopplin of Arlington Heights, has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross at Vung Tau AB, Viet Nam.

Lieutenant Kopplin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kopplin, 410 W. Wing St., was cited for heroism as a C-7A pilot.

On Jan. 31, 1968, the lieutenant, despite intense enemy ground fire, flew two emergency airdrop missions to deliver ammunition to a special forces camp that was under attack and perilously low on ammunition. Although his aircraft took 18 direct hits from the enemy fire, Lieutenant Kopplin disregarded his personal safety and successfully completed his mission.

A graduate of Arlington High School, he earned his B.S. degree at the Citadel, Charleston, S.C., where he was commissioned through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

FACTS – QUESTIONS and ANSWERS
by Jim Poole

Q Can I plan my estate to avoid the red tape Mrs. X went through when her husband passed away?

A Estate planning is a complicated and exacting science. Everyone who owns anything — a car, house, bank deposit, credit union shares, insurance, business interest, retirement benefits, etc. — has an estate. This estate, regardless of size, represents the most important money in the world to those left behind. The care, maintenance and conservation of this estate is not simply desirable but absolutely essential.

As you would not treat a member of your family for a serious illness, do not attempt to be a "do it yourself" estate planner. Contact your attorney or the Trust Officer of your bank. These men can be among the most important people in your life.

Few Veeps Know The White House

by MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

Backstairs at the Nixon White House-to-be:

President-elect and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon may not have realized it, but they recently cast some rather harsh light on how it is to be a vice president.

At the White House last Monday, both Nixon and his wife, Pat, were given personally conducted tours of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue by President and Mrs. Johnson. The inspection trip provided by Mrs. Johnson for Mrs. Nixon was even more extensive.

At any rate, when Nixon emerged after a long business session with Johnson, instead of weighty matters of state, he spoke first of his trip through the house.

"I EXPRESS appreciation for the tour of some of the quarters of the White House that, despite the fact of my being in the Eisenhower administration for eight years, I had never seen before," Nixon said in thanking Johnson.

Pat Nixon, after her tour with Lady Bird Johnson, said frankly, "I have been here several times, but I have never seen the house as I have today."

This is no particular indictment of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, for not having shown the Nixons more of 1600 Pennsylvania when the Eisenhowers were in office. Monday's dialogue was more a realistic picture of the position occupied by a vice president in relation to the top man. They may be quite friendly during office hours, but usually it does not go much beyond that.

VICE PRESIDENT Hubert H. Humphrey and his wife, Muriel, certainly have not been after-hours pals of the Johnsons; the same was true of President Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, when Johnson was vice president.

This implies no wrong, but it is somewhat contrary to a widespread public impression — that when two men run for office together, then take over the nation's two highest jobs as a team, that they must be on a close personal basis, terribly good pals, as well as business associates.

They may act that way around election time in front of the public, but case histories of presidential relationships with vice presidents in modern times, certainly dating back to Franklin D. Roosevelt, show the two offices do not lend themselves to personal friendship.

IT WOULD be highly doubtful that this historic relationship changes much with Nixon and his vice president, Spiro T. Agnew.

Do presidents as a class dislike their vice presidents?

Not particularly, but it is not the sort of relationship that usually makes for personal friendship.

Abolish Electoral College? It's Not a New Suggestion

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON UPI - In the past century, more than 300 constitutional amendments have been introduced in Congress to change the way of electing the President. And more will be proposed early in the 91st Congress.

Many-if not most-of the proposals have called for direct election of the President by the voters and doing away with the Electoral College.

In the past, all of the proposals have foundered on the small state's belief that the Electroal College gives them an extra voice in the selection of the President.

Political scientists for years have argued such a belief is an illusion. Increasingly, politicans are inclined to agree.

THE ELECTORAL College system was part of a compromise between large and small states which created the federal union. Without it, there wouldn't have been a union.

The small states feared that if they went into a federal union with the large states, they would be crushed by mere weight of population. The concern was that the large states would run roughshod over the interests of the small states by using their greater voting power.

The compromise was to give each state, regardless of size, a guaranteed representation of two votes in the Senate. This small-state "weighted influence" in Congress was carried over into the Electroal College. Each state was given a voice in voting for President equal to its representation in Congress.

Thus, the small states felt they had protection against being ignored in national elections. They felt assured that candidates for President would have to campaign for small-state support as much as for the electoral votes of the large states.

HOWEVER, that weighted influence started fading quickly as the two-party system developed in the United States and the winner-take-all rule grew in the states.

The winner-take-all rule is the one under which all states now operate. That is, the candidate with the greatest number of popular votes within a state wins all of that state's total vote in the Electroal College.

As a practical matter, it has meant that presdiential candidates have concentrated on cmpaingining in the big cities and states. The winner-take-all rule, it is argued, has just about wiped out the weighted political influence originally given small states under the constitution.

'Kismet' Players

In a recent presentation of "Kismet" at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, three area students were members of the cast.

Becky Balding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Balding of 1706 Walnut, Mount Prospect, a junior, played Princess Zubbediya of Damascus and Dave Borgeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Borgeson of 106 E. Palatine Road, Prospect Heights, a graduate student, played a muezzin of the mosque.

Nancy Treadway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Treadway of 1148 Cambridge Drive, Buffalo Grove, a sophomore, played a townswoman.

Awarded Medal For Heroism

First Lt. William L. Kopplin of Arlington Heights, has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross at Vung Tau AB, Viet Nam.

Lieutenant Kopplin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kopplin, 410 W. Wing St., was cited for heroism as a C-7A pilot.

On Jan. 31, 1968, the lieutenant, despite intense enemy ground fire, flew two emergency airdrop missions to deliver ammunition to a special forces camp that was under attack and perilously low on ammunition. Although his aircraft took 18 direct hits from the enemy fire, Lieutenant Kopplin disregarded his personal safety and successfully completed his mission.

A graduate of Arlington High School, he earned his B.S. degree at the Citadel, Charleston, S.C., where he was commissioned through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Single-Sex Colleges Are on Their Way Out

CAREERS and SCHOOL GUIDE

Single-sex colleges are on the way out!

Of the nation's 2,484 institutions of higher learning only 462 are still sexually segregated - 248 for women and 214 for men.

There are many reasons for single-sex schools wanting to go co-ed. The women, more than the men, are all for it because today's women are unwilling to restrict their lives to marriage and motherhood. They want careers, too, and demand training for such careers. The so-called "finishing schools" are not offering career advantages.

ANOTHER FACTOR is the single-sex colleges are finding it harder to compete with the co-education schools. The issue is described as having moved "from the sentimental and the theoretical to one of cold, hard practicalities." The mix of men and women on the same campus is now believed to be, by school authorities, "educationally desirable," providing not only a better social life but a more stimulating intellectual environment.

A faculty committee at Princeton, in recommending admission to women, made this statement:

"Princeton would be a better university if women were admitted to the undergraduate college. We believe that for Princeton to remain an all-male institution in the face of today's evolving social system would be out of keeping with her past willingness to change with the times. . .in our opinion it would also mean that within a decade, if not sooner, Princeton's competitive position for students, for faculty and for financial support would be less strong than it is now."

"Segregation of the sexes was fully consistent with our social institutions only a generation ago; but now, in the late 1960's, it is quite simply seen as anachronistic by most college students."

On Oct. 28 Vassar announced plans to admit male students beginning in September, 1970, and to eventually have 50 per cent male enrollment boosting the number of 1,500, presently girls, to 2,400 of both sexes.

The exclusive girl's school in Vermont, Bennington College, will go fully coeducational in 1969.

WESLEYAN University at Middletown, Conn., began admitting women this fall in order to become "a more realistic reflection of the larger society."

The 111 year old Episcopal school, University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., is already preparing for admission of women. Dr. Edward McCrady, the vice chancellor, said: "The proper justification for trying to get more women is not that we are facing any sort of crisis, but that we ought to offer to the daughters of our constituency what we offer to the sons."

The 149-year old mens' institution at Hamilton, N.Y., Colgate University, is reported to be "teetering on the brink" of co-education.

Upon completion of a feasibility study, women may start coming to Franklin and Marshall College next September whilst 144-year old Lafayette College finds admission of women "educationally desirable."

Oh, yes the co-education is catching on in private high schools, and even the Boy Scouts are going to take in girls this Jan. 1 in Exploring, the Scouts' character-building program for boys from 14 to 18.

LOOKING OVER THE folder about the November exhibit of portraits by Pat Trefelner in the Art Corner are (left to right) Jay Trefelner, 12, Mt. Prospect, Mrs. Alma Poulos, Mt. Prospect, of the commercial loan department at Des Plaines National Bank where the paintings are on view, and the artist, Mrs. George Trefelner. Her self-portrait and Indian Boy are two of the six works in the exhibit which remains until Dec. 1. Mrs. Trefelner maintains a studio at 10 W. Miner in Arlington Heights, as well as one in her home, and teaches portraiture at Maine West Adult Evening School.

Acclaimed Israeli Pianist Gives Arlington Concert

"The dashing Israeli pianist, David Bar-Illan, played securely and fluently," praised The Chicago Daily News, following a pre-season concert given by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in September.

DAVID BAR-ILLAN will be heard playing Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Liszt and Chopin Thursday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in concert for the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association. The Arlington Theatre is host for the evening.

David Bar-Illan will appear at Arlington Theatre on Thursday, Nov. 21, at 8 p.m., as the artist for the second of Arlington Heights Community Concert Association's concerts of the current season.

THE EVENING'S program will include music by Mendelssohn and Liszt; Beethoven's "Appassionata"; Chopin's "First nocturne" and five of his etudes; and a one-movement sonata written by a contemporary young Israeli composer, Michael Ronen.

SINCE HIS 1960 debut with the New York Philharmonic, 38-year old David Bar-Illan has been earning press acclaim from countries around the world. The Christian Science Monitor has written: "Bar-Illan's poise, control and drive showed him to be an extremely superior performer, endowed with unusual musical intelligence," while the Washington Post urged: "The next time the name of David Bar-Illan appears even in the smallest print, make a point of getting to his recital — come snow, sleet or rain."

Arlington Heights Community Concert Association is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing fine entertainment to Arlington Heights and neighboring communities. Memberships for the 1969-70 season will be made available in March.

Christmas Concert By Festival Chorus

In the spirit of Christmas, Tchaikovsky's ballet, "The Nutcracker Suite" will be presented Dec. 8 by the Elk Grove Festival Chorus and Orchestra.

The Festival Chorus is directed by Anthony Mostardo and accompanied by Mrs. Joanne Kalina, both of whom are well known in the Northwest area for piano concerts. Mostardo is music coordinator for District 59 and principal of Claremont School in Elk Grove Village.

ORCHESTRAL accompaniment will be provided by the Elk Grove Festival Symphony, also under the direction of Mostardo.

A group from the June Rold School of Dance in Des Plaines will perform the ballet numbers of the traditional Christmas classic which appeals to young and old alike.

In addition to the "Nutcracker Suite," the Ecumenical Chorus of 60 voices will present a selection of carols, some in their native language.

THE EFFORTS OF these groups are hoped to provide a program of Yuletide cheer and cultural enrichment in two performances, 3 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village.

Proceeds from a nominal entrance donation will contribute to a scholarship fund for area music students.

Playmakers Give Comedy–Mystery

Celeste Boarini, Arlington Heights, and Sue Leadinghouse, Bensenville, are among the cast of "Double in Diamonds," a comedy-mystery presented by Playmakers Community Theatre.

The play will open the group's 1st season on Thursday, Nov. 21 at Field School, 707 N. Wisner, Park Ridge, and continue through Saturday, Nov. 2. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The production is charged with hilarious suspense as an insurance investigator brings two jewel thieves out of retirement in order to catch another jewel thief.

Tickets may be ordered by calling 631-3418.

Harper Presents Studs Terkel

Studs Terkel, Chicago author, folksong authority and radio-TV personality, will speak on Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 7:50 p.m. in Room 115 at the Elk Grove High School, sponsored by Harper College.

Terkel will discuss the effect of mass media in reporting public confrontation and dissent, illustrated by events occurring at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last August. His comments have appeared in "Law and Disorder," a single-issue publication on the convention riots.

Students and faculty will be admitted free upon presentation of identification cards to the lecture which was originally scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 13.

Area Talent Has Outlet

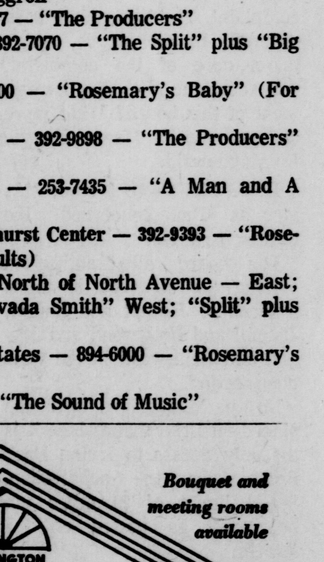
Susan Bartz, Arlington Heights, and Marc Sanmusch, Palatine, are young string players who share their talents with others of grammar school age in the Youth String Orchestra at DePaul University School of Music.

The group meets on Monday evenings, 7:30 p.m. in room 518 at 25 E. Jackson Blvd.

THE STRING orchestra, under the direction of Mary K. Rosen, is open to all children who can play the violin, viola and cello, and is the only string orchestra of its kind throughout Chicagoland.

Public performances will be given throughout the season.

Parents may contact the DePaul University School of Music at WE 9-3525 for further information.



"ROSEMARY'S BABY" stars Mia Farrow and John Cassavetes. This trip into the unknown has been held over at the Golf Mill Theatre.

CAREERS and SCHOOL GUIDE

Single-sex colleges are on the way out!

Of the nation's 2,484 institutions of higher learning only 462 are still sexually segregated - 248 for women and 214 for men.

There are many reasons for single-sex schools wanting to go co-ed. The women, more than the men, are all for it because today's women are unwilling to restrict their lives to marriage and motherhood. They want careers, too, and demand training for such careers. The so-called "finishing schools" are not offering career advantages.

ANOTHER FACTOR is the single-sex colleges are finding it harder to compete with the co-education schools. The issue is described as having moved "from the sentimental and the theoretical to one of cold, hard practicalities." The mix of men and women on the same campus is now believed to be, by school authorities, "educationally desirable," providing not only a better social life but a more stimulating intellectual environment.

A faculty committee at Princeton, in recommending admission to women, made this statement:

"Princeton would be a better university if women were admitted to the undergraduate college. We believe that for Princeton to remain an all-male institution in the face of today's evolving social system would be out of keeping with her past willingness to change with the times. . .in our opinion it would also mean that within a decade, if not sooner, Princeton's competitive position for students, for faculty and for financial support would be less strong than it is now."

"Segregation of the sexes was fully consistent with our social institutions only a generation ago; but now, in the late 1960's, it is quite simply seen as anachronistic by most college students."

On Oct. 28 Vassar announced plans to admit male students beginning in September, 1970, and to eventually have 50 per cent male enrollment boosting the number of 1,500, presently girls, to 2,400 of both sexes.

The exclusive girl's school in Vermont, Bennington College, will go fully coeducational in 1969.

WESLEYAN University at Middletown, Conn., began admitting women this fall in order to become "a more realistic reflection of the larger society."

The 111 year old Episcopal school, University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., is already preparing for admission of women. Dr. Edward McCrady, the vice chancellor, said: "The proper justification for trying to get more women is not that we are facing any sort of crisis, but that we ought to offer to the daughters of our constituency what we offer to the sons."

The 149-year old mens' institution at Hamilton, N.Y., Colgate University, is reported to be "teetering on the brink" of co-education.

Upon completion of a feasibility study, women may start coming to Franklin and Marshall College next September whilst 144-year old Lafayette College finds admission of women "educationally desirable."

Oh, yes the co-education is catching on in private high schools, and even the Boy Scouts are going to take in girls this Jan. 1 in Exploring, the Scouts' character-building program for boys from 14 to 18.

Miner in Arlington Heights, as well as one in her home, and teaches portraiture at Maine West Adult Evening School.

Acclaimed Israeli Pianist Gives Arlington Concert

"The dashing Israeli pianist, David Bar-Illan, played securely and fluently," praised The Chicago Daily News, following a pre-season concert given by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in September.

DAVID BAR-ILLAN will be heard playing Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Liszt and Chopin Thursday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in concert for the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association. The Arlington Theatre is host for the evening.

David Bar-Illan will appear at Arlington Theatre on Thursday, Nov. 21, at 8 p.m., as the artist for the second of Arlington Heights Community Concert Association's concerts of the current season.

THE EVENING'S program will include music by Mendelssohn and Liszt; Beethoven's "Appassionata"; Chopin's "First nocturne" and five of his etudes; and a one-movement sonata written by a contemporary young Israeli composer, Michael Ronen.

SINCE HIS 1960 debut with the New York Philharmonic, 38-year old David Bar-Illan has been earning press acclaim from countries around the world. The Christian Science Monitor has written: "Bar-Illan's poise, control and drive showed him to be an extremely superior performer, endowed with unusual musical intelligence," while the Washington Post urged: "The next time the name of David Bar-Illan appears even in the smallest print, make a point of getting to his recital — come snow, sleet or rain."

Arlington Heights Community Concert Association is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing fine entertainment to Arlington Heights and neighboring communities. Memberships for the 1969-70 season will be made available in March.

Christmas Concert By Festival Chorus

In the spirit of Christmas, Tchaikovsky's ballet, "The Nutcracker Suite" will be presented Dec. 8 by the Elk Grove Festival Chorus and Orchestra.

The Festival Chorus is directed by Anthony Mostardo and accompanied by Mrs. Joanne Kalina, both of whom are well known in the Northwest area for piano concerts. Mostardo is music coordinator for District 59 and principal of Claremont School in Elk Grove Village.

ORCHESTRAL accompaniment will be provided by the Elk Grove Festival Symphony, also under the direction of Mostardo.

A group from the June Rold School of Dance in Des Plaines will perform the ballet numbers of the traditional Christmas classic which appeals to young and old alike.

In addition to the "Nutcracker Suite," the Ecumenical Chorus of 60 voices will present a selection of carols, some in their native language.

THE EFFORTS OF these groups are hoped to provide a program of Yuletide cheer and cultural enrichment in two performances, 3 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village.

Proceeds from a nominal entrance donation will contribute to a scholarship fund for area music students.

Playmakers Give Comedy–Mystery

Celeste Boarini, Arlington Heights, and Sue Leadinghouse, Bensenville, are among the cast of "Double in Diamonds," a comedy-mystery presented by Playmakers Community Theatre.

The play will open the group's 1st season on Thursday, Nov. 21 at Field School, 707 N. Wisner, Park Ridge, and continue through Saturday, Nov. 2. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The production is charged with hilarious suspense as an insurance investigator brings two jewel thieves out of retirement in order to catch another jewel thief.

Tickets may be ordered by calling 631-3418.

Area Talent Has Outlet

Susan Bartz, Arlington Heights, and Marc Sannusch, Palatine, are young string players who share their talents with others of grammar school age in the Youth String Orchestra at DePaul University School of Music.

The group meets on Monday evenings, 7:30 p.m. in room 518 at 25 E. Jackson Blvd.

THE STRING orchestra, under the direction of Mary K. Rosen, is open to all children who can play the violin, viola and cello, and is the only string orchestra of its kind throughout Chicagoland.

Public performances will be given throughout the season.

Parents may contact the DePaul University School of Music at WE 9-3525 for further information.

Harper Presents Studs Terkel

Studs Terkel, Chicago author, folksong authority and radio-TV personality, will speak on Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 7:50 p.m. in Room 115 at the Elk Grove High School, sponsored by Harper College.

Terkel will discuss the effect of mass media in reporting public confrontation and dissent, illustrated by events occurring at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last August. His comments have appeared in "Law and Disorder," a single-issue publication on the convention riots.

Students and faculty will be admitted free upon presentation of identification cards to the lecture which was originally scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 13.

"ROSEMARY'S BABY" stars Mia Farrow and John Cassavetes. This trip into the unknown has been held over at the Golf Mill Theatre.

Protest Aftermath

Park Board To Control Outdoor Activity Bids

The Arlington Heights Park Board decided to approve the committee draft of a park use policy Tuesday night in which the difference between "limited" and "general" use of parks was established.

By drawing a line between limited, which was defined as indoor, controlled activity, and general use, defined as outdoor assemblies attracting crowds, the board decided it had a workable ordinance to replace the current ordinance.

Indoor activities for specific groups will be controlled by a form requesting a certain time and place and listing the individuals responsible for the group. Supt. Thomas Thornton will handle these forms as a routine matter.

OUTDOOR meeting dates will have to be requested 30 days prior to the assembly, and a checklist of references will be required. Thornton will then have the discretion to approve the request or take it to the board for approval.

In the event Thornton rejects a group's request, representatives of the group will be able to appeal his decision to the board.

In some cases, such as a recent request of the Arlington Vista homeowners association for an emergency meeting area at J. D. Flentie park, the new ordinance will prevent immediate action.

HOWEVER, GROUPS such as the Little League, with schedules made up months in advance, will merely file before the season begins and re-file every year.

The necessity to review the park use ordinance was highlighted following summer's demonstration in Pioneer Park asking for an end to the war in Viet Nam.

Gardens Street Lights on Way

Hanover Park

Street lights for the Gardens section of Hanover Park are ordered and soon will be delivered.

Residents, led by Mrs. Sally McKinney, have been asking for several months why the lights hadn't been installed. Village officials thought the lights had been ordered, but apparently they weren't.

"Let's end this discussion once and for all. The residents came to us with a legitimate complaint. The lights have been ordered. In all justice, we've taken care of the complaint. Why continue with the harassment of this board? What more do you want?" Mayor Eugene Domingue said.

MRS. McKINNEY said, "As far as I'm concerned, the matter is settled."

The board also authorized placing stop signs at the intersections of Jonquil and Laurel, Jonquil and Hollywood and Jonquil and Briarwood in the Gardens section.

No parking signs will be placed on Briar Lane since it is the only access to Irving Park Road from the subdivision. Speed limits of 20 miles an hour will be posted on the streets.

Bonds for Schools Sold at 4.86 Rate

General obligation bonds totalling $280,000 to pay for the beginning construction of Tarkington and Longfellow schools in Dist. 21 were sold at an interest rate of 4.86 per cent Thursday evening to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago.

Dist. 21 Atty. Everett Lewy expressed pleasure that the interest ate is below the expected 5 per cent and that there were five bids submitted for the bonds.

LEWY TOLD school board members that a $60 premium would be exempt from the interest on the Continental Bank purchase.

He said the number of bids for the bonds had increased, which gave the district a better range of percentages. Lewy told trustees he had sent out 150 requests for bids.

The next-lowest bidder for the bonds was the LaSalle National Bank of Chicago, which offered 4.953 per cent with no premium exempt.

Other bidders were the Northern Trust Co., which required 4.97410 per cent with a $1 premium; Channer-Newman Securities Co. which bid 4.988 per cent with a $327.60 premium; and McDougal and Condon, Inc., with the highest offer of 5.0137 per cent with a $100 premium.

Hebrew Board Meets Nov. 24

A Board of Directors meeting for the newly organized Hebrew congregation in Buffalo Grove is scheduled for Nov. 24.

Board members of the Congregation Beth Judea will meet in the home of Irv Edelstein, 628 Elmwood Drive, Buffalo Grove. Anyone interested in helping to organize the new congregation is asked to call Edelstein at 537-6628.

Church Group Sets Book Fair Nov. 24, Dec. 1

The Christian education committee of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Prospect Heights, is sponsoring a Christmas book fair at the church Nov. 24 and Dec. 1 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Richard Archambault of Des Plaines is in charge of the event.

Featured will be youth books on a variety of Christian subjects, and orders will be taken for hymnals and other religious volumes. John Hanson of Prospect Heights is the chairman of the Christian education committee.

Elks Donate $1,350 for Children

The Arlington Heights Elks recently presented three checks totaling $1,350 to the Illinois Elks Assn's. Crippled Children's Commission.

The gifts followed the initiation of 22 new members, in honor of the annual visit of District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler, Francis V. Le Mieux.

Program in Arts Set for PTA Meeting

"All About the Arts" is the title of a program to be presented by Charles E. Stegeman at the regular meeting of the Jack London Parent Teachers Assn. at 8 p.m. today.

Stegeman, a Wheeling resident and instructor at the Art Institute in Chicago, has lectured on the history of art to Jack London students, as well as to students attending other Dist. 21 schools, under the auspices of the Parent Art League.

PERIODS OF art history will be illustrated for the parents with an explanation and examples from the various periods. In addition, Stegeman will suggest trips for students and will give a progress report on the Prent Art League's efforts to acquire prints of well-known paintings for the corridors of the schools.

Students are welcome to accompany parents to the meeting being held at the London gymnasium, 1001 W. Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Refreshments following the program will be served by the hospitality committee; co-chairmen are Mrs. Philip Gardner and Mrs. J. J. Stiller.

Village Balks at Spending $85,000 for Dahl Building

Hanover Park

Until a second appraisal is made in writing, the Hanover Park village board will refuse to spend $85,000 to purchase a building for the public works department.

Village Pres. Eugene Domingue urged the board to proceed with the purchase Thursday, but they wouldn't buy it.

They did approve a motion authorizing Domingue and village attorney Richard Husted to draw up a contract with the seller and present it at next week's meeting.

An exasperated Domingue said, "I won't take anymore abuse on this. I won't discuss it any further. You let me know when you're ready to act."

THE BUILDING is located on Jensen Boulevard in the industrial park. It is owned by Barney Dahl, a local homebuilder who until recently owed the village over $10,000 in late tap-on fees.

Domingue assured residents and trustees that a list of faults that Dahl will correct will be included in the contract.

Trustee Ed VanCott said that contrary to rumors the building was not offered to the village several years ago at a price of $30,000.

Resident Henry Kwiatowski, who said he has a real estate salesman license, questioned if the building was worth $85,000. In March Dahl listed the building with Kole real estate at $66,000.

Domingue said prices in the area have increased since 3-H announced definite plans for the shopping center across the road. "And we can't build a comparable building for $85,000," Domingue said.

One woman said, "It looks like the village will buy this despite our animosity towards Dahl. The least he could do is give us a good price."

REV. DAVID BUGH asked, "Has anyone checked on what's available at this price. Streamwood built one cheaper."

Kwiatowski suggested sealed bids would be in order. Trustee Gordon Jensen said, "You don't get sealed bids on real estate."

The village board approved a motion by Trustee VanCott to give Domingue a vote of confidence.

"I appreciate a vote of confidence, but I'm not satisfied with the motion. I think we should buy it now," Domingue said.

Domingue said possibly the police department could be moved into the mason and brick at a later date. "I think this building is worth the price. We need it," Domingue said.

Two Hurt In Mishap

Two persons were injured Wednesday, neither seriously, in an auto accident at the corner of Gregory and Rand Road in Mount Prospect.

According to police, Mary Herrmann, 2404 E. Gregory, Arlington Heights, was stopped on Rand Road at Gregory when a vehicle driven by Theodore Tweet, 23 Jill Peak, Dundee, crashed into the rear of her car.

Both were taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment of minor injuries and later released.

Tweet was charged with failure to reduce speed and is slated to appear in court at Mount Prospect Dec. 18.

Shoplifting Charge Placed Against Two

Two 18-year old Libertyville women were arrested this week and charged with shoplifting dresses from Carson Pirie Scott and Co. at Randhurst Shopping Center.

The accused are Raylene M. Lawrence and Marrily J. Stone. According to police, the women were caught stuffing dresses into shopping bags by a store security agent, who signed a complaint against them. The two dresses they allegedly were trying to shoplift were valued at about $20 each.

The women, who were later released on $1,000 bond, are scheduled to appear in District Court at Mount Prospect Dec. 5.

G. D. Burgesser Wrote Articles For 'Today'

The late George D. Burgesser, 16-G Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, wrote the daily devotional pages in the current issue of "Today," (Nov. 21 to 30), one of the oldest Protestant devotional magazines.

THE ARTICLE focuses on the final chapter of a letter written by Apostle Paul to Philippians.

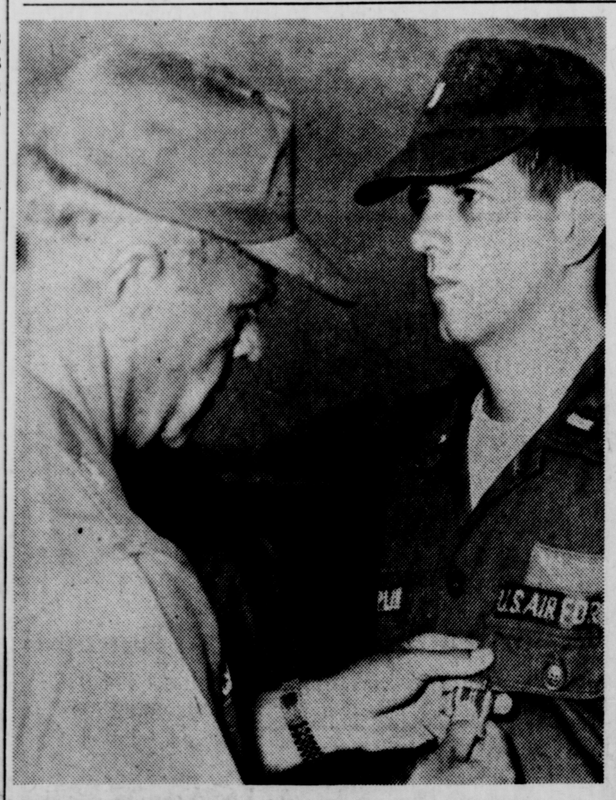
Burgesser was employed for 23 years as a special agent of the Internal Revenue Service and before that was an accountant and auditor. He was a member of St. Philips Episcopal Church in Palatine.

Cash, Check Stolen From Tavern

James Sobcynski, owner of the El Rando tavern in Mount Prospect, reported $110 in cash and a $20 check was stolen last week from his bar.

The money, he said, had been placed in a cigar box, inside an empty beer case.

Police said there was no sign of forcible entry and that $56 in the cash register was not touched.



ARLINGTON HEIGHTS RESIDENT, First Lt. William L. Kopplin, is decorated for bravery at Vung Tau AB, Viet Nam, by Maj. Gen. Burl W. McLaughlin, 834th Air Division commander.

St. John's Las Vegas Night Set

Everyone's favorite bookie, "Slippery Sam," and his ever-loving "Diamond Lil" will be busy selling daily double and quinella tickets during Las Vegas Night, Nov. 22 at St. John's Parish Hall, 513 Parkside Circle, Streamwood.

In addition to Las Vegas games and racing films, "Wild Bill" Nocchi and "Honest John" McConnell will be horse-trading.

Highlight of the evening will come when a "big spending" couple are awarded an all-expense weekend trip to Las Vegas, Nev.

ALL PROCEEDS from the event, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., will go to the church's building fund.

For tickets and information contact Harold Stanton, 203 Streamwood Blvd., 289-1517.

Cardinal Assn. Meets Tonight

Elgin

The Elgin Cardinal Assn. for Retarded Children will meet tonight at Beverly Lake School on Rt. 72 and Beverly Road in Dundee, 8 p.m.

Speakers will be Mrs. Marion Conde, special education instructor at Northern Illinois University, and Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, past president of the DeKalb County Assn. for Retarded Children.

Anyone interested in the welfare of retarded children is welcome to attend the meeting.

Hersey Parent Teacher Group Sets up Tours

The Hersey High School Teacher Parent Council will sponsor its first open house on Thursday, Nov. 21.

Registration will begin at 7:30 p.m., with background music provided by the high school band.

At 8 p.m. the business meeting will begin, and it will be followed by visitation to classrooms. The council recommends comfortable walking shoes for the tour.

A social hour in the cafeteria will conclude the program.

TIMOTHY W. MATHER, ceramics instructor, shows three pieces of stoneware he has created for the Nov. 20 art sale and auction at Illinois State University. Looking on is Marie Kertay, junior art major from Arlington Heights and president of Theta Alpha Tau, honorary art fraternity. Miss Kertay's group is assisting in the over-all plan for the auction

Streamwood

A play, "The Campbells are Coming," will be presented at Tefft Junior High School in Streamwood this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The cast includes 10 Tefft students who have worked seven weeks on the play, according to Gene Czaplinski, director. Tickets cost 50 cents per person and are available at the door. A nursery will be provided for young children.

Fiction Tops Interest of Library Patrons

Fiction holds a 2-to-1 popularity ratio among adult patrons of Rolling Meadows Public Library, according to October circulation figures.

Adults withdrew 2,148 fiction books during the month, and 1,161 nonfiction works.

Children also patronized the story-book shelves in their section, reading 3,632 fiction books. Of the 1,734 nonfiction books the youngsters withdrew, 350 pertained to science, a field of study the adults shunned in favor of instruction in the useful arts, fine arts, literature and biography.

BESIDES science, youngsters boned up on social sciences, useful and fine arts, history and biography and general works.

Adults made use of the periodicals to which the library subscribes, and also withdrew a number of records.

Total circulation for the month was 8,675 works.

During the month there were 116 new borrowers added, 63 adult and 53 children.

Install Water Lines on Elm Street

Hanover Park

Water lines will be installed on Elm Street in Hanover Park at a cost of $1,628. Elm Street is in the Grant's Highway subdivision of the village, which has no public improvements.

The village authorized the water lines now because a storm sewer is being put in at Ontarioville School. "If these lines aren't put in now, the cost will be much greater later," village Pres. Eugene Domingue said.

RESIDENTS may tap onto the lines by paying the standard fte.

Elm Street residents and former village trustee Raymond Morrison said, "We're getting half a package. We should also be getting sewers."

Disagreeing with Morrison, Trustee Gordon Jensen said the water lines will benefit the homeowners.

Village Balks at Spending $85,000 for Dahl Building

Hanover Park

Until a second appraisal is made in writing, the Hanover Park village board will refuse to spend $85,000 to purchase a building for the public works department.

Village Pres. Eugene Domingue urged the board to proceed with the purchase Thursday, but they wouldn't buy it.

They did approve a motion authorizing Domingue and village attorney Richard Husted to draw up a contract with t e seller and present it at next week's meeting.

An exasperated Domingue said, "I won't take anymore abuse on this. I won't discuss it any further. You let me know when you're ready to act."

THE BUILDING is located on Jensen Boulevard in the industrial park. It is owned by Barney Dahl, a local homebuilder who until recently owed the village over $10,000 in late tap-on fees.

Domingue assured residents and trustees that a list of faults that Dahl will correct will be included in the contract.

Trustee Ed VanCott said that contrary to rumors the building was not offered to the village several years ago at a price of $30,000.

Resident Henry Kwiatowski, who said he has a real estate salesman license, questioned if the building was worth $85,000. In March Dahl listed the building with Kole real estate at $66,000.

Domingue said prices in the area have increased since 3-H announced definite plans for the shopping center across the road. "And we can't build a comparable building for $85,000," Domingue said.

One woman said, "It looks like the village will buy this despite our animosity towards Dahl. The least he could do is give us a good price."

REV. DAVID BUGH asked, "Has anyone checked on what's available at this price. Streamwood built one cheaper."

Kwiatowski suggested sealed bids would be in order. Trustee Gordon Jensen said, "You don't get sealed bids on real estate."

The village board approved a motion by Trustee VanCott to give Domingue a vote of confidence.

"I appreciate a vote of confidence, but I'm not satisfied with the motion. I think we should buy it now," Domingue said.

Domingue said possibly the police department could be moved into the mason and brick at a later date. "I think this building is worth the price. We need it," Domingue said.

Protest Aftermath

Park Board To Control Outdoor Activity Bids

The Arlington Heights Park Board decided to approve the committee draft of a park use policy Tuesday night in which the difference between "limited" and "general" use of parks was established.

By drawing a line between limited, which was defined as indoor, controlled activity, and general use, defined as outdoor assemblies attracting crowds, the board decided it had a workable ordinance to replace the current ordinance.

Indoor activities for specific groups will be controlled by a form requesting a certain time and place and listing the individuals responsible for the group. Supt. Thomas Thornton will handle these forms as a routine matter.

OUTDOOR meeting dates will have to be requested 30 days prior to the assembly, and a checklist of references will be required. Thornton will then have the discretion to approve the request or take it to the board for approval.

In the event Thornton rejects a group's request, representatives of the group will be able to appeal his decision to the board.

In some cases, such as a recent request of the Arlington Vista homeowners association for an emergency meeting area at J. D. Flentie park, the new ordinance will prevent immediate action.

HOWEVER, GROUPS such as the Little League, with schedules made up months in advance, will merely file before the season begins and re-file every year.

The necessity to review the park use ordinance was highlighted following summer's demonstration in Pioneer Park asking for an end to the war in Viet Nam.

Gardens Street Lights on Way

Hanover Park

Street lights for the Gardens section of Hanover Park are ordered and soon will be delivered.

Residents, led by Mrs. Sally McKinney, have been asking for several months why the lights hadn't been installed. Village officials thought the lights had been ordered, but apparently they weren't.

"Let's end this discussion once and for all. The residents came to us with a legitimate complaint. The lights have been ordered. In all justice, we've taken care of the complaint. Why continue with the harassment of this board? What more do you want?" Mayor Eugene Domingue said.

MRS. McKINNEY said, "As far as I'm concerned, the matter is settled."

The board also authorized placing stop signs at the intersections of Jonquil and Laurel, Jonquil and Hollywood and Jonquil and Briarwood in the Gardens section.

No parking signs will be placed on Briar Lane since it is the only access to Irving Park Road from the subdivision. Speed limits of 20 miles an hour will be posted on the streets.

Bonds for Schools Sold at 4.86 Rate

General obligation bonds totalling $280,000 to pay for the beginning construction of Tarkington and Longfellow schools in Dist. 21 were sold at an interest rate of 4.86 per cent Thursday evening to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago.

Dist. 21 Atty. Everett Lewy expressed pleasure that the interest ate is below the expected 5 per cent and that there were five bids submitted for the bonds.

LEWY TOLD school board members that a $60 premium would be exempt from the interest on the Continental Bank purchase.

He said the number of bids for the bonds had increased, which gave the district a better range of percentages. Lewy told trustees he had sent out 150 requests for bids.

The next-lowest bidder for the bonds was the LaSalle National Bank of Chicago, which offered 4.953 per cent with no premium exempt.

Other bidders were the Northern Trust Co., which required 4.97410 per cent with a $1 premium; Channer-Newman Securities Co. which bid 4.988 per cent with a $327.60 premium; and McDougal and Condon, Inc., with the highest offer of 5.0137 per cent with a $100 premium.

G. D. Burgesser Wrote Articles For 'Today'

The late George D. Burgesser, 16-G Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, wrote the daily devotional pages in the current issue of "Today," (Nov. 21 to 30), one of the oldest Protestant devotional magazines.

THE ARTICLE focuses on the final chapter of a letter written by Apostle Paul to Philippians.

Burgesser was employed for 23 years as a special agent of the Internal Revenue Service and before that was an accountant and auditor. He was a member of St. Philips Episcopal Church in Palatine.

Two Hurt In Mishap

Two persons were injured Wednesday, neither seriously, in an auto accident at the corner of Gregory and Rand Road in Mount Prospect.

According to police, Mary Herrmann, 2404 E. Gregory, Arlington Heights, was stopped on Rand Road at Gregory when a vehicle driven by Theodore Tweet, 23 Jill Peak, Dundee, crashed into the rear of her car.

Both were taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment of minor injuries and later released.

Tweet was charged with failure to reduce speed and is slated to appear in court at Mount Prospect Dec. 18.

Shoplifting Charge Placed Against Two

Two 18-year old Libertyville women were arrested this week and charged with shoplifting dresses from Carson Pirie Scott and Co. at Randhurst Shopping Center.

The accused are Raylene M. Lawrence and Marrily J. Stone. According to police, the women were caught stuffing dresses into shopping bags by a store security agent, who signed a complaint against them. The two dresses they allegedly were trying to shoplift were valued at about $20 each.

The women, who were later released on $1,000 bond, are scheduled to appear in District Court at Mount Prospect Dec. 5.

Cash, Check Stolen From Tavern

James Sobcynski, owner of the El Rando tavern in Mount Prospect, reported $110 in cash and a $20 check was stolen last week from his bar.

The money, he said, had been placed in a cigar box, inside an empty beer case.

Police said there was no sign of forcible entry and that $56 in the cash register was not touched.

Program in Arts Set for PTA Meeting

"All About the Arts" is the title of a program to be presented by Charles E. Stegeman at the regular meeting of the Jack London Parent Teachers Assn. at 8 p.m. today.

Stegeman, a Wheeling resident and instructor at the Art Institute in Chicago, has lectured on the history of art to Jack London students, as well as to students attending other Dist. 21 schools, under the auspices of the Parent Art League.

PERIODS OF art history will be illustrated for the parents with an explanation and examples from the various periods.

In addition, Stegeman will suggest trips for students and will give a progress report on the Prent Art League's efforts to acquire prints of well-known paintings for the corridors of the schools.

Students are welcome to accompany parents to the meeting being held at the London gymnasium, 1001 W. Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Refreshments following the program will be served by the hospitality committee; co-chairmen are Mrs. Philip Gardner and Mrs. J. J. Stiller.

Nixon Plot Asks More Questions

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK UPI — "I want to report a plot to kell Nixon," said the accented voice on the line to the Police Communications Bureau.

The result of that telephone call was the swift arrest Nov. 9 of a Yemeni immigrant and his two sons and the emergency of a skimpy but sinister silhouette of conspiracy that has shocked a nation already revolted by three major political assassinations in five years.

If the dark plot to shoot and kill President-elect Richard M. Nixon can be proved-and law enforcement officials believe it can-then the American public must again face a question never solved in the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy:

Was the conspiracy directed from outside the United States in an effort to divide and weaken the nation or from within by dissident elements with the same aim or was it only the concoction of a lonely frustated individual, or individuals, with a sick mind?

THE ARREST OF Ahmed Namer, 43, and his sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 18, in an obscure flat in Brooklyn's East New York area underscored for most Americans the frightful responsibility of the Secret Service and other federal and local police in protecting Nixon now and after his inauguration.

Four presidents — Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Kennedy — were assassinated in office and attempts were made against the lives of Jackson and Truman. Attempts also were made against Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Kennedy during the periods they were president-elect.

Perhaps not until the trial of the impassive, faintly surly Namers will much be known of who they really are and what they really plotted. To date we know that a friend or acquaintance of theirs, about 36 years of age and bearing an Arab name, reported to police that they approached him to join a conspiracy to kill Nixon, apparently as the marksman because the informant is known as an excellent shot.

IN THE WORDS OF the indictment, the trio did "solicit, request, command, importune and otherwise attempt" to cause the mystery witness to take part in the assassination of which the Namers "did arm themselves with two rifles and a quantity of ammunition."

It is obvious that this man was not motivated as the Namers must have been if they did indeed conspire to murder Nixon. That he did not keep knowledge of the plot to himself out of fear may also indicate that he did not feel there was anyone who would avenge the Namer's arrest — that is, any powerful masterminds behind the plot.

However, the police are continuing to provide the informant with utmost protection in the belief that there are some persons of Arabic origin in Brooklyn who know who he is. If the Namers were motivated by Nixon's pro-Israeli statements during his campaign, there may be other Yemenis who might avenge them out of deep tribal feeling that persists in their primitive homeland and wherever they live abroad.

SPECULATION HAS been rife that because the Namers are Arabic there might be some connection between them and Sirhan B. Sirhan, a disappointed would-be jockey who is accused of the Los Angeles assassination of Robert Kennedy last June. This is not yet under investigation, according to Los Angeles officials, but it probably will be. The rumors persists that one of the Namers visited Los Angeles earlier this year.

According to some accounts, the senior Namer was just a simple cultivator of qat, a narcotic plant, back in his village of Thou Einimer.

According to others he was a member of the Aden (now South Yemen) secret police before he emigrated 13 years ago to the United States where he has become a naturalized citizen. One law enforcement officer has admitted there is reason to believe Namer was "perhaps a spy before or after he came to this country."

Acting Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Elliott Golden, who has given out little hard information, said the accused-all low paid garment district workers-offered the mystery informant "a large sum of money" and that he hopes to find out where it came from. He said many letters from "foreign contacts" were found in the Namer apartment, an indication that Namer was not just getting letters from his wife and three daughters he left behind in Yemen.

ASSISTANT DIST. Atty. Harold Rosenbaum fleshed out the picture a little more by disclosing that the defendants had "strong ties abroad" that gave the case a "very serious" aspect. He said law enforcement officials including the Secret Service and the U.S. Attorney General's office were interested in "many, many" facets of the Namers' activities.

So far federal authorities have stayed in the background although assassination legislation enacted by Congress after President Kennedy's slaying in 1963 protects the President-elect as well as the incumbent and provides for a sentence of life imprisonment on conviction of conspiracy. If the Namers are convicted on all four counts each of the indictment returned by a Brooklyn grand jury Wednesday, the maximum penalty under New York State law would be 24 years.

In fact, the U.S. Attorney's office appears to be moving very cautiously even though Golden rallied enough evidence to convince a grand jury to indict the Namers. Since touchy Arab-Israeli relations are involved, federal intervention now might blow the case out of proportion.

NIXON'S NAME was pointedly left out of the indictment, an omission which Rosenbaum laid to not wanting to "soup up the case so the defendants can get a fair trial."

Yemeni U.N. Ambassador Mohsin Alaini has counseled caution on the grounds that the charge leveled at the Namers might have resulted from bad blood between them and the informant.

Alaini said it was not unusual for guns to have been found in the Namers' apartment because "In Yemen, everyone has arms."

AT THE SAME time Sheik Al-Haj Daoud Ahmed Faisal, spiritual leader of the 5,000 Middle Eastern Moslems living in Brooklyn, said that even if the Namers did plot to kill Nixon "they should be released and sent back to Yemen.

"All they were trying to do was protect their homeland," he said referring to Nixon's campaign pledge to seek peace in the Middle East by seeing that Israel gets a "technological military margin to more than offset her hostile neighbors' numerical superiority."

G. T. Mehdi, Secretary General of the 20,000-member Action Committee on American-Arab Relations, said the indictments were "utterly preposterous" and demanded that all law enforcement officials, judges and jurors with Zionist leanings be disqualified from the case and the trial be moved from New York, home of 1.7 million Jews.

"There was no conspiracy to assassinate Nixon, rather it seems that there is a conspiracy to assassinate the Arab character in America," Mehdi said.

Still in custody pending a hearing on charges of illegal possession of a dangerous weapon was a 30-year-old Egyptian, Edward Hotter, who was arrested five blocks from the Nixon apartment shortly after the election. He was carrying a loaded rifle and a switchblade knife.

President-Elects Know Danger

by MIKE FEINSILVER

WASHINGTON UPI - On Jan. 6, Hubert H. Humphrey, acting in his constitutional capacity as president of the Senate, will open certificates from the electros of the 50 states in the presence of Congress and declare that Richard M. Nixon has been elected president of the United States — if all goes well.

Contemplation of the course of possible events if all does not go well inevitably arises from such news as the arrest on Nov. 8 of three Yemini Arabs on charges of plotting to assassinate Nixon.

No president-elect has ever died or been killed, but attempts were made on the lives of John F. Kennedy and Franklin D. Roosevelt between their election and inauguration.

President-elect Abraham Lincoln was under such threat that he was spirited into Washington on a re-routed train while cloaked in woman's garb to escape detection by would-be assassins.

THE CONSTITUTION is clear about the course of events if a president-elect dies after his selection by the Electoral College but before his inauguration. The 20th Amendment, adopted in 1933, provides, "if, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the president, the president-elect shall have died, the vice president-elect shall become president."

But technically there is no president-elect until after the electors of the 50 states cast their ballots on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December — this year, Dec. 16.

And since precedent is absent and the constitution silent about what would happen if the winner of a presidential election dies before the electors cast their ballots, the course is by no means clear and the avenue to some high-stakes politicking for the presidency is wide open.

The electors of the winning party would be free to vote for whomever they pleased.

SOME ELECTORS — those of 15 states — are directed by state law to vote for the candidate under whose name they were selected. But there has always been controversy over whether state laws can actually bind the electors. Since the Constitution provides that the electors are to vote by ballot, its implication is that they are free agents. From time to time, a handful of electors have voted independent of the election results without penalty or causing disruption.

Both political parties at their conventions routinely adopt resolutions enabling the parties' National Committees to fill vacancies in their presidential tickets.

Presumably, if a president-elect or a vice president-elect or both died between the election and the mid-Decmeber meeting of the Electoral College, their party's National Committee would select a new nominee or nominees.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE — in each party composed of more than 100 members — might choose to elevate the vice presidential candidate to first place.

The committee's meeting could very well turn into a battle for the presidency far more vicious than any convention. The new nominee might easily be someone other than the candidate's choice of a running mate.

Nor would the nominee who emerged necessarily command the loyalty of the party's electors. They might split their votes in several directions.

Some might vote for the vice presidential nominee on the grounds that he, after all, was elected to national office by the vote of the people.

OTHERS MIGHT defect from party lines and cast their ballots for the opposition party's presidential candidate on the grounds that he, after all, was the presidential choice of a great number of voters.

Those who felt bound by law or custom might vote for the deceased candidate. In a close election, the likelihood of an Electoral College deadlock, with no man winning the required 270 electoral votes, seems strong.

That would throw the election into the House of Representatives which would be required to choose from among the three candidates with the most electoral votes. In such an election, each state delegation has one vote, to be cast as the majority of its members decide.

On Nov. 6, the Republicans won control of 19 state delegations, five were evenly split and the Democrats won 26 — the minimum needed to win the presidency in a vote of the House.

BUT IN THE FIVE Deep South states won by George C. Wallace, a number of congressional candidates vowed to vote in the House, if it came to that, for the presidential candidate who carried their districts. All of these states have Democratic-controlled House delegations.

With bargaining again in play, an accommodation possibly might be reached in the House to enable one of the presidential candidates to win the required 26 delegations.

If the House deadlocked and the Electoral College had given 270 votes to a vice presidential candidate he would assume the presidency as acting president under the terms of the Constitution's 20th Amendment.

The amendment says, "if a president shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term . . . then the vice president-elect shall act as president until a president shall have qualified."

IN THE EVENT of the death of a vice presidential candidate on the winning ticket, the same process would come into play, with the National Committee of the winning party designating a candidate, the Electoral College voting and, if the electors fail to cast 270 votes for one man, the senate choosing a vice president from the two candidates with the most electoral votes.

With the Senate under heavy Democratic control this year, the Democratic candidate would be the Senate's likely choice.

In the event that both the president-elect and the vice president-elect died after the meeting of the Electoral College, Congress would have a choice of actions. It could either allow the Succession Act of 1947 to take effect, making the speaker of the House the acting president or, under the 20th Amendment, it could pass new legislation filling the vacancy some other way — perhaps by providing for a new election.

The constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., providing for the abolition of the Electoral College and the direct election of the president by popular vote also deals with the crisis arising from the death of the winner of a presidential election by giving Congress authority to establish a procedure.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Nixon Plot Asks More Questions

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK UPI — "I want to report a plot to kell Nixon," said the accented voice on the line to the Police Communications Bureau.

The result of that telephone call was the swift arrest Nov. 9 of a Yemeni immigrant and his two sons and the emergency of a skimpy but sinister silhouette of conspiracy that has shocked a nation already revolted by three major political assassinations in five years.

If the dark plot to shoot and kill President-elect Richard M. Nixon can be proved-and law enforcement officials believe it can-then the American public must again face a question never solved in the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy:

Was the conspiracy directed from outside the United States in an effort to divide and weaken the nation or from within by dissident elements with the same aim or was it only the concoction of a lonely frustated individual, or individuals, with a sick mind?

THE ARREST OF Ahmed Namer, 43, and his sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 18, in an obscure flat in Brooklyn's East New York area underscored for most Americans the frightful responsibility of the Secret Service and other federal and local police in protecting Nixon now and after his inauguration.

Four presidents — Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Kennedy — were assassinated in office and attempts were made against the lives of Jackson and Truman. Attempts also were made against Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Kennedy during the periods they were president-elect.

Perhaps not until the trial of the impassive, faintly surly Namers will much be known of who they really are and what they really plotted. To date we know that a friend or acquaintance of theirs, about 36 years of age and bearing an Arab name, reported to police that they approached him to join a conspiracy to kill Nixon, apparently as the marksman because the informant is known as an excellent shot.

IN THE WORDS OF the indictment, the trio did "solicit, request, command, importune and otherwise attempt" to cause the mystery witness to take part in the assassination of which the Namers "did arm themselves with two rifles and a quantity of ammunition."

It is obvious that this man was not motivated as the Namers must have been if they did indeed conspire to murder Nixon. That he did not keep knowledge of the plot to himself out of fear may also indicate that he did not feel there was anyone who would avenge the Namer's arrest — that is, any powerful masterminds behind the plot.

However, the police are continuing to provide the informant with utmost protection in the belief that there are some persons of Arabic origin in Brooklyn who know who he is. If the Namers were motivated by Nixon's pro-Israeli statements during his campaign, there may be other Yemenis who might avenge them out of deep tribal feeling that persists in their primitive homeland and wherever they live abroad.

SPECULATION HAS been rife that because the Namers are Arabic there might be some connection between them and Sirhan B. Sirhan, a disappointed would-be jockey who is accused of the Los Angeles assassination of Robert Kennedy last June. This is not yet under investigation, according to Los Angeles officials, but it probably will be. The rumors persists that one of the Namers visited Los Angeles earlier this year.

According to some accounts, the senior Namer was just a simple cultivator of qat, a narcotic plant, back in his village of Thou Einimer.

According to others he was a member of the Aden (now South Yemen) secret police before he emigrated 13 years ago to the United States where he has become a naturalized citizen. One law enforcement officer has admitted there is reason to believe Namer was "perhaps a spy before or after he came to this country."

Acting Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Elliott Golden, who has given out little hard information, said the accused-all low paid garment district workers-offered the mystery informant "a large sum of money" and that he hopes to find out where it came from. He said many letters from "foreign contacts" were found in the Namer apartment, an indication that Namer was not just getting letters from his wife and three daughters he left behind in Yemen.

ASSISTANT DIST. Atty. Harold Rosenbaum fleshed out the picture a little more by disclosing that the defendants had "strong ties abroad" that gave the case a "very serious" aspect. He said law enforcement officials including the Secret Service and the U.S. Attorney General's office were interested in "many, many" facets of the Namers' activities.

So far federal authorities have stayed in the background although assassination legislation enacted by Congress after President Kennedy's slaying in 1963 protects the President-elect as well as the incumbent and provides for a sentence of life imprisonment on conviction of conspiracy. If the Namers are convicted on all four counts each of the indictment returned by a Brooklyn grand jury Wednesday, the maximum penalty under New York State law would be 24 years.

In fact, the U.S. Attorney's office appears to be moving very cautiously even though Golden rallied enough evidence to convince a grand jury to indict the Namers. Since touchy Arab-Israeli relations are involved, federal intervention now might blow the case out of proportion.

NIXON'S NAME was pointedly left out of the indictment, an omission which Rosenbaum laid to not wanting to "soup up the case so the defendants can get a fair trial."

Yemeni U.N. Ambassador Mohsin Alaini has counseled caution on the grounds that the charge leveled at the Namers might have resulted from bad blood between them and the informant.

Alaini said it was not unusual for guns to have been found in the Namers' apartment because "In Yemen, everyone has arms."

AT THE SAME time Sheik Al-Haj Daoud Ahmed Faisal, spiritual leader of the 5,000 Middle Eastern Moslems living in Brooklyn, said that even if the Namers did plot to kill Nixon "they should be released and sent back to Yemen.

"All they were trying to do was protect their homeland," he said referring to Nixon's campaign pledge to seek peace in the Middle East by seeing that Israel gets a "technological military margin to more than offset her hostile neighbors' numerical superiority."

G. T. Mehdi, Secretary General of the 20,000-member Action Committee on American-Arab Relations, said the indictments were "utterly preposterous" and demanded that all law enforcement officials, judges and jurors with Zionist leanings be disqualified from the case and the trial be moved from New York, home of 1.7 million Jews.

"There was no conspiracy to assassinate Nixon, rather it seems that there is a conspiracy to assassinate the Arab character in America," Mehdi said.

Still in custody pending a hearing on charges of illegal possession of a dangerous weapon was a 30-year-old Egyptian, Edward Hotter, who was arrested five blocks from the Nixon apartment shortly after the election. He was carrying a loaded rifle and a switchblade knife.

President-Elects Know Danger

by MIKE FEINSILVER

WASHINGTON UPI - On Jan. 6, Hubert H. Humphrey, acting in his constitutional capacity as president of the Senate, will open certificates from the electros of the 50 states in the presence of Congress and declare that Richard M. Nixon has been elected president of the United States — if all goes well.

Contemplation of the course of possible events if all does not go well inevitably arises from such news as the arrest on Nov. 8 of three Yemini Arabs on charges of plotting to assassinate Nixon.

No president-elect has ever died or been killed, but attempts were made on the lives of John F. Kennedy and Franklin D. Roosevelt between their election and inauguration.

President-elect Abraham Lincoln was under such threat that he was spirited into Washington on a re-routed train while cloaked in woman's garb to escape detection by would-be assassins.

THE CONSTITUTION is clear about the course of events if a president-elect dies after his selection by the Electoral College but before his inauguration. The 20th Amendment, adopted in 1933, provides, "if, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the president, the president-elect shall have died, the vice president-elect shall become president."

But technically there is no president-elect until after the electors of the 50 states cast their ballots on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December — this year, Dec. 16.

The Way We See It

We Can't Quit Resources Fight

Conservation came to a crossroads Nov. 5.

The junction was reached — by voters' decision — in both Illinois and Washington, D. C., and the critical measure now is the direction that will be traveled in the name of preserving our natural legacy.

The crisis is already at hand in Illinois, where the conservationists and their allies were staggered with the defeat of the Natural Resources Development referendum.

The measure is a little more subtle in Washington, where the depth of concern will be dictated by action yet to come. It will revolve around cabinet choices to be made by President-elect Richard M. Nixon, who will be replacing Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall and Agriculture Secretary Orville E. Freeman.

On both levels, state and national, the cause of conservation is in a balance that grows more delicate daily as the land fills with people.

Illinois is at the point where the scale cannot be allowed to tip any more. After years of neglect that allowed its air to be poisoned, its water to be befouled and its open land to vanish, the state moved to right the wrongs with a bold flourish in the billion-dollar referendum.

The bid failed, and the blame is being variously assigned to rural voters who teamed up against the bond issue, to the issue's promoters for not selling it more strenuously and for drawing it improperly in the beginning, and to the requirement that a simple majority would not be enough to pass the issue.

There is simply no time to lament what has been lost, or why.

The needs — to clear the air and water, and to lay away some green space / are so imperative that new thinking and new action are the only recourse.

The challenge will fall most heavily, as it should, to Governor-elect Richard B. Ogilvie, who in his campaign decried Illinois' woeful record in fighting pollution and disappearance of public land.

He has the chance now, immediately, to match campaign oratory with deed, to rekindle the enthusiasm that had been built for action, to press ahead with a program and the enforcement to give Illinois citizens clean air, clean water and the land on which to enjoy both.

To President-elect Nixon, the challenge is to set a tempo, to establish a priority for conservation that Congress and the American people can easily read. He can do it most directly in the choices he makes to replace Udall and Freeman.

Replacement of both, after eight years of service since appointment by President John F. Kennedy, will not be easy.

Under Udall, the conservation idea had not been granted such attention and sensitivity since the days of Teddy Roosevelt. And under Freeman, whose office also oversees the national forests and grasslands, there came new ideas and laws to make positive recreational use of idle farmlands.

Conservation, on the federal level, takes constant vigilance. It is a battle against those who would ravage the land for private gain and a struggle with a Congress that is rarely conservationist by sentiment, and too much given to the temptation for pork-barrel projects.

The fight requires not only a President who will give the cause priority, but men under him who are battlers and will champion it past heavy lobby interference and massive public indifference.

It is an American tradition that we ignore our natural environment until it has been defiled, littered and stripped beyond recall. The threat is all the greater now, and it falls to Richard Ogilvie and Richard Nixon to lead, and not watch.

Looking Around

On a hunch, Libby O'Brien bought thousands of old iron street signs dumped in a New York lot and paid $478 for them. She is sorting them out and sells them for as much as $50 each, no less than $10, mainly to New Yorkers who want the old sign of the street where they were born. Business, says Libby, is very good.

Leo Horn was studying a book on the Fundamentals of "Criminal Investigation" and left it in his car, parked in Houston. He reported to police that somebody stole his "criminal" book.

Smith Island, Maryland, in Chesapeake Bay, has its own problem with hot-rodders. There are only 100 cars on the island, but also there is only one paved road and you can walk its entire length in 15 minutes. But youngsters like to zoom around just the same and although the speed limit is 10 miles per hour the two policemen on the island don't have cars.

A Man To Watch

by RUSSELL BATH

The Illinois electorate is alive and healthy.

Want proof? Just take a look at the results in the races for governor and lieutenant governor.

Richard B. Ogilvie rang up a hefty 57 per cent statewide in his successful bid to unseat incumbent Democratic Gov. Samuel Shapiro.

BATH

But Illinois voters went against the grain in electing Shapiro's running mate, State Sen. Paul Simon (D-Troy), to the No. 2 spot in the statehouse.

This is a tribute not only to Simon but to the electorate as well.

The voters saw the two best men for the job of running the state and elected them. And never mind the arguments raised on editorial pages (this one included) and by the parties that the governor and his right-hand man should be of the same political allegiance.

Ironically, Simon, in the last regular session of the Legislature, introduced a bill whereby candidates for the two offices would run as a team. But he let the bill die when the assembly passed a resolution calling for a state Constitutional Convention.

True enough, Ogilvie's Cook County magnetism helped him overcome the normal heavy Democratic turnout in Chicago. And Simon's susbtantial Downstate popularity offset traditional GOP strength there.

But the official returns will indicate a lot of ticket-splitting in both areas.

Though Simon didn't carry the northwest suburbs, his opponent, Robert A. Dwyer, didn't come close to the totals registered for Ogilvie.

Dwyer, a well-spoken Winnetka banker and insurance executive, has been active in Republican party affairs for 20 years but has never been elected to any office.

This doesn't reflect discredit upon Dwyer. It simply means that Simon, who has been in the Legislature for 14 years, has a vast edge in experience. Dwyer had to fight that issue all through the campaign.

Simon was quoted as saying his "image of independence" from the Daley organization may be given some credit for his win and said he would "call the shots as I see them" in Springfield.

But, at the same post-election press conference, he is reported to have said:

"It is highly unlikely that I will have a major voice in state government under an Ogilvie administration.

"I don't want to see state government get bogged down in public partisan bickering."

I'm sure the feisty little ex-newspaper publisher will be heard from.

Never in their careers have Ogilvie or Simon put partisan considerations ahead of the duties of their offices.

I doubt either will start now.

One Entered War, the Other Fled

by PAUL LOGAN

The Viet Nam War — a tale of two cousins.

Both of my first cousins — Bob and Fritz —questioned why we were in Asia fighting a land war, a common topic of almost all college students. But when the draft stepped between them and the completion of their education, they had a decision to make.

They made it — one went into the Army, one did not. One's in No Man's Land, Korea, one's in Windsor, Quebec Canada.

LOGAN

These are their stories.

Bob and Fritz were both brought up in Illinois, but there's where the similarity ends.

BOB GREW up in Galesburg. He starred for his high school in three sports — baseball, football, and basketball. Following graduation he headed for Western Illinois University. Just as he was about to complete his sophomore year he contracted mononucleosis and had to drop registration.

After recuperating he decided to enroll at Canton Junior College because he thought he'd save some money and it also offered some credits he needed. However, his draft board sent him a note saying that he could not go from a four-year to a two-year college and his move would cost him his 2-S classification.

He appealed the board's decision but the members voted unanimously against his appeal, stating that ignorance of the rules was no excuse.

FOR HIM and his mother, who greatly wanted to see him graduate, it was a crushing blow. But Bob accepted his fate and went into the Army.

Fritz, who has lived in the suburbs of Chicago all of his life, had his inevitable run in with the draft just before his graduation. He was an "A" student and had been planning to attend graduate school ever since going to college.

Unlike Bob, Fritz wasn't good in sports but was an intense reader. One felt that he could talk anyone into anything because of his large vocabulary.

But his great store of knowledge couldn't sway his local board. He was hoping to attend Chicago University to obtain a masters degree in English, but he needed to float a loan. He asked the board if he could apply for it but was told that the board couldn't guarantee that he wouldn't be drafted during his first semester.

GETTING THIS news was bad enough, but the way it was told to him made him bitter. In a very sarcastic way, according to him, he was told that his studying wasn't important to the government and only those who were intent on becoming doctors or engineers were going to get deferments from the board.

Fritz rebelled at this flaunting of his future career and wrote to Windsor University in Windsor, Ontario, Canada, to see if he would be accepted there. He was given a speedy reply of "yes" and also a fine assistantship — something he was unable to get in the U.S. because the colleges he had applied to were afraid to take on anyone who had to sweat the draft.

Now he had to make his decision. In a way his was, over the long haul, a more difficult one than Bob's. For although Fritz wasn't faced with the possibility of giving up his life for his country, he was confronted with the likelihood of relinquishing his citizenship forever — a fate that could be, in the future, worse than death, a living death.

Both cousins disagreed with the United States being in Viet Nam, and both felt that they should have been allowed to complete their education without interruption.

YET EACH took different recourse toward solving their problems. Through the war both of their lives, as well as the lives of hundreds of thousands of young men, have been disrupted. Some just temporarily and others permanently.

Bob now puts his life on the line almost daily not in Viet Nam, where most of the American fighting men are being killed, but in Korea, where they also are killed but with less publicity. Fritz is presently putting his citizenship on the line as he awaits word from his draft board while continuing studies in Canada.

It seems so wrong that boys just entering the prime of their lives should have to sacrifice so much because of a war that is so futile. And their painful sacrificial acts are multiplied many times by the parents they leave behind them.

FOR BOB'S MOM and dad every phone call late at night makes them a little bit older as they fear the words, "I'm sorry to inform you . . ."

For Fritz's parents his action was even more difficult to take because they know the only time they would ever see him again was to visit him in Canada, or if he'd sneak home. His father suffers a deep shame for his son because he had been a distinguished officer in the Marine Corps during W.W. II. And Fritz's younger brother has been serving his country in Germany as an officer.

I hated to see both of them go. For Bob it was a sendoff from O'Hare Airport. We all experienced the sadness of a last good-bye. However, he showed the most courage and was talking about celebrating when he came home.

FRITZ'S departure was much different. We had planned to go out on the town before he headed North but he must have had a change of heart. The weekend we had planned never occurred because he slipped away a few days before.

I got the feeling, after learning of Fritz's leaving, that he might be the one I'd never see again instead of Bob.

Chairman Gives Facts on UNICEF

As chairman of the Northwest Suburban Committee for UNICEF, I feel compelled to respond to the letter signed by A.F. Schaffhauser appearing on Nov. 8. Mr. Schaffhauser seems to be one of those "people who have little or no knowledge of what UNICEF really is."

Briefly, what is UNICEF? United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund was created directly after World War II, by the United Nations, to meet the emergency needs of the homeless and starving children in Europe. In 1950, the General Assembly of the UN gave UNICEF a continuing mandate to aid children in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East. The organization was renamed in 1953 the United Nations Children's Fund, but the familiar initials of UNICEF continued to be used. World recognition was bestowed upon UNICEF, as it was distinguished by the high honor of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1965.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON, President of the United States, issued a proclamation that Oct. 31, 1967, and each subsequent Oct. 31 would be recognized as national UNICEF Day.

Although UNICEF operates no projects of its own, each program is designed by UNICEF and must gain approval from the official United Nations agency under which is operates, i.e., a malaria control program must be ratified by the World Health Organization.

In accepting UNICEF aid, each government pledges to assign high priority to the project and provide what it can in locally available supplies, buildings and administrative staff. In fact, in recent years recipient governments have provided "matching funds" on an average of over $2.50 for every dollar allocated by UNICEF. Administration of the programs is the responsibility of the recipient government, but it is carried out under the surveillance of the UNICEF field staff.

As to the gentleman's implication that most of UNICEF's money goes to communist countries, here are some of the facts. Of the 117 countries which received UNICEF aid in 1967, only four are aligned with the communist bloc. These countries as a group received only 2½ per cent of the total $1 million UNICEF budget. Communist China does not receive any aid, however, Taiwan (Formosa) receives over $650,000.

IN REALITY, UNICEF helps to prevent the spread of communism by encouraging underdeveloped countries to build themselves up.

In conclusion, the origination of the idea for UNICEF "Trick or Treat" should be of great interest to all who have questions. Eighteen years ago, 1950, in a suburb of Philadelphia, a Sunday school class decided that rather than doing their Halloween rounds for candy and apples, they would solicit pennies, nickels and dimes and provide a "treat" for some of the world's less fortunate children. Their efforts netted a modest $17, which was sent to UNICEF. That selfless idea was responsible for almost $3 million to UNICEF in 1967. Fortunately, there are enough people, young and old, who have the same unquestioning faith in their fellow men to help preserve young lives and promote peace throughout the world.

Logic Goes Up in Smoke During One of Those 'Moments'

Remember the scene in Jean Kerr's "Mary, Mary," when the estranged husband and wife straggle from their separate bedrooms in the morning and begin to feverishly search the littered living room?

There is no dialogue, but gradually the audience realizes what they are looking for. The couple, at this time, hate each other, but they are united in need. The audience is composed of strangers, but their understanding of this need, unites them in laughter.

MARY AND Bob want a cigarette.

Nowadays it is fashionable to deliver sermons of the evils of smoking. The only people with anything good to say about cigarettes are stockholders in American Tobacco Co.

Cigarette smoking is expensive, unattractive and possibly dangerous to health.

The little white cylinders have become symbols of self-destruction, permissiveness and lack of willpower.

However, I remember too many good moments over a cigarette to buy the lectures.

I REMEMBER the look in a man's eyes when he lights my cigarette.

I remember the thankfulness in a woman's face after she has said too much and a cigarette is the only way to bridge the gap of embarrassment.

I remember standing outside an emergency room, pulling the smoke in deep because all the nerves in my body were twitching.

I remember the strangers I have met who offered a light of human kindness and then disappeared into anonymity.

I remember the comfort of that first cigarette after five hours of hard labor produced a 10 pound male child.

THE AMERICAN Indians knew that companionship and peace of smoke around the campfire. The peace pipe wasn't a joke; it meant people were mingling smoke as a sign of unity.

The old Puritan ethic that tells us that every pleasure that is useless and expensive and makes us happy is bound to be wrong makes us defensive about smoking.

But I remember that last puff at night, sitting in the dark with a person you love, two small glowing cigarettes, smoke mingling, conversation fading into communication.

CIGARETTE smoking is expensive, unattractive, and possibly dangerous to health. But so is loving, and education, and having children.

Life itself is expensive, unattractive and ultimately dangerous to health.

The Way We See It

We Can't Quit Resources Fight

Conservation came to a crossroads Nov. 5.

The junction was reached — by voters' decision — in both Illinois and Washington, D. C., and the critical measure now is the direction that will be traveled in the name of preserving our natural legacy.

The crisis is already at hand in Illinois, where the conservationists and their allies were staggered with the defeat of the Natural Resources Development referendum.

The measure is a little more subtle in Washington, where the depth of concern will be dictated by action yet to come. It will revolve around cabinet choices to be made by President-elect Richard M. Nixon, who will be replacing Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall and Agriculture Secretary Orville E. Freeman.

On both levels, state and national, the cause of conservation is in a balance that grows more delicate daily as the land fills with people.

Illinois is at the point where the scale cannot be allowed to tip any more. After years of neglect that allowed its air to be poisoned, its water to be befouled and its open land to vanish, the state moved to right the wrongs with a bold flourish in the billion-dollar referendum.

The bid failed, and the blame is being variously assigned to rural voters who teamed up against the bond issue, to the issue's promoters for not selling it more strenuously and for drawing it improperly in the beginning, and to the requirement that a simple majority would not be enough to pass the issue.

There is simply no time to lament what has been lost, or why.

The needs — to clear the air and water, and to lay away some green space / are so imperative that new thinking and new action are the only recourse.

The challenge will fall most heavily, as it should, to Governor-elect Richard B. Ogilvie, who in his campaign decried Illinois' woeful record in fighting pollution and disappearance of public land.

He has the chance now, immediately, to match campaign oratory with deed, to rekindle the enthusiasm that had been built for action, to press ahead with a program and the enforcement to give Illinois citizens clean air, clean water and the land on which to enjoy both.

To President-elect Nixon, the challenge is to set a tempo, to establish a priority for conservation that Congress and the American people can easily read. He can do it most directly in the choices he makes to replace Udall and Freeman.

Replacement of both, after eight years of service since appointment by President John F. Kennedy, will not be easy.

Under Udall, the conservation idea had not been granted such attention and sensitivity since the days of Teddy Roosevelt. And under Freeman, whose office also oversees the national forests and grasslands, there came new ideas and laws to make positive recreational use of idle farmlands.

Conservation, on the federal level, takes constant vigilance. It is a battle against those who would ravage the land for private gain and a struggle with a Congress that is rarely conservationist by sentiment, and too much given to the temptation for pork-barrel projects.

The fight requires not only a President who will give the cause priority, but men under him who are battlers and will champion it past heavy lobby interference and massive public indifference.

It is an American tradition that we ignore our natural environment until it has been defiled, littered and stripped beyond recall. The threat is all the greater now, and it falls to Richard Ogilvie and Richard Nixon to lead, and not watch.

Jail Brutality: 'Idleness'

Chief Jailer Sees Failure

by MIKE FEINSILVER

WASHINGTON UPI — By 11 a.m. of an ordinary working day in a granite government building, Myrl Alexander was rumpled. His white shirt and white hair awry, he yanked open his brown necktie and freed his throat.

From it poured an astonishing mimicry of the dialogue he had heard in hundreds of jails between the prisoners on the side of the bars and their captors on the other side. A poison stream of sexual epithets, curses and underworld slang sprouted from him.

His words put his visitor in jail. He spoke softly, but the visitor could hear of prison life.

"Brutality!" he exploded, halting the monologue. "The real brutality in prison is idleness."

AS DIRECTOR of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, Alexander, 58, is the nation's chief jailer and the foremost overseer of a system he charges with failure.

Of the 200,000 persons in prison in America on any given day, 96 per cent eventually will be released — and thousands will be rejailed for new offenses.

This, contends Alexander, is the real "law and order" issue in American — barely mentioned in the political campaign — the ineffectiveness of the entire apparatus — police, prosecutors, courts and corrections systems — "to intervene in a criminal career."

"We all recognize," he said, somewhat wearily, "that the traditional institutions of the past haven't produced the desired results.

"Simply removing an offender to an institution as punishment often only compounds the problem of reintegrating him into the community as a law abiding citizen. All to frequently it costs him his job, severs his family ties and pins on him a label that makes all of his problems more difficult to overcome.

"SO AS A means of punishment and as an instrument with which to change criminal behavior, imprisonment is still a failure.

"It must be acknowledged that even among the best correctional institutions at least 30 per cent of the inmates become repeaters. Why is this so," he asked.

"Is it because prisons as devices for the treatment and control of offenders have never been fully tested?"

Alexander makes four major charges against the nation's system of arresting, sentencing and imprisoning lawbreakers:

1. Sentences are handed down for the offense, not for the offender.

2. Prisons fail to offer their inhabitants an alternative way of life by training them for a noncriminal career.

3. Police, courts and prisons often act at odds with one another.

4. Despite almost universal condemnation of the practice, even by the public, ill-matched prisoners are still thrown together — the young car thief penalized for his first offense with the hardened criminal who knows no livelihood outside of lawlessnes.

WHAT ALEXANDER urges, above all else, is a system that would reform the offender rather than merely punish the offense — to change the prison population, not merely keep it away from society.

But first society would have to accept the idea that the denial of freedom is sufficient punishment, that vengeance is not the prison's purpose.

The tool of reform on which Alexander puts first priority is the indeterminate sentence. It would allow experts to study the "deficiencies" of persons convicted of crime and to retain the prisoner long enough to correct the deficiencies — education, occupational, attitudinal or psychological.

RELEASE, WHEN it came, would not simply put the convict on the street with a few dollars and a bus ticket. Freedom would come piecemeal, with the inmate learning to live with it, through work-release programs, weekend leaves, outside classes, halfway houses and similar programs, all of which are just starting to be used.

The authorities at the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta remember the outrage that was expressed — by the inmates — when it was decided to allow them to decide whether to attend religious services, go to the library, engage in athletics or simply spend the time in their cells.

The prisoners were outraged by the necessity of making a choice. They had been so well trained for prison life and its regimentation that they could no longer cope with freedom. They had become professional prisoners.

World May Begin Today, So Turn On, Says the 'Jester'

by ROBERT C. MC CONACHIE

VANCOUVER, B.C. UPI — The old-fashioned jester appears to have had a tendency to talk in riddles and rhymes, a philosopher with the wisdom of Mother Goose, an ability to exist on scant earnings and a disregard for material objects.

Vancouver's "town fool," Joachim Foikis, who holds a B.A. in theology and a B.A. in economics, has all these things and more.

Since he received his fist $3,500 Canada Council grant April 1, 1967, "to revive the ancient and time-honored tradition of town fool," Foikis has toured almost every major North American city attempting to "turn on" the citizens.

"My function is to do what I'm doing," Foikis said, sitting cross-legged on the steps of Vancouver's Court House where he gives daily lectures. "My name is Greek. Foikis means 'big fish.' My job is to be the whale and to grind up, to put you to the acid test and to pick out your problem so you may step out."

DESCRIBING HIMSELF as a "bungling apprentice" in his job as fool, the slim 36-year-old Polish immigrant said he "gets down into a village like and airy spirit to turn the people on."

Dressed joker-style in a 14th century scarlet and blue costume, which he fashioned himself to symbolize the "marriage of heaven and hell," one of the jester's daily pastimes is engaging townsfolk in spirited debates over any topic they care to argue.

"I'm a Mother Goose witness," he stated. "Jehovah Witnesses say the world is coming to an end tomorrow. I say the world is just beginning — maybe today."

"And you better turn on," he warns.

"SHAKING UP THE establishment" is another of the iconoclast's favorite functions. In his opinion the courts are a "mockery," teachers are "hypocrites" and where religion is concerned "the artists are the true ministers of the soul."

"Now my Bible is Mother Goose," Foikis added. "I find my theology is expressed in many of the Mother Goose rhymes. I get high on Mother Goose, not drugs."

Foikis uses passages from Mother Goose nursery rhymes and mythology when speaking to children — including his own two offspring, 4-year-old Martin and Rebecca, 2.

"My next step is to move away from this world and into another world," Foikis said as he picked up his "bauble," a symbol of the mace used in Parliament, indicating the "fool-in" was over. "Out of our world and out of your world and into another world.

Mathewson Speaks For COG Meeting

Kent Mathewson, a recognized authority on intergovernmental co-operation, will give the keynote address Wednesday for the annual meeting of the Council of Governments (COG) of Cook County.

The council will meet at 7:45 p.m. in Lyons Township High School, Western Springs. Representatives of the 98 member governments are expected to attend. Non-member governments are invited to send persons to observe and participate without a vote.

MATHEWSON IS director of the Detroit, Mich., Metropolitan Fund and a known authority on regional councils of government.

Agenda items include adoption of by-laws. establishing 1969 membership fees, reports from the five council division chairmen, a report on progress and goals, election of new officers and executive committee members and new business from member governments.

Membership in COG now includes 50 municipalities, 18 school districts, 14 townships, eight park districts and eight special districts.

DIVISIONAL CHAIRMEN who will present reports are Palatine Park District Secretary Roger Bjorvik, regional planning and recreation; Park Forest Pres. Bernard Cunningham, public works; Oak Lawn Pres. Fred Dumke, public safety; Blue Island Mayor Richard Withers, general services; and Dist. 59 Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas, health, education and welfare.

Arlington Heights Pres. John Woods is to present by-laws for adoption and Mount Prospect Pres. Dan Congreve is to recommend 1969 membership fees. Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl, council chairman, is to report on goals and programs.

Pogo Sticks Could Aid Moon Travel

STANFORD, Calif. UPI — Scientists at Stanford University are working on a pogo stick that will propel astronauts across the moon in 50-foot jumps.

However, it's no ordinary pogo stick. It will have a seat for the astronaut, gyroscopes to keep him upright, rocket jets to help him steer — and possibly a computerized guidance system.

"The moon has no air to fly in, no water to float on, no road to roll over," said project leader Dr. Howard S. Seifert, professor of aeronautical engineering. "But hopping is well adapted to the weak lunar gravity — only one-sixth of earth's."

Seifert said the hopping should not be done by rocket because of its excessive propellant consumption.

"INSTEAD," HE SAID, "it should be done by pressing against the moon's surface with a foot, after the manner of a kangaroo, rabbit and frog."

Plans call for a 1,200-pound vehicle that will bounce on a piston operated by compressed gas. Very little gas will be used in each leap, because most of it will be recompressed by landing.

While the upper part of the piston will be attached to the astronaut's seat and associated gear, the bottom will attach to a large, flexible "foot" with cleats for digging into the lunar soil.

The scientists figure the pogostick vehicle could jump 30 feet straight up for reconnaissance and scaling a sharp rise. Taking off at a 45-degree angle would carry it to a landing 50 feet away.

AT THIS RATE, the lunar pogo stick could cover 10 miles in 1,000 leaps at an average speed of about seven miles per hour, depending on pauses and the terrain.

Fuel consumption would be very low compared to rocket propulsion. Rockets would require about 10 gallons per mile; the piston pogo should go about 10 miles to the gallon.

Among the project's "unknowns" now being studied is the human being's ability to stand such repeated bounces. The researchers are building a test stand with a seat that will bound on a shock-absorber piston for laboratory tests with student volunteers.

Jail Brutality: 'Idleness'

by MIKE FEINSILVER

WASHINGTON UPI — By 11 a.m. of an ordinary working day in a granite government building, Myrl Alexander was rumpled. His white shirt and white hair awry, he yanked open his brown necktie and freed his throat.

From it poured an astonishing mimicry of the dialogue he had heard in hundreds of jails between the prisoners on the side of the bars and their captors on the other side. A poison stream of sexual epithets, curses and underworld slang sprouted from him.

His words put his visitor in jail. He spoke softly, but the visitor could hear of prison life.

"Brutality!" he exploded, halting the monologue. "The real brutality in prison is idleness."

AS DIRECTOR of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, Alexander, 58, is the nation's chief jailer and the foremost overseer of a system he charges with failure.

Of the 200,000 persons in prison in America on any given day, 96 per cent eventually will be released — and thousands will be rejailed for new offenses.

This, contends Alexander, is the real "law and order" issue in American — barely mentioned in the political campaign — the ineffectiveness of the entire apparatus — police, prosecutors, courts and corrections systems — "to intervene in a criminal career."

"We all recognize," he said, somewhat wearily, "that the traditional institutions of the past haven't produced the desired results.

"Simply removing an offender to an institution as punishment often only compounds the problem of reintegrating him into the community as a law abiding citizen. All to frequently it costs him his job, severs his family ties and pins on him a label that makes all of his problems more difficult to overcome.

"SO AS A means of punishment and as an instrument with which to change criminal behavior, imprisonment is still a failure.

"It must be acknowledged that even among the best correctional institutions at least 30 per cent of the inmates become repeaters. Why is this so," he asked.

"Is it because prisons as devices for the treatment and control of offenders have never been fully tested?"

LACE LIGHTS UP the evening in this dress that couldn't be more feminine with its bright pink ribbon sash, prettily tied at the waist. A McCall's quickie pattern, 9513.

RUFFLES FROM NECK to hem will bring compliments for this McCall's quickie wrap-dress, right, Pattern 9514. The after-five shirt-dress, elegantly fly-fronted and jewel-belted is perfect for every occasion. It's No. 9520. Both patterns are available in Misses 8 to 16. These styles and the others shown may be found wherever McCall's Patterns are sold.

LOW ON WORK and high on fashion is this McCall's quickie, left, with high rise waist and baby doll sleeves, Pattern 9512. Newest look of the season is the softly dirndl'd style at right, Pattern 9498. Both come in Misses 8 to 16, Juniors 7 to 11.

'Little Kid' Look

Fashion Designers Borrow Ideas from the Young

by Patricia McCormack

NEW YORK UPI — Little girls, take a bow.

Many of the nation's trend-setting designers have peeked into your closet for inspiration when putting together spring and summer clothes for big ladies such as your mommies.

They liked the jumpers and white blouses and school ties. They flipped over the princess dresses and little smocked numbers. Their eyes sparkled over ruffles on other dresses.

While they were at it, they looked at what some little girls wear in the comics. What they adored was that white collared and cuffed one that Orphan Annie has been wearing for decades.

ALL THESE things they adapted for big ladies. They made the dresses larger, used very expensive fabrics and put price tags on big enough to pay for a little backyard merry-go-round.

The designers also gave your little brother's closet the once over. They liked his school blazers. Back at their drawing boards they worked out blazer shapes suitable for women.

Designers who have done some of these things include Larry Aldrich, Chester Weinberg, Oscar de la Renta, Donald Brooks, Pauline Trigere, Mollie Parnis.

BEENE'S jumpers had the biggest ties. They were worn with long white sleeved shirts, a la parochial school uniforms. They started small at the neck and widened out nearly to bib size at the end — near the waistline.

The designer's initials, G.B., were embroidered on them.

Beene frequently showed these jumpers over bell-bottom trousers. He called the pants "Beene Bottoms." Since first claim on bell bottoms belongs to the Navy, I wonder if he is going to "Beene" some other Navy things — coming out with "Navy Beene Soup."

SOME OF THE childlike influences were not as innocent at the back as they seemed at the front.

A "saintly front and sinning back" dress in the Beene collection had a serene and very modest choir boy front, complete with collar.

When the model wearing this turned to show the aft part, her back-except for the back rim of the collar — was bare all the way to the waist.

AND SPEAKING of bare, Rudi Gernreich, award-winning California designer who invented the topless bathing suit, proved he's still on that track.

In a collection of togs for Harmon knitwear, the designer had a number of Ghillie tie touches.

In these, he used narrow stripes of fabric to lace over fronts or backs of tunic dresses with daringly deep cutouts.

BACK SLASHES, six inches wide, rode down to buttocks on some of the dresses. Front openings showed the navel and were so widely cut that a lot of bosom showed.

Matching Ghillie cutout treatments were on boots, calf-high. Ghillie — laced cutouts under arms to hips were featured on other dresses.

He used the same Ghillie tie treatment at top of briefest bikini bottoms to swim suits with cut out tops. His one-piece swim suits, almost tank style, had the lattice cutouts from waistline to low on the pelvis.

The Escalation In Household Decoration

by MARY SHERRY

It used to be that only Ogden Nash and the U.S. Army were permitted to coin words or apply existing words in a new way. But someone besides the Army or Mr. Nash has done something to the word "decorator." It used to mean "one who decorates," but now it apparently means something that could be used by an interior decorator.

What was once a noun is now and adjective, and I find that I must buy bath towels, garbage cans and graffiti kits in decorator colors with decorator wrappers. Even something as lowly as coffee is now a decorator item once the label is removed from the decorator can.

In fact, it was coffee that first got me into decorator trouble. When I went to buy some coffee a few weeks ago, a stock boy approached as I rummaged through the shelves.

"MAY I HELP YOU find something, m'am?"

"Yes," I said. "I'm looking for some coffee."

"Drip?" he asked, pausing to pick up some cans I had knocked over, "or regular?"

"It doesn't matter. What I'm really looking for is Italian Provincial. Everything here seems to be Early American."

The stock boy caught a few more cans in mid-air as they fell from the shelf where I was probing to see what was in the back row.

"We don't have anything in Italian Provincial, m'am. Why don't you try this? It's Pop Art."

He held out a red can with "Hills Bros." written in white letters. It was truly ar interesting looking item. I took the can home, threw out all the Italian Provincial effects and began to decorate with undisguised cans of Spam, Campbell's Soup and boxes of S.O.S. pads.

THE POP ART STAGE of my grocery and dime store decorating soon led me into new problems arising from the current usage of the word "decorator."

When I tried to buy some sheets and pillow cases to fit in with my Campbell's Soup cans and Baby Ruth inflatable vinyl pillows, I asked to see something in red.

"Do you mean a cranberry or raspberry?" she asked.

"Just plain red," I told her.

She was shocked. "We don't carry any plain colors any more, only decorator colors, dear. We now have Chinese Red, Seeing Red Red, Raise the Flag Red and Last Rose of Summer Red. What's your decor?"

"Early Soup Cans," I replied.

"Oh, well, Raise the Flag Red is color coordinated with Early Soup Cans. I'll show you."

SHE BROUGHT OUT sheets that would most certainly go with Campbell's Soup and, as she assured me, with Baby Ruth Wrappers.

"Now," I told her, "I would also like a set of sheets in white — just for something different."

"To go with the same decor?" she asked.

"Yes," I replied.

"Well, the best would be Trite White. It is the newest of our decorator whites."

I stared blankly at the sheets, which looked just like all white sheets I had ever bought. For a moment I was curious to know what the other whites looked like, but suddenly I was afraid that I would discover all my whites at home were wrong. I took the sheets and hurried through the decorator bath shop, the decorator notions department, the decorator housewares, down the decorator elevator and home.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Among thousands of visitors to food service areas of Illini Union, student center on the University of Illinois' Urbana-Champaign campus, are hundreds who ask for favorite recipes of dishes encountered there.

Most frequently requested, according to Miss Marjorie Arkwright, food service manager, is the blend of ingredients for celery seed dressing which is served with fresh fruit salads, usually citrus fruits now available in quantity. So, should you be planning fruit salad with Thanksgiving dinner or another holiday meal, try this.

On a bed of crisp lettuce arrange attractively orange and grapefruit sections with alternate slices of nectarine or pear.

Pour over a generous portion of chilled celery seed dressing. This recipe yields three pints, but you won't be sorry to have made this quantity and it will keep under refrigeration.

Combine 2½ cups of white sugar with 4 teaspoons dry mustard and 4 teaspoons salt. Add about half of 1¼ cups of vinegar and the juice of a small grated onion to the dry ingredients and beat on a mixer for 15 minutes.

Pour 1 quart of salad oil slowly into the mixture, then the remainder of the vinegar and stir until well blended. Fold in ¼ cup of celery seed. Store in the refrigerator until ready to use.

Thinking ahead to the holiday season, it's also time to prepare some of those dessert and snack items which require seasoning to be at their best. favorites with many people are chocolate bourbon (or rum) balls, which arrive at a peak of quality with about three weeks aging.

This recipe is from the files of Mrs. Helen Ogata of Urbana and has been handed down by generations of her family. Mix together 3 cups finely crushed vanilla wafer crumbs, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1½ tablespoons cocoa, 1½ cups finely chopped walnuts, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, and ½ cup bourbon (or dark rum).

Mix well and shape into 1-inch balls. Roll in granulated or powdered sugar and wrap each ball loosely in waxed paper. Store in a container with a tight fitting lid for aging. Keep cool but do not refrigerate. The recipe makes 3 dozen.

Handwriting Expert To Entertain Alums

Arlington Heights Area Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma will be entertained Wednesday, Nov. 20, by Mrs. Robert Cushman, a professional handwriting analyst. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Robert Bach, 644 S. Lincoln, Arlington Heights.

Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Jon Floria and Mrs. James Kneisley.

MRS. CUSHMAN, a resident of Des Plaines for the past 25 years, has been lecturing and teaching handwriting analysis for six years. She is a member of many organizations including The American Association of Handwriting Analysts and The Association of Graphologists, Inc.

"It's a fascinating subject that most people are interested in but know little about" says Mrs. Cushman.

Any alumna in the area wishing further information may contact Mrs. Edward Stautzenbach, 392-3496.

LACE LIGHTS UP the evening in this dress that couldn't be more feminine with its bright pink ribbon sash, prettily tied at the waist. A McCall's quickie pattern, 9513.

RUFFLES FROM NECK to hem will bring compliments for this McCall's quickie wrap-dress, right, Pattern 9514. The after-five shirt-dress, elegantly fly-fronted and jewel-belted is perfect for every occasion. It's No. 9520. Both patterns are available in Misses 8 to 16. These styles and the others shown may be found wherever McCall's Patterns are sold.

LOW ON WORK and high on fashion is this McCall's quickie, left, with high rise waist and baby doll sleeves, Pattern 9512. Newest look of the season is the softly dirndl'd style at right, Pattern 9498. Both come in Misses 8 to 16, Juniors 7 to 11.

'Little Kid' Look

Fashion Designers Borrow Ideas from the Young

by Patricia McCormack

NEW YORK UPI — Little girls, take a bow.

Many of the nation's trend-setting designers have peeked into your closet for inspiration when putting together spring and summer clothes for big ladies such as your mommies.

They liked the jumpers and white blouses and school ties. They flipped over the princess dresses and little smocked numbers. Their eyes sparkled over ruffles on other dresses.

While they were at it, they looked at what some little girls wear in the comics. What they adored was that white collared and cuffed one that Orphan Annie has been wearing for decades.

ALL THESE things they adapted for big ladies. They made the dresses larger, used very expensive fabrics and put price tags on big enough to pay for a little backyard merry-go-round.

The designers also gave your little brother's closet the once over. They liked his school blazers. Back at their drawing boards they worked out blazer shapes suitable for women.

Designers who have done some of these things include Larry Aldrich, Chester Weinberg, Oscar de la Renta, Donald Brooks, Pauline Trigere, Mollie Parnis.

BEENE'S jumpers had the biggest ties. They were worn with long white sleeved shirts, a la parochial school uniforms. They started small at the neck and widened out nearly to bib size at the end — near the waistline.

The designer's initials, G.B., were embroidered on them.

Beene frequently showed these jumpers over bell-bottom trousers. He called the pants "Beene Bottoms." Since first claim on bell bottoms belongs to the Navy, I wonder if he is going to "Beene" some other Navy things — coming out with "Navy Beene Soup."

SOME OF THE childlike influences were not as innocent at the back as they seemed at the front.

A "saintly front and sinning back" dress in the Beene collection had a serene and very modest choir boy front, complete with collar.

When the model wearing this turned to show the aft part, her back-except for the back rim of the collar — was bare all the way to the waist.

AND SPEAKING of bare, Rudi Gernreich, award-winning California designer who invented the topless bathing suit, proved he's still on that track.

In a collection of togs for Harmon knitwear, the designer had a number of Ghillie tie touches.

In these, he used narrow stripes of fabric to lace over fronts or backs of tunic dresses with daringly deep cutouts.

BACK SLASHES, six inches wide, rode down to buttocks on some of the dresses. Front openings showed the navel and were so widely cut that a lot of bosom showed.

Matching Ghillie cutout treatments were on boots, calf-high. Ghillie — laced cutouts under arms to hips were featured on other dresses.

He used the same Ghillie tie treatment at top of briefest bikini bottoms to swim suits with cut out tops. His one-piece swim suits, almost tank style, had the lattice cutouts from waistline to low on the pelvis.

The Escalation In Household Decoration

by MARY SHERRY

It used to be that only Ogden Nash and the U.S. Army were permitted to coin words or apply existing words in a new way. But someone besides the Army or Mr. Nash has done something to the word "decorator." It used to mean "one who decorates," but now it apparently means something that could be used by an interior decorator.

What was once a noun is now and adjective, and I find that I must buy bath towels, garbage cans and graffiti kits in decorator colors with decorator wrappers. Even something as lowly as coffee is now a decorator item once the label is removed from the decorator can.

In fact, it was coffee that first got me into decorator trouble. When I went to buy some coffee a few weeks ago, a stock boy approached as I rummaged through the shelves.

"MAY I HELP YOU find something, m'am?"

"Yes," I said. "I'm looking for some coffee."

"Drip?" he asked, pausing to pick up some cans I had knocked over, "or regular?"

"It doesn't matter. What I'm really looking for is Italian Provincial. Everything here seems to be Early American."

The stock boy caught a few more cans in mid-air as they fell from the shelf where I was probing to see what was in the back row.

"We don't have anything in Italian Provincial, m'am. Why don't you try this? It's Pop Art."

He held out a red can with "Hills Bros." written in white letters. It was truly ar interesting looking item. I took the can home, threw out all the Italian Provincial effects and began to decorate with undisguised cans of Spam, Campbell's Soup and boxes of S.O.S. pads.

THE POP ART STAGE of my grocery and dime store decorating soon led me into new problems arising from the current usage of the word "decorator."

When I tried to buy some sheets and pillow cases to fit in with my Campbell's Soup cans and Baby Ruth inflatable vinyl pillows, I asked to see something in red.

"Do you mean a cranberry or raspberry?" she asked.

"Just plain red," I told her.

She was shocked. "We don't carry any plain colors any more, only decorator colors, dear. We now have Chinese Red, Seeing Red Red, Raise the Flag Red and Last Rose of Summer Red. What's your decor?"

"Early Soup Cans," I replied.

"Oh, well, Raise the Flag Red is color coordinated with Early Soup Cans. I'll show you."

SHE BROUGHT OUT sheets that would most certainly go with Campbell's Soup and, as she assured me, with Baby Ruth Wrappers.

"Now," I told her, "I would also like a set of sheets in white — just for something different."

"To go with the same decor?" she asked.

"Yes," I replied.

"Well, the best would be Trite White. It is the newest of our decorator whites."

I stared blankly at the sheets, which looked just like all white sheets I had ever bought. For a moment I was curious to know what the other whites looked like, but suddenly I was afraid that I would discover all my whites at home were wrong. I took the sheets and hurried through the decorator bath shop, the decorator notions department, the decorator housewares, down the decorator elevator and home.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Among thousands of visitors to food service areas of Illini Union, student center on the University of Illinois' Urbana-Champaign campus, are hundreds who ask for favorite recipes of dishes encountered there.

Most frequently requested, according to Miss Marjorie Arkwright, food service manager, is the blend of ingredients for celery seed dressing which is served with fresh fruit salads, usually citrus fruits now available in quantity. So, should you be planning fruit salad with Thanksgiving dinner or another holiday meal, try this.

On a bed of crisp lettuce arrange attractively orange and grapefruit sections with alternate slices of nectarine or pear.

Pour over a generous portion of chilled celery seed dressing. This recipe yields three pints, but you won't be sorry to have made this quantity and it will keep under refrigeration.

Combine 2½ cups of white sugar with 4 teaspoons dry mustard and 4 teaspoons salt. Add about half of 1¼ cups of vinegar and the juice of a small grated onion to the dry ingredients and beat on a mixer for 15 minutes.

Pour 1 quart of salad oil slowly into the mixture, then the remainder of the vinegar and stir until well blended. Fold in ¼ cup of celery seed. Store in the refrigerator until ready to use.

Thinking ahead to the holiday season, it's also time to prepare some of those dessert and snack items which require seasoning to be at their best. favorites with many people are chocolate bourbon (or rum) balls, which arrive at a peak of quality with about three weeks aging.

This recipe is from the files of Mrs. Helen Ogata of Urbana and has been handed down by generations of her family. Mix together 3 cups finely crushed vanilla wafer crumbs, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1½ tablespoons cocoa, 1½ cups finely chopped walnuts, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, and ½ cup bourbon (or dark rum).

Mix well and shape into 1-inch balls. Roll in granulated or powdered sugar and wrap each ball loosely in waxed paper. Store in a container with a tight fitting lid for aging. Keep cool but do not refrigerate. The recipe makes 3 dozen.

Mr. and Mrs. Curt Vogtritter

Doris Baehr Weds Curt Vogtritter

After a honeymoon at Montego Bay, Jamaica, Mr. and Mrs. Curt Vogtritter are making their home at 910 S. Ioka, Mount Prospect. The bride is the former Doris Baehr, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Krueger of Ripon, Wis., and the groom's parents are the Curtis Vogtritters of Des Plaines.

The couple were married Oct. 12 at 3:30 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, and then feted at a reception in the Colonial Room in Des Plaines.

FOR HER wedding the bride chose a floor-length pale pink gown with a beaded bodice and long sleeves. She wore a rhinestone tiara and carried pink roses.

Her two daughters were her attendants, Karla Baehr as maid of honor and Lani Baehr as bridesmaid. Both were attired in floor-length shocking pink organza and carried pink roses.

THE GROOM'S brother, Robert Vogtritter, was best man and another brother, Donald Vogtritter, was groomsman.

Duane Wendt and Jerry Hamlin seated the wedding guests.

As she witnessed the afternoon rites, Mrs. Krueger wore a blue suit accented with a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Vogtritter chose a gold suit with white roses in her corsage.

A graduate of Florida State University, the groom is employed by Ringland Krueger Co. The new Mrs. Vogtritter is with Robert L. Nelson Real Estate.

Lynn Radosti Is October 26 Bride of William Kennedy

A blind date arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Don Moranos of Elk Grove Village for Lynn Carol Anne Radosti and William F. Kennedy of Arlington Heights culminated in Oct. 26 nuptials for the couple. Mrs. Moranos, a sister of the bride, was her matron of honor for the double rites, and Mr. Moranos, who works for Motorola with the groom, was best man.

The newlyweds are both Arlington residents, the bride the daughter of the Leonard Radostis, 418 N. Beverly Lane, and the groom the son of the Chester C. Kennedys, 716 N. Stratford.

THEIR CANDLELIGHT wedding took place at 5:30 in the afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights, the Rev. James D. Eby officiating.

Shades of red, from a light pink to a deep cranberry, formed the color scheme for the ceremony. The bride's sister and the bridesmaids, Gayle Purves and Lunn Kramer, also of Arlington, were gowned in cranberry velvet and satin. The empire bodice was of the velvet with puffed sleeves that were elbow-length. The satin skirt was styled on slender lines with a bow and streamers in the back.

THE GIRLS wore cranberry satin loops in their hair, accented with pale green berries, and they carried carnations in varying colors from pale pink to deep cranberry.

There were two junior bridesmaids, Susan and Sharon Mullen of Skokie, cousins of the bride and both 11 years old. They wore two-toned dresses, fashioned with a cranberry velvet bodice and azalea pink crepe skirt. Pale pink ruffles adorned the bodice and cranberry ribbon accented the waistline. They wore cranberry headpieces and carried carnations in the same shades as the bridesmaids.

THE BRIDE, given in marriage by her father, chose a white satin gown lavishly reembroidered in alencon lace. It was styled with a round neckline, long sleeves and a full circular train also appliqued with the lace.

Her triple illusion veil was attached to an open crown of alencon lace and pearls, with a white satin bow at the back. The bride carried a cascade arrangement of white glamellias and stephanotis.

CANDLELIGHTER for the wedding was Bob Mullen, 13, of Skokie, also a cousin of the bride. Ushers were Ron McLaughlin of Lombard and Jim Nelson of Darby, Pa.

Among the special wedding guests were the bride's grandparents, the A. Hagelauers, who flew here from their home in Florida for the festivities.

As the newlyweds' mothers greeted 150 guests at the reception, held in the Des Plaines Elks Club, Mrs. Radosti wore a pink shantung jacket dress with a beaded collar and Mrs. Kennedy wore a citrus green shantung dress and coat ensemble. Mrs. Radosti's corsage was of pink roses with a white gardenia; Mrs. Kennedy's was of iceberg mums surrounding yellow roses.

THE BRIDAL pair spent their honeymoon in the Grand Bahamas and are living in an apartment in Des Plaines. He works for Motorola in Elk Grove, and she is with Northwestern Mutual Insurance Co., Arlington Heights.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and attended Wisconsin State University at Whitewater. The groom attended Elgin College and completed five years in the U. S. Navy, two of them in Viet Nam as a radioman aboard the USS Enterprise.

Apple for Teacher Is Club Project

Hoffman Estates Woman's Club "polished the apple" during National Education Week by distributing 321 apples to principals, teachers and grade school secretaries at 11 schools.

The gesture was in appreciation of the educators' efforts in behalf of children who attend Twinbrook, Fairview, Hoffman, St. Hubert, Blackhawk, Lakeview, Keller, Churchill, Hillcrest, MacArthur and Frost Schools.

The project was conducted by the Education and Scholarship Committee of the Woman's Club, headed by Mrs. Richard Clotfelter.

ATTACHED TO each apple was a note reading:

"Happy National Education Week! We think you, as a teacher in Hoffman Estates, are very special. May this 'apple for the teacher' express our warmest thanks for everything you do for our children and our community. May education for our children be like this apple: shining, without beginning or end, juicy and sweet."

Mary Helen Koenig Is Bride in Texas

An Elk Grove Village girl, Mary Helen Koenig, who is a senior at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas, was married Oct. 12 and is now Mrs. Wyatt Shuford Smith, the wife of First Lt. Smith of the U.S. Air Force.

The couple exhanged vows in the chapel of the First Baptist Church in Abilene and are making their home in that city at 1740 Hickory St.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mrs. Albert George Koenig, 207 Wildwood Road, Elk Grove.

The groom is the son of the Wyatt E. Smiths of Charlotte, N.C. He is stationed at Dyess Air Force Base, Abilene, with the 96th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

As the Rev. Gary Bonner, assistant pastor of the church, performed the marriage, the bride was attired in a beige lace street-length dress with brown patent accessories. She wore a corsage of tropicana roses.

SHE IS a graduate of Forest View High School and will be graduated next May from Hardin-Simmons, where she is a member of the Concert Choir and is chaplain of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music fraternity.

Lt. Smith received a degree in psychology from Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, N.C., before entering the service. While at college he was affiliated with Sigma Pi Fraternity.

New Book an Aid To Allergy Victims

A recently published book promises relief for those 20 million Americans who suffer from food allergies.

"Recipes for Allergics" by Billie Little and Dr. A. Chesmore Eastlake, contains many points of interests for these sufferers in its 372 pages.

Included are a primer for allergics: lists of corn, egg, milk and what contacts; other major allergens; disorders caused by allergies; shopping hints and hundreds of gourmet recipes appropriate for festive and holiday occasions.

A WIDE VARIETY of dishes to please the epicurean as well as the spartan eater are contained in the carefully indexed volume. An example is Cabinet Pudding (used at the White House), a dessert which those allergic to any of the offenders may eat.

The book costs $7.50 and may be ordered from: Recipes for Allergics, Room 1101, Clearmark Building, 16408 S. Broadway, Gardena, Calif. 90247.

Test Heart Aid for Astronauts

To keep the blood of astronauts who are orbiting the earth circulating in top form, scientists are developing and testing a sleeve which will exercise the heart during a space journey. Tests are being done on Pigtail monkeys, whose physical reactions are comparable to man's in many ways.

At present space travelers experience periods of blackout upon returning to earth's gravity forces. This is caused by the inability of the heart to perform properly after being relaxed in the space environment of weightlessness.

The sleeve consists of air pockets actuated by compressed air. It will produce intermittent pressures that are expected to keep the blood system in good condition.

DR harry a. Gorman, professor Colorado State University's department of clinics and surgery, who is developing the sleeve, said that astronauts would probably have to wear the rippling sleeves in both arm and leg band styles three or four times a day.

Scientists believe the sleeve will work acceptably well because the same principle is used in vibrating beds, for improving the circulation of hospital patients.

Hoffman Nurses To Learn What's New in Equipment

TIPS 'N THINGS

by Linda Lee

If you're buying linens as a gift for your favorite bride there are a few notes you might make before hitting the stores. To judge the quality of a sheet, for instance, hold it up to the light and look for uneven yarns, knots and bunches. These telltale weak spots indicate that the sheet isn't up to heavy wear.

Although patterned sheets are fun, every bride needs a number of plain white sheets and pillow cases as well. You can't go wrong with white. Unless, of course, you buy a size that the bride can't use. This is especially a problem in contour sheets which should be purchased to fit a specific sized bed to guarantee a good fit and cut down on ironing.

Most brides choose sheets of percale for a combination of wear and luxuriousness. As a rule of thumb, the finer the weave, the softer and more luxurious the sheet. Thus, a 180-count percale sheet would be less firmly woven and soft than a 220-count sheet.

Muslin sheets, more loosely woven and of heavier cotton threads than percale, are also popular. These sheets are less expensive and have a lower thread count.

CANDLELIGHTER for the wedding was Bob Mullen, 13, of Skokie, also a cousin of the bride. Ushers were Ron McLaughlin of Lombard and Jim Nelson of Darby, Pa.

Among the special wedding guests were the bride's grandparents, the A. Hagelauers, who flew here from their home in Florida for the festivities.

As the newlyweds' mothers greeted 150 guests at the reception, held in the Des Plaines Elks Club, Mrs. Radosti wore a pink shantung jacket dress with a beaded collar and Mrs. Kennedy wore a citrus green shantung dress and coat ensemble. Mrs. Radosti's corsage was of pink roses with a white gardenia; Mrs. Kennedy's was of iceberg mums surrounding yellow roses.

THE BRIDAL pair spent their honeymoon in the Grand Bahamas and are living in an apartment in Des Plaines. He works for Motorola in Elk Grove, and she is with Northwestern Mutual Insurance Co., Arlington Heights.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and attended Wisconsin State University at Whitewater. The groom attended Elgin College and completed five years in the U. S. Navy, two of them in Viet Nam as a radioman aboard the USS Enterprise.

Apple for Teacher Is Club Project

Hoffman Estates Woman's Club "polished the apple" during National Education Week by distributing 321 apples to principals, teachers and grade school secretaries at 11 schools.

The gesture was in appreciation of the educators' efforts in behalf of children who attend Twinbrook, Fairview, Hoffman, St. Hubert, Blackhawk, Lakeview, Keller, Churchill, Hillcrest, MacArthur and Frost Schools.

The project was conducted by the Education and Scholarship Committee of the Woman's Club, headed by Mrs. Richard Clotfelter.

ATTACHED TO each apple was a note reading:

"Happy National Education Week! We think you, as a teacher in Hoffman Estates, are very special. May this 'apple for the teacher' express our warmest thanks for everything you do for our children and our community. May education for our children be like this apple: shining, without beginning or end, juicy and sweet."

Silver Tea Is Nov. 20

A Silver Tea will be hosted by the women of Prospect Heights Community Church on Wednesday, Nov. 20. All area residents are welcome. Tea hours are noon to 3 p.m.

There will also be a display of Christmas gift items, baked goods and a white elephant table. A devotional table will be arranged by Mrs. John Bruning.

Mrs. Robert Blaine heads the church women's group. Mrs. Clyde Stewart and her committee are in charge of the tea.

Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Speaker for Jaycee Annes Meeting Nite

Aaron DeGuisne, director of special education for School District 15, will be guest speaker at the Nov. 21 meeting of Palatine Jaycee Annes. Mrs. Alan Boschan, 1050 E. Plate Drive, will be hostess, assisted by Mrs. Kent Bradley and Mrs. Thomas Ahern.

Mr. DeGuisne will talk on "Emotional Problems in Children." The program begins at 8 p.m.

Mrs. William Hibner, 358-6626, can be called for details.

Decorations' Show Tonight

Tonight's demonstration on holiday decorations, sponsored by Arlington Heights Garden Club, is open to the public. A small fee will be charged to see Mrs. Fred Thornton's showing of Christmas wrappings, decorations, wreaths and table arrangements.

The 7:30 p.m. program takes place in Pioneer Park Fieldhouse.

Test Heart Aid for Astronauts

To keep the blood of astronauts who are orbiting the earth circulating in top form, scientists are developing and testing a sleeve which will exercise the heart during a space journey. Tests are being done on Pigtail monkeys, whose physical reactions are comparable to man's in many ways.

At present space travelers experience periods of blackout upon returning to earth's gravity forces. This is caused by the inability of the heart to perform properly after being relaxed in the space environment of weightlessness.

The sleeve consists of air pockets actuated by compressed air. It will produce intermittent pressures that are expected to keep the blood system in good condition.

DR harry a. Gorman, professor Colorado State University's department of clinics and surgery, who is developing the sleeve, said that astronauts would probably have to wear the rippling sleeves in both arm and leg band styles three or four times a day.

Scientists believe the sleeve will work acceptably well because the same principle is used in vibrating beds, for improving the circulation of hospital patients.

Mary Helen Koenig Is Bride in Texas

An Elk Grove Village girl, Mary Helen Koenig, who is a senior at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas, was married Oct. 12 and is now Mrs. Wyatt Shuford Smith, the wife of First Lt. Smith of the U.S. Air Force.

The couple exhanged vows in the chapel of the First Baptist Church in Abilene and are making their home in that city at 1740 Hickory St.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mrs. Albert George Koenig, 207 Wildwood Road, Elk Grove.

The groom is the son of the Wyatt E. Smiths of Charlotte, N.C. He is stationed at Dyess Air Force Base, Abilene, with the 96th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

As the Rev. Gary Bonner, assistant pastor of the church, performed the marriage, the bride was attired in a beige lace street-length dress with brown patent accessories. She wore a corsage of tropicana roses.

SHE IS a graduate of Forest View High School and will be graduated next May from Hardin-Simmons, where she is a member of the Concert Choir and is chaplain of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music fraternity.

Lt. Smith received a degree in psychology from Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, N.C., before entering the service. While at college he was affiliated with Sigma Pi Fraternity.

New Book an Aid To Allergy Victims

A recently published book promises relief for those 20 million Americans who suffer from food allergies.

"Recipes for Allergics" by Billie Little and Dr. A. Chesmore Eastlake, contains many points of interests for these sufferers in its 372 pages.

Included are a primer for allergics: lists of corn, egg, milk and what contacts; other major allergens; disorders caused by allergies; shopping hints and hundreds of gourmet recipes appropriate for festive and holiday occasions.

A WIDE VARIETY of dishes to please the epicurean as well as the spartan eater are contained in the carefully indexed volume. An example is Cabinet Pudding (used at the White House), a dessert which those allergic to any of the offenders may eat.

The book costs $7.50 and may be ordered from: Recipes for Allergics, Room 1101, Clearmark Building, 16408 S. Broadway, Gardena, Calif. 90247.

Hoffman Nurses To Learn What's New in Equipment

"What's New in Hospital Communications Equipment" will be learned by Hoffman-Schaumburg Registered Nurses Club at the Thursday, Nov. 21 meeting. C. Mitchell of Motorola, Inc. will be guest speaker for the 8:30 p.m. program in Hoffman Estates Fire Station on Flagstaff Lane.

Members are asked to bring their canned food donations for the club's needy family project.

THE OCTOBER program on children's foot disorders has prompted the nurses to remind the community of their loan closet which is offered free of charge. They have several orthopedic bars, the type that attach to an infant's or child's shoe, that can be borrowed by calling Mrs. Edward Lorenz, 894-1351, or Mrs. John Hayes, 894-1076.

Churchwomen Set Toy Show

Toys and other Christmas gift items will be on display at a demonstration program Nov. 26, sponsored by St. Matthew Lutheran churchwomen. The show begins at 8 p.m. in the school, McHenry Road near Quentin Road, Lake Zurich.

Ten per cent of the sales will go toward the purchase of toys for children at the Lutheran orphanage in Addison.

Further details are available from Mrs. L. Herron, 438-8084.

Fashion Parade For Secretaries Dec. 4 Meeting

There will be "Angels on Parade" when Park-Plaines Chapter of the National Secretaries Association holds a dinner meeting Wednesday, Dec. 4, at 6 p.m. in the Champagne Room of Allgauer's at the O'Hare Concord, Rosemont.

The Cynthia Shoppe of Des Plaines will furnish fashions, to be modeled by chapter members. Among them are Mrs. Audrey Raasch, president; Pat Cicerchia, Wheeling; Mrs. Louise Kitto, Arlington Heights; Lorraine Leseberg, Long Grove; and Marjorie Sayers, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Jean L. Buhrke, 827-6111, is taking reservations days and Mrs. Janet Lee Stough, 827-5397, evenings.

Vegetable Treat

Raisins and carrots are popular as a salad, but they taste great cooked together, too. Add a handful of raisins to boiled carrots, then spice with cinnamon or nutmeg. Season with butter or serve.

Hoffman Club Adds 38 to Membership

Mrs. Gary Arnold and Mrs. John Reilly, co-chairmen of the membership committee of Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, welcomed 38 new members to the organization at the November meeting.

Initiated were Mrs. Thomas Harris, Mrs. Arnold Berman, Mrs. Ernest Lenzini, Mrs. Robert Weiss, Mrs. Dennis Hruska, Mrs. Gerald Miller, Mrs. Jerry Roteman, Mrs. Preston Neumann, Mrs. Michail Foort, Mrs. Alan Bjeistedt, Mrs. George Hockenberry, Mrs. Raymond Walters, Mrs. Ronald Stolberg, Mrs. George Williams, Mrs. Joseph Ciccia.

Also Mrs. Bernard Berg, Mrs. Gerald Ricksecker, Mrs. Joseph Owens, Mrs. Bruce Trevor, Mrs. Richard Gilbert, Mrs. Stewart Young, Mrs. Ted Trzcinski, Mrs. Jack Reynolds, Mrs. Vincent Graber, Mrs. Douglas Walters, Mrs. Jack Werner, Mrs. Thomas Grandel, Mrs. William Hawkins, Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Peter Colletti, Mrs. Frank Skowron.

MRS. ANJUNELL Bloss, Harold Ross, Mrs. Albert Bleiss, Mrs. John Carroll, Mrs. Patrick Curran, Mrs. James Clemens and Mrs. James Fredian.

Mrs. Arnold introduced the new members to Mrs. John Liautaud, president, who gave each one a white orchid, or gold mum corsage.

LaLeche League Meets Nov. 20

Mount Prospect members of the LaLeche League will meet Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 8:30 p.m. in Mrs. Emmett Collister's home at 609 S. William St. The group is composed of women who believe in breast-feeding their babies.

The group has available a lending library of books on this subject. Mrs. Donivan Watley may be called at 437-3417 for details on the LaLeche League.

TIPS 'N THINGS

by Linda Lee

If you're buying linens as a gift for your favorite bride there are a few notes you might make before hitting the stores. To judge the quality of a sheet, for instance, hold it up to the light and look for uneven yarns, knots and bunches. These telltale weak spots indicate that the sheet isn't up to heavy wear.

Although patterned sheets are fun, every bride needs a number of plain white sheets and pillow cases as well. You can't go wrong with white. Unless, of course, you buy a size that the bride can't use. This is especially a problem in contour sheets which should be purchased to fit a specific sized bed to guarantee a good fit and cut down on ironing.

Most brides choose sheets of percale for a combination of wear and luxuriousness. As a rule of thumb, the finer the weave, the softer and more luxurious the sheet. Thus, a 180-count percale sheet would be less firmly woven and soft than a 220-count sheet.

Muslin sheets, more loosely woven and of heavier cotton threads than percale, are also popular. These sheets are less expensive and have a lower thread count.

THE FARM report had the best news of the week for Illinois hunters.

The Illinois Co-operative Crop Reporting Service said at midweek that the state's farmers were 85 per cent done with the mammoth job of corn-picking. And that, for hunters as well as farmers, was a happy contrast to 1967, when — at the same time — the job was about 25 per cent complete.

The 1967 problem — a product of too many wet days too many times during the year — played hob with the pheasant season, the favorite campaign in Illinois.

Farmers fretted, justifiably so, about hunters trampling amid unpicked corn and at the same time menacing anyone trying to pick it.

The hunters agonized over the truth that pheasants are just about impossible to flush out of standing corn, in which they can run and dodge all day if they have to, without ever taking flight.

The Illinois Department of Conservation caught flak from both sides, and was under heavy pressure to delay the opening of the pheasant season. It didn't, and the only concession it could make to the farmers was to warn hunters to respect property rights. For the hunters, the department did extend the season to Dec. 31, but it didn't make much difference. There still was one of the lowest ringneck kills in years in Illinois.

This year, everyone should be happier, especially so the hunters, who went back into action against the pheasants (plus quail, partridge and rabbits) on Satrday, and again have a season running through Dec. 31. The bag limit's again the same: two cocks a day.

The corn's been mostly picked and there was, obviously, a good carryover of birds from 1967, making up for a poor nesting this spring.

The best pheasant hunting, again, is to be found in the big corn and soybean belt in central and east central Illinois, with numbers also up to the south and west of that area.

Hunting in this part of the state remains a sketchy affair, not that there aren't any birds, but that the land is so scant. Essentially, it's the problem of having to know someone, or someone who knows someone, who has a little rural property.

It's a pity there aren't more quail hunters in this state, because there are a lot of quail. Pre-season estimates have been borne out, with bobwhite numbers the highest in 10 years. The outlook, the conservation people say flatly, is "excellent," with the best shooting to be in the south below U.S. 40 and in the west between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers from Hancock County to Grafton. Eight birds a day are allowed.

Partridge, with two a day allowed, are to be in their strongest numbers in the north near the Wisconsin border, but you just can't find them without a struggle.

The season on all three species runs through Dec. 31. Rabbits still have the longest season, until Jan. 31. The limit again is five, the population is said to be up over last year, and the best hunting is in the brushier regions of southern and western Illinois.

With all these seasons now open, this is the busiest time of the year for nimrods.

Duck season still has a couple weeks to run to its Dec. 1 closing, though the shooting, as predicted, hasn't been that good, centered mostly on the few big migrations ahead of the cold sweeps.

The statewide goose season also has until Dec. 1, but the more important one — in Union, Jackson, Alexander and Williamson counties — runs to Dec. 22. The latest count down there: 58,000 birds at Crab Orchard refuge, 21,000 at Horseshoe Lake and 16,500 at Union County.

The first segment of the shotgun deer season opens this Friday, and closes Monday. The second segment Dec. 6-8.

But as good a time as this is for hunters, it flits by quickly. In just the past week, two seasons — on squirrels and doves — closed for another year.

While Illinois' bold, billion-dollar conservation bid stumbled at the polls Nov. 5, Michigan pressed on. That state's voters said "yes" to a $435-million program to boost outdoor recreation and combat water pollution. At the same time, the state got some sobering news from a Michigan State scientist: large numbers of the fabled coho salmon are dying from DDT insecticide poisoning, apparently a grim by-product of indiscriminate use in industrial areas.

Illinois Hunters Need Firearms Owners Card

SPRINGFIELD UPI — Illinois hunters must have a firearm owners identification card while in the field, according to Manley D. Hawks, superintendent of the Firearm Owners Identification Division.

Hawks said the advent of the hunting season has brought many questions about whether a person is allowed to hunt without the ID card as long as he has a valid hunting license.

"It's just like driving an automobile," Hawks said. "If you are driving you must have a driver's license. Whoever is in possession of a firearm and ammunition is required to have a valid ID card." The registration law, passed by the last legislature, provides for penalties up to a $1,000 fine and one year in jail for failure to have a card.

Hawks said persons under 21 are not required to have the card if they are hunting with a parent or guardian. However, he said, minors may purchase a card with parental approval.

He said more than 750,000 persons have bought the $5 permits, with more than one million expected to register by mid-1969.

The ID card is also required for the purchase of guns and ammunition. However, the act does not require the registration of individual guns.

Pitcher-QB

PITTSBURGH UPI — Bobby Layne, one of the all-time National Football League greats, also was a star baseball pitcher. Layne was undefeated in three years of varsity competition as a pitcher for the University of Texas baseball team.

Elgin Gifters Nip Hawks, 86-79

by PAUL LOGAN

Usually the team that makes the most turnovers loses in basketball, especially when it's 17 more than its opponent makes.

Not this time, however.

The Elgin College Spartans gave up the ball more than Harper's Hawks (50-33) but they also made more baskets and held off a late surge to win 86-79 at Elgin last Friday night.

IT WAS THE opener for both teams and the first game ever for Harper College in the Northern Illinois Junior College Conference.

Playing in the antiquated Elgin High School gym, which offered poor lighting and dead baskets, the Hawks couldn't find the range from the field until the last five minutes of the game, while trailing 77-62. But it was just too late.

The Hawks managed to cut the margin to seven, 81-74, but lost the ball under their hoop at a point (nearly two minutes remaining) when a goal could have put the panicky Spartans on the ropes.

Then the Hawks had to foul and the issue was settled on the free throw line.

COLD SHOOTING and foul trouble spelled the downfall of the fledgling Harper crew of Coach John Gelch. The Hawks' field goal percentage was just 34 (34 of 100) while their charity tries output was 10 percentage points better but still poor at 44 (11 of 25).

Their hosts popped shots in at 40 per cent clip from the field (30 of 27) and 50 per cent from the foul line (26 of 52). The Spartans got off 25 less shots than their guests but they had more close in chances.

The Hawks were called for 35 fouls compared to just 22 by their counterparts. The lopsided totals cost the Hawks dearly as four players were whistled out of the game with five fouls each. Three of them were starters — center Dave Willy, forward Bill Keehan and guard Tom Kereszturi. The fourth was sixth man Scott Bischoff who came off the bench to lead Harper with 21 points before exiting.

Halftime score: Elgin 47, Harper 39.

Fouled out: Harper, Kereszturi, Keehan, Bischoff, Willy; Elgin, Johnson, Lange.

The referees seemed to act as though they were handling a high school game on some of their calls, while a few other judgments, especially one "intentional foul," were very questionable.

THIS FOUL CALL was made with a half minute to go when the Hawks' Mike Druding was trying to take the ball away in the backcourt, just as the Harper team had succeeded in doing four times in the final three minutes.

Elgin's Steve Johnson went to the line and missed the first try but sank the second and the game was over except for the final totals.

Johnson finished up with 15 points but did not lead his team. Old nemesis Jeff Lange, who

Words Can't Do The Job

Let Record Speak for Cards

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Ever tried buying a gift for the man who has everything? You spend hours and hours, or even days, searching for just the right thing, but when you get down to making a choice . . . well, it's never quite what you had in mind.

After all, how can you possibly do justice to the man who has everything?

Or, if you will, it's like trying to describe the 1968 Arlington varsity football season. What more could be said of the Cards, a team that not only had everything but did everything too?

(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at high schools in the Paddock Publications circulation area.)

HOURS AND days could be spent trying to describe the season, but what words could possibly do justice to a grid eleven that rolled past nine straight opponents, scoring 307 points while giving up a bare 26, a squad that yielded only 688 yards to its nine opponents while compiling close to 3000 itself?

Words can't do the job, the achievements speak for themselves. Achievements like the 9-0 record that stands as the best mark ever in the 43 year history of Arlington, surpassing the 7-0-1 records of 1938 and 1966.

Or take the honor of placing six men on the Mid-Suburban League coaches' All-Conference team, with at least seven other Cards deserving such recognition but not making it because of league rulings.

OR CONSIDER what Arlington did against its seven league opponents. Only three squads managed to score against the Cards, gaining an average of only 83 total yards per contest. And no team in the nine game schedul managed to cross Arlington's goal line in the final quarter.

Outstanding. Amazing. Overwhelming. Words leap to mind that might describe the 1968 Cardinal season, but they all seem to fall short.

Arlington started the year out with a decisive 26-0 pasting of arch-rival Maine West. Then continued rolling with a 32-0 whitewash of Forest View, the team that last year shared the Mid-Suburban League crown with the Cards.

IN THEIR third test, the Cards set an MSL scoring record by blasting past Fremd, 60-6, in a game that saw Arlington finally assert itself as the most powerful offensive club ever seen in the area.

Then came the most severe test of the year, Wheeling. Arlington granted the Wildcats an early 7-0 lead but came roaring back in the second half to take a crunching 19-7 victory, winning going away.

Next came Palatine, another explosive grid unit. But the Card defense was so awesome that it held the vaunted Pirate offense to an unbelievable zero yards gained on the night — and this was a team that boasted the league's top passer and rusher both! The final score, 41-0.

ELK GROVE was the next squad to challenge Coach Bob Walther's Cards, but the Grenadiers too fell by the wayside, 29-0. And Arlington's seventh straight victim was non-league foe Ridgewood, shooting for a major upset. But the Rebels fell, 19-7.

Closing out its MSL campaign, Coach Walter's gridders then coasted past a tough Prospect eleven, 34-0, and Glenbard North, 47-6.

Nine wins. No losses or ties to mar the record, just nine convincing victories.

IT WAS A season of near perfection in nearly everything the Cards did. When they gambled, they gambled and won. When — as was the case against Wheeling — they needed points, they drove right down and scored, no foolish stumbling around. When they needed the yards on a big third or fourth down play, they came through time after time.

BOB WALTHER

Literally, Arlington was invincible. Much of the credit goes to Card head coach Bob Walther and his assistants, Tom Pitchford and Jack Cutlip, who demanded and got perfection and precision from their charges.

Constantly drilling and redrilling the Cardinals on the fundamentals of football, the coaches preached perfection. The result was made final by the 47-6 romp over Glenbard North to end the year.

BUT IF the Card coaches deserve a lot of credit for Arlington's successes — as they do — the individual players deserve just as much.

The Arlington gridders were just as dedicated to perfection as their coaches. They achieved their perfect season through grueling work and supreme effort. Their reward will be their names forever etched in the school's grid annals.

Todd Somers, for one, achieved a mark that will be tough to equal. Though noted as a running quarterback, Somers led the MSL in passing percentage, hitting on 60 per cent of his aerials for 544 yards and two touchdowns.

NOT ONLY that, Somers ran for another 423 yards to push his total offensive production to 967 yards. And on the year he pushed that total to 1138 yards.

But Somers was by no means the whole team. Fullback Dave Ewart blasted for 663 yards for a five yard per carry average and a 54 points, second only to Somers 83 markers. Then came Denny Meacham with 599 yards and a 5.7 yard average and an-

While Illinois' bold, billion-dollar conservation bid stumbled at the polls Nov. 5, Michigan pressed on. That state's voters said "yes" to a $435-million program to boost outdoor recreation and combat water pollution. At the same time, the state got some sobering news from a Michigan State scientist: large numbers of the fabled coho salmon are dying from DDT insecticide poisoning, apparently a grim by-product of indiscriminate use in industrial areas.

Illinois Hunters Need Firearms Owners Card

SPRINGFIELD UPI — Illinois hunters must have a firearm owners identification card while in the field, according to Manley D. Hawks, superintendent of the Firearm Owners Identification Division.

Hawks said the advent of the hunting season has brought many questions about whether a person is allowed to hunt without the ID card as long as he has a valid hunting license.

"It's just like driving an automobile," Hawks said. "If you are driving you must have a driver's license. Whoever is in possession of a firearm and ammunition is required to have a valid ID card." The registration law, passed by the last legislature, provides for penalties up to a $1,000 fine and one year in jail for failure to have a card.

Hawks said persons under 21 are not required to have the card if they are hunting with a parent or guardian. However, he said, minors may purchase a card with parental approval.

He said more than 750,000 persons have bought the $5 permits, with more than one million expected to register by mid-1969.

The ID card is also required for the purchase of guns and ammunition. However, the act does not require the registration of individual guns.

Pitcher-QB

PITTSBURGH UPI — Bobby Layne, one of the all-time National Football League greats, also was a star baseball pitcher. Layne was undefeated in three years of varsity competition as a pitcher for the University of Texas baseball team.

Elgin Gifters Nip Hawks, 86-79

by PAUL LOGAN

Usually the team that makes the most turnovers loses in basketball, especially when it's 17 more than its opponent makes.

Not this time, however.

The Elgin College Spartans gave up the ball more than Harper's Hawks (50-33) but they also made more baskets and held off a late surge to win 86-79 at Elgin last Friday night.

IT WAS THE opener for both teams and the first game ever for Harper College in the Northern Illinois Junior College Conference.

Playing in the antiquated Elgin High School gym, which offered poor lighting and dead baskets, the Hawks couldn't find the range from the field until the last five minutes of the game, while trailing 77-62. But it was just too late.

The Hawks managed to cut the margin to seven, 81-74, but lost the ball under their hoop at a point (nearly two minutes remaining) when a goal could have put the panicky Spartans on the ropes.

Then the Hawks had to foul and the issue was settled on the free throw line.

COLD SHOOTING and foul trouble spelled the downfall of the fledgling Harper crew of Coach John Gelch. The Hawks' field goal percentage was just 34 (34 of 100) while their charity tries output was 10 percentage points better but still poor at 44 (11 of 25).

Their hosts popped shots in at 40 per cent clip from the field (30 of 27) and 50 per cent from the foul line (26 of 52). The Spartans got off 25 less shots than their guests but they had more close in chances.

The Hawks were called for 35 fouls compared to just 22 by their counterparts. The lopsided totals cost the Hawks dearly as four players were whistled out of the game with five fouls each. Three of them were starters — center Dave Willy, forward Bill Keehan and guard Tom Kereszturi. The fourth was sixth man Scott Bischoff who came off the bench to lead Harper with 21 points before exiting.

The referees seemed to act as though they were handling a high school game on some of their calls, while a few other judgments, especially one "intentional foul," were very questionable.

THIS FOUL CALL was made with a half minute to go when the Hawks' Mike Druding was trying to take the ball away in the backcourt, just as the Harper team had succeeded in doing four times in the final three minutes.

Elgin's Steve Johnson went to the line and missed the first try but sank the second and the game was over except for the final totals.

Johnson finished up with 15 points but did not lead his team. Old nemesis Jeff Lange, who

Words Can't Do The Job

Let Record Speak for Cards

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Ever tried buying a gift for the man who has everything? You spend hours and hours, or even days, searching for just the right thing, but when you get down to making a choice . . . well, it's never quite what you had in mind.

After all, how can you possibly do justice to the man who has everything?

Or, if you will, it's like trying to describe the 1968 Arlington varsity football season. What more could be said of the Cards, a team that not only had everything but did everything too?

(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at high schools in the Paddock Publications circulation area.)

HOURS AND days could be spent trying to describe the season, but what words could possibly do justice to a grid eleven that rolled past nine straight opponents, scoring 307 points while giving up a bare 26, a squad that yielded only 688 yards to its nine opponents while compiling close to 3000 itself?

Words can't do the job, the achievements speak for themselves. Achievements like the 9-0 record that stands as the best mark ever in the 43 year history of Arlington, surpassing the 7-0-1 records of 1938 and 1966.

Or take the honor of placing six men on the Mid-Suburban League coaches' All-Conference team, with at least seven other Cards deserving such recognition but not making it because of league rulings.

OR CONSIDER what Arlington did against its seven league opponents. Only three squads managed to score against the Cards, gaining an average of only 83 total yards per contest. And no team in the nine game schedul managed to cross Arlington's goal line in the final quarter.

Outstanding. Amazing. Overwhelming. Words leap to mind that might describe the 1968 Cardinal season, but they all seem to fall short.

Arlington started the year out with a decisive 26-0 pasting of arch-rival Maine West. Then continued rolling with a 32-0 whitewash of Forest View, the team that last year shared the Mid-Suburban League crown with the Cards.

IN THEIR third test, the Cards set an MSL scoring record by blasting past Fremd, 60-6, in a game that saw Arlington finally assert itself as the most powerful offensive club ever seen in the area.

Then came the most severe test of the year, Wheeling. Arlington granted the Wildcats an early 7-0 lead but came roaring back in the second half to take a crunching 19-7 victory, winning going away.

Next came Palatine, another explosive grid unit. But the Card defense was so awesome that it held the vaunted Pirate offense to an unbelievable zero yards gained on the night — and this was a team that boasted the league's top passer and rusher both! The final score, 41-0.

ELK GROVE was the next squad to challenge Coach Bob Walther's Cards, but the Grenadiers too fell by the wayside, 29-0. And Arlington's seventh straight victim was non-league foe Ridgewood, shooting for a major upset. But the Rebels fell, 19-7.

Closing out its MSL campaign, Coach Walter's gridders then coasted past a tough Prospect eleven, 34-0, and Glenbard North, 47-6.

Nine wins. No losses or ties to mar the record, just nine convincing victories.

IT WAS A season of near perfection in nearly everything the Cards did. When they gambled, they gambled and won. When — as was the case against Wheeling — they needed points, they drove right down and scored, no foolish stumbling around. When they needed the yards on a big third or fourth down play, they came through time after time.

BOB WALTHER

Literally, Arlington was invincible. Much of the credit goes to Card head coach Bob Walther and his assistants, Tom Pitchford and Jack Cutlip, who demanded and got perfection and precision from their charges.

Constantly drilling and redrilling the Cardinals on the fundamentals of football, the coaches preached perfection. The result was made final by the 47-6 romp over Glenbard North to end the year.

BUT IF the Card coaches deserve a lot of credit for Arlington's successes — as they do — the individual players deserve just as much.

The Arlington gridders were just as dedicated to perfection as their coaches. They achieved their perfect season through grueling work and supreme effort. Their reward will be their names forever etched in the school's grid annals.

Todd Somers, for one, achieved a mark that will be tough to equal. Though noted as a running quarterback, Somers led the MSL in passing percentage, hitting on 60 per cent of his aerials for 544 yards and two touchdowns.

NOT ONLY that, Somers ran for another 423 yards to push his total offensive production to 967 yards. And on the year he pushed that total to 1138 yards.

But Somers was by no means the whole team. Fullback Dave Ewart blasted for 663 yards for a five yard per carry average and a 54 points, second only to Somers 83 markers. Then came Denny Meacham with 599 yards and a 5.7 yard average and an-

All three were chosen to the coaches' All-Conference squad.

And chipping in invaluable efforts were Dean Schmelzer with 241 yards and a 6.3 average and Chris DeZonna with 225 yards and a 6 yard average. Will Heinemann, Dow Woodard and Steve Stratton also threw in another 80 yards.

THE LINE was just as talented. Three, Paul Tollefson, Jim Ulrich and Dan Selleck, were chosen to the league's honor squad. Ulrich was a unanimous choice.

The typically ferocious offensive charge and tenacious defense shown by the Cards all year was made by a team effort, though. Guards Karl Anderson, Bryce Knorr, Scott Simon and Jay Harris put Arlington at four deep at that position.

At center were big Al Lalond, who — though injured part of the year — might have made the all-conference squad if league rules had not limited Arlington to six nominations, and Doug Stueber, a more than adequate replacement for Lalond.

BEHIND ULRICH and Tollefson were junior tackles Jack Hult and Dick Trahan, while at ends came Selleck and Jim Baumgartner. Baumgartner led the squad in receptions with 27 for the season, good for 347 yards and four tallies.

Defensively other names of outstanding Cards crop up. Mike Hadley was certainly the best middle line backer in the league, while Selleck, Schmelzer, Knorr and Baumgartner all stood out at their defensive slots.

And Chris Buttenob, in only his first year out for football, took the fire out of opponents' passing attacks from his defensive safety position. He, too, might have made the all-conference squad under different league rules.

The team was saturated with outstanding players. Their attitude was outstanding; their talents were remarkable; their play was of a true championship caliber.

But trying to describe the 1968 Arlington varsity football team is like trying to buy a gift for the man who has everything. It can't be done.

Says Wheeling's Liljeberg

'Wish There Were More Games...'

by KEITH REINHARD

Only grudgingly are basketball and the other winter sports getting the go-ahead at Wheeling High School.

This is the consensus of the Wildcat football camp at any rate, as echoed by helmsman Jack Liljeberg.

Some squads may have felt the 1968 grid season lingered a little too long as it was, especially in the Mid-Suburban loop where expansion elongated the playing slate to nine games.

(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at high schools in the Paddock Publications circulation area.)

For Wheeling the current campaign ended all too abrubtly however.

"I REALLY don't think we ever hit our peak this season," the rookie head coach sighed. "We didn't start really jelling immediately this fall but since our last non-conference game the week-to-week improvement has been tremendous.

"I just wish we had a few more games to play," he added.

Unfortunately for Wheeling, but fortunately for any would-be additional foes, the season did come to a conclusion. It reflected a 6-3 overall mark for Liljeberg's crew and a second place finish at 6-1 in MSL play.

In Liljeberg's first year at the varsity helm, the 'Cats were easily able to post their third straight season of winning football.

IF SOMEONE were to draw a graph of the Wildcat campaign it would probably show a line dipping at first, then rising slightly, then easing downward again and finally rising sharply until it ran off the graph.

At no time this past season — including their three defeats — did the 'Cats need to be embarrassed by their performances. Two of the losses served upon the Wheeling eleven in fact, were dished up by groups that went on to undefeated seasons and rankings in polls of the state's best.

Liljeberg also pointed out that Wheeling's trio of losses, to Maine South at the beginning of the season and Arlington and St. Viator later on, were by a total span of just four touchdowns.

STILL, IT was not nearly the same Wildcat team which lost to the Hawks 13-7 in their lidlifter, that crunched Prospect 52-35 eight weeks later.

"It took us a while to get organized," Liljeberg recounted. "This is probably true with any team where the coaching staff is changed and we were expecting it. We were also expecting a winning ballclub and I'm pleased with the way things turned out."

If any individuals had to be cited as the cause for Liljeberg's pleasure, the nods would probably go to a pair of Wildcats who wound up their prep careers dramatically in that curtain closing win over Prospect. The two, by breaking practically every school record between them, stand to become legendary figures in Wheeling sports history.

IRONICALLY, their 1968 showings took widely separated paths after both had risen to all-conference acclaim as juniors last year. All the way down to their final high school outing however, Jack Bastable and Ron King waged one war in common — beating the enemy.

The two also staged a friendly duel over the two years for the right to bear the honor of all-time school total yardage champ. With Bastable going mostly overland and King going primarily to the airwaves, they traded the lead in this department all the way down to the wire before Bastable gained the nod by a scant 33 yards, 1487 to 1454.

The reason for their contrasting senior years had several facets. Bastable, whose own graph in 1968 reads much like the teams, was never really able to shake off a shoulder injury until after the fifth game of the season.

JACK LILJEBERG

UP UNTIL that time his contributions to the squad, both on offense and defense, were anything but sub-par by normal standards. But by Bastable's own standards they proved to be below average when the amazing back amassed 99 points in his last four games and the team went on a virtual rampage to sew up the number two league spot.

During those final games the devasting Bastable racked up single game school standards for most yards rushing (139), most total yardage (209), most points (27), tied other marks for most receptions (5), most TD passes caught (2) and most TD passes thrown (2), captured the league scoring title, the league rushing title, set MSL career marks for scoring and rushing and culminated his banner year by earning Chicago American Back of the Week laurels, all-conference approval and statewide recognition.

If Bastable had one low point in 1968 some might have rated it the day he gained a scant 42 yards rushing off Arlington the third game of the season.

Strangely enough though, the Card line allowed only 174 yards in conference play all season, leaving just 132 yards more to divide up between perhaps 50 other backs who ran against the powerful league champs.

WHILE BASTABLE garnered his well-earned praise in '68, King turned out to somewhat of an unsung hero. Plagued early in the season by a rash of interceptions and then getting injured in the Arlington encounter did little to help his cause. Still, the husky quarterback rebounded as the season progressed and went on to better all of his own impressive passing feats of 1967.

One further obstacle could not be overcome however. The 1968 campaign turned out to be the year of the quarterback and the Wheeling signal caller found himself battling for the MSL limelight with half a dozen other exceptional throwers.

King was not able to earn an all-conference berth again. But his school records for most passes completed (11) and most passing yardage (167) in a single game and his career records for most completions (107) and passing yardage (1527) will probably endure longer anyway.

KING AND Bastable were the obvious contributors to Wheeling's successful season. But what about the other less-publicized members of the Wildcat cast?

Three of those members played well enough to join the MS Lall-star listings. All seniors, sturdy two-way tackle Greg Craighead, lanky offense end Jay Jobst and alert defensive end Nick Hardl did much to advance the 'Cat cause in '68 and their slots will be hard to fill in 1969.

"I would have liked to nominate a dozen more for the all-conference rolls," offered Liljeberg. He was only allowed to advance five names and all were picked, including junior lineman Bill Craighead who made honorable mention.

"OUR OFFENSIVE guards Mike Thomas and Joe Whittington both had fine seasons," Liljeberg went on to say, adding, "They really came around on their trap blocking during the last half of the year."

The coach also cited Jay Lesniak, who shared placement kicking duties with Bastable and teamed with Jobst to give the Wildcats as fine a pair of offensive ends as there was in the circuit.

"We had some other boys in the backfield worthy of recognition too," Liljeberg stated. "Glen Roth, Stew Oakley and Mark Janus didn't carry much this year but they did a heck of a job of blocking."

THE MENTOR pointed too, to Dave Hendren as well as Hardl for their work at defensive end. "They both did an excellent job of containing outside plays. None of the teams were able to get very far going wide on us this season."

Three others who netted praises from their coach were Darrell Berendt, Marty Crain and Rick Schachner. "During the last half of the season there wasn't a better middle guard around than Berendt, and Crain did a fine job for us both as a linebacker and an offensive end."

"Schachner was consistent for us all season at free safety. For his size, he's one of the best in the business," Liljeberg concluded.

WHERE DO the 'Cats go from here? Liljeberg will have only Dan Hull, Steve Klopf and Bill Craighead returning, but he forsees great years for all three. "Hull should develop into one of the best tailback or fullbacks in the league and Klopf is a real hard hitter who is bound to help us. Craighead should have little trouble equaling the fine fine job turned in by his older brother Greg this fall.

After that, it could be a lean year for Wheeling gridders. "Don't count us out yet," Liljeberg noted. "It looks to be a building year but we've got some talent if we can refine it. A lot depends on the schedule too."

In 1969, Wheeling will commence its sixth year of varsity football. The school has come along way since dropping eight of eight their inaugural year, concluding this past season with a 19-21-1 overall mark.

They won't allow Wheeling to bring that record up to .500 this year. It will be first on the agenda for Liljeberg and his assistants Dick Schnell and Bob Schulze in 1969 however.

Harper Falls

had helped to defeat Harper's linkster earlier this fall in golf and who fired a hole-in-one in the conference meet, found the basket hole plenty for the Spartans.

Playing at a forward position, the 6-3, 180 pounder rifled in 10 of 20 field goal tries and four of seven free throws to finish the night with 24 points, high man for both teams.

THE SPARTANS had two other men break into double figures — 6-5 center Ken Nord with 11 and reserve guard Bill Watrous with 12.

Along with the 21 by Bischoff (who had 10 of 15 from the field), were guard Jim Mellen with 17 and Willy with 14.

Elgin got the lead in the first half on a tip in by Doug Duval but Willy tied it up a few seconds later with a jumper. The two teams exchanged the lead for the first two minutes with the Spartans taking it for keeps with a field goal by Nord at 17:30, 9-8.

The Hawks kept close during the next six minutes and cut the lead down to one point, 18-17, on a jumper by Keehan with 11:12 left. Then they went cold for the next three minutes. During that time the Spartans built up a 28-17 lead behind some balanced scoring.

WITH 8:10 remaining Keehan again scored but the rest of the half the Hawks could not cut away Elgin's comfortable margin. Druding's 30-footer with just seconds left brought Harper to within eight at the half, 47-39.

For the first half Elgin fired 42 per cent from the field and 45 from the gift line, while Harper hit 35 and 38 per cent, respectively.

The Hawks had to do without the services of their fine center, Willy, for most of the second half because he was slapped with his fourth foul at the 15:30 mark. He left the contest for good with 11 minutes remaining.

Keeping the Hawks within 10 during this foul trouble period was Bischoff. He had five clutch goals with the last one bringing them within nine. Then Kereszturi joined Willy on the bench with 3:23 left as a result of three quick calls in just three minutes. With two regulars out the score read 79-70.

This must have fired up the Hawks as they cut the score to 83-78 on the ball-hawking of Druding, two by Bischoff, and Mellen. The latter Hawk pumped in three long range bombs to cut the lead to 81-76 before the free throw practice began for Elgin.

Archers Should Attend Meeting

Attention all archers!

Anyone interested in reviving target shooting at the Lions Park Field House should attend the Park District Board Meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 26, at 8 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Community Center.

The more people that turn out the better the chances of bringing back open archery to the area. If the board feels enough people are interested there will probably be one night each week when an hour or two will be set aside for shooting.

Champion Cards

other 48 points.

All three were chosen to the coaches' All-Conference squad.

And chipping in invaluable efforts were Dean Schmelzer with 241 yards and a 6.3 average and Chris DeZonna with 225 yards and a 6 yard average. Will Heinemann, Dow Woodard and Steve Stratton also threw in another 80 yards.

THE LINE was just as talented. Three, Paul Tollefson, Jim Ulrich and Dan Selleck, were chosen to the league's honor squad. Ulrich was a unanimous choice.

The typically ferocious offensive charge and tenacious defense shown by the Cards all year was made by a team effort, though. Guards Karl Anderson, Bryce Knorr, Scott Simon and Jay Harris put Arlington at four deep at that position.

At center were big Al Lalond, who — though injured part of the year — might have made the all-conference squad if league rules had not limited Arlington to six nominations, and Doug Stueber, a more than adequate replacement for Lalond.

BEHIND ULRICH and Tollefson were junior tackles Jack Hult and Dick Trahan, while at ends came Selleck and Jim Baumgartner. Baumgartner led the squad in receptions with 27 for the season, good for 347 yards and four tallies.

Defensively other names of outstanding Cards crop up. Mike Hadley was certainly the best middle line backer in the league, while Selleck, Schmelzer, Knorr and Baumgartner all stood out at their defensive slots.

And Chris Buttenob, in only his first year out for football, took the fire out of opponents' passing attacks from his defensive safety position. He, too, might have made the all-conference squad under different league rules.

The team was saturated with outstanding players. Their attitude was outstanding; their talents were remarkable; their play was of a true championship caliber.

But trying to describe the 1968 Arlington varsity football team is like trying to buy a gift for the man who has everything. It can't be done.

Says Wheeling's Liljeberg

'Wish There Were More Games...'

by KEITH REINHARD

Only grudgingly are basketball and the other winter sports getting the go-ahead at Wheeling High School.

This is the consensus of the Wildcat football camp at any rate, as echoed by helmsman Jack Liljeberg.

Some squads may have felt the 1968 grid season lingered a little too long as it was, especially in the Mid-Suburban loop where expansion elongated the playing slate to nine games.

For Wheeling the current campaign ended all too abrubtly however.

"I REALLY don't think we ever hit our peak this season," the rookie head coach sighed. "We didn't start really jelling immediately this fall but since our last non-conference game the week-to-week improvement has been tremendous.

"I just wish we had a few more games to play," he added.

Unfortunately for Wheeling, but fortunately for any would-be additional foes, the season did come to a conclusion. It reflected a 6-3 overall mark for Liljeberg's crew and a second place finish at 6-1 in MSL play.

In Liljeberg's first year at the varsity helm, the 'Cats were easily able to post their third straight season of winning football.

IF SOMEONE were to draw a graph of the Wildcat campaign it would probably show a line dipping at first, then rising slightly, then easing downward again and finally rising sharply until it ran off the graph.

At no time this past season — including their three defeats — did the 'Cats need to be embarrassed by their performances. Two of the losses served upon the Wheeling eleven in fact, were dished up by groups that went on to undefeated seasons and rankings in polls of the state's best.

Liljeberg also pointed out that Wheeling's trio of losses, to Maine South at the beginning of the season and Arlington and St. Viator later on, were by a total span of just four touchdowns.

STILL, IT was not nearly the same Wildcat team which lost to the Hawks 13-7 in their lidlifter, that crunched Prospect 52-35 eight weeks later.

"It took us a while to get organized," Liljeberg recounted. "This is probably true with any team where the coaching staff is changed and we were expecting it. We were also expecting a winning ballclub and I'm pleased with the way things turned out."

If any individuals had to be cited as the cause for Liljeberg's pleasure, the nods would probably go to a pair of Wildcats who wound up their prep careers dramatically in that curtain closing win over Prospect. The two, by breaking practically every school record between them, stand to become legendary figures in Wheeling sports history.

IRONICALLY, their 1968 showings took widely separated paths after both had risen to all-conference acclaim as juniors last year. All the way down to their final high school outing however, Jack Bastable and Ron King waged one war in common — beating the enemy.

The two also staged a friendly duel over the two years for the right to bear the honor of all-time school total yardage champ. With Bastable going mostly overland and King going primarily to the airwaves, they traded the lead in this department all the way down to the wire before Bastable gained the nod by a scant 33 yards, 1487 to 1454.

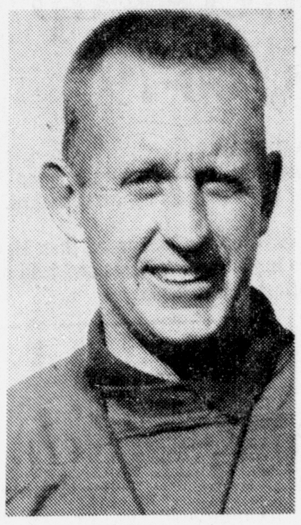
(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at high schools in the Paddock Publications circulation area.)

The reason for their contrasting senior years had several facets. Bastable, whose own graph in 1968 reads much like the teams, was never really able to shake off a shoulder injury until after the fifth game of the season.

UP UNTIL that time his contributions to the squad, both on offense and defense, were anything but sub-par by normal standards. But by Bastable's own standards they proved to be below average when the amazing back amassed 99 points in his last four games and the team went on a virtual rampage to sew up the number two league spot.

During those final games the devasting Bastable racked up single game school standards for most yards rushing (139), most total yardage (209), most points (27), tied other marks for most receptions (5), most TD passes caught (2) and most TD passes thrown (2), captured the league scoring title, the league rushing title, set MSL career marks for scoring and rushing and culminated his banner year by earning Chicago American Back of the Week laurels, all-conference approval and statewide recognition.

If Bastable had one low point in 1968 some might have rated it the day he gained a scant 42 yards rushing off Arlington the third game of the season.



JACK LILJEBERG

Strangely enough though, the Card line allowed only 174 yards in conference play all season, leaving just 132 yards more to divide up between perhaps 50 other backs who ran against the powerful league champs.

WHILE BASTABLE garnered his well-earned praise in '68, King turned out to somewhat of an unsung hero. Plagued early in the season by a rash of interceptions and then getting injured in the Arlington encounter did little to help his cause. Still, the husky quarterback rebounded as the season progressed and went on to better all of his own impressive passing feats of 1967.

One further obstacle could not be overcome however. The 1968 campaign turned out to be the year of the quarterback and the Wheeling signal caller found himself battling for the MSL limelight with half a dozen other exceptional throwers.

King was not able to earn an all-conference berth again. But his school records for most passes completed (11) and most passing yardage (167) in a single game and his career records for most completions (107) and passing yardage (1527) will probably endure longer anyway.

KING AND Bastable were the obvious contributors to Wheeling's successful season. But what about the other less-publicized members of the Wildcat cast?

Three of those members played well enough to join the MS Lall-star listings. All seniors, sturdy two-way tackle Greg Craighead, lanky offense end Jay Jobst and alert defensive end Nick Hardl did much to advance the 'Cat cause in '68 and their slots will be hard to fill in 1969.

"I would have liked to nominate a dozen more for the all-conference rolls," offered Liljeberg. He was only allowed to advance five names and all were picked, including junior lineman Bill Craighead who made honorable mention.

"OUR OFFENSIVE guards Mike Thomas and Joe Whittington both had fine seasons," Liljeberg went on to say, adding, "They really came around on their trap blocking during the last half of the year."

The coach also cited Jay Lesniak, who shared placement kicking duties with Bastable and teamed with Jobst to give the Wildcats as fine a pair of offensive ends as there was in the circuit.

"We had some other boys in the backfield worthy of recognition too," Liljeberg stated. "Glen Roth, Stew Oakley and Mark Janus didn't carry much this year but they did a heck of a job of blocking."

THE MENTOR pointed too, to Dave Hendren as well as Hardl for their work at defensive end. "They both did an excellent job of containing outside plays. None of the teams were able to get very far going wide on us this season."

Three others who netted praises from their coach were Darrell Berendt, Marty Crain and Rick Schachner. "During the last half of the season there wasn't a better middle guard around than Berendt, and Crain did a fine job for us both as a linebacker and an offensive end."

"Schachner was consistent for us all season at free safety. For his size, he's one of the best in the business," Liljeberg concluded.

WHERE DO the 'Cats go from here? Liljeberg will have only Dan Hull, Steve Klopf and Bill Craighead returning, but he forsees great years for all three. "Hull should develop into one of the best tailback or fullbacks in the league and Klopf is a real hard hitter who is bound to help us. Craighead should have little trouble equaling the fine fine job turned in by his older brother Greg this fall.

After that, it could be a lean year for Wheeling gridders. "Don't count us out yet," Liljeberg noted. "It looks to be a building year but we've got some talent if we can refine it. A lot depends on the schedule too."

In 1969, Wheeling will commence its sixth year of varsity football. The school has come along way since dropping eight of eight their inaugural year, concluding this past season with a 19-21-1 overall mark.

They won't allow Wheeling to bring that record up to .500 this year. It will be first on the agenda for Liljeberg and his assistants Dick Schnell and Bob Schulze in 1969 however.

Harper Falls

had helped to defeat Harper's linkster earlier this fall in golf and who fired a hole-in-one in the conference meet, found the basket hole plenty for the Spartans.

Playing at a forward position, the 6-3, 180 pounder rifled in 10 of 20 field goal tries and four of seven free throws to finish the night with 24 points, high man for both teams.

THE SPARTANS had two other men break into double figures — 6-5 center Ken Nord with 11 and reserve guard Bill Watrous with 12.

Along with the 21 by Bischoff (who had 10 of 15 from the field), were guard Jim Mellen with 17 and Willy with 14.

Elgin got the lead in the first half on a tip in by Doug Duval but Willy tied it up a few seconds later with a jumper. The two teams exchanged the lead for the first two minutes with the Spartans taking it for keeps with a field goal by Nord at 17:30, 9-8.

The Hawks kept close during the next six minutes and cut the lead down to one point, 18-17, on a jumper by Keehan with 11:12 left. Then they went cold for the next three minutes. During that time the Spartans built up a 28-17 lead behind some balanced scoring.

WITH 8:10 remaining Keehan again scored but the rest of the half the Hawks could not cut away Elgin's comfortable margin. Druding's 30-footer with just seconds left brought Harper to within eight at the half, 47-39.

For the first half Elgin fired 42 per cent from the field and 45 from the gift line, while Harper hit 35 and 38 per cent, respectively.

The Hawks had to do without the services of their fine center, Willy, for most of the second half because he was slapped with his fourth foul at the 15:30 mark. He left the contest for good with 11 minutes remaining.

Keeping the Hawks within 10 during this foul trouble period was Bischoff. He had five clutch goals with the last one bringing them within nine. Then Kereszturi joined Willy on the bench with 3:23 left as a result of three quick calls in just three minutes. With two regulars out the score read 79-70.

This must have fired up the Hawks as they cut the score to 83-78 on the ball-hawking of Druding, two by Bischoff, and Mellen. The latter Hawk pumped in three long range bombs to cut the lead to 81-76 before the free throw practice began for Elgin.

Archers Should Attend Meeting

Attention all archers!

Anyone interested in reviving target shooting at the Lions Park Field House should attend the Park District Board Meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 26, at 8 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Community Center.

The more people that turn out the better the chances of bringing back open archery to the area. If the board feels enough people are interested there will probably be one night each week when an hour or two will be set aside for shooting.

Point Average

LOS ANGELES UPI — Elgin Baylor averaged 34.8 points per game in regular National Basketball Association action in 1960-61 in the Lakers' first year here after moving from Minneapolis.

McClary Gets Air Medal

Army Spec. 4 Richard G. McClary, 20, son of William McClary, 106 W. Wayne Road, Wheeling, received the Air Medal near Dong Ba Thin, Viet-Nam.

Specialist McClary earned the award for combat aerial support of ground operations in Viet Nam.

In Luxembourg

An Inverness youth is among students of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, who are participating in the initial trimester of the university's European Study Center in Luxembourg.

He is J. Randall McWilliams of 894 Braeburn Road.

During their stay the students are living as paying guests with Luxembourg families, generally with families which speak the language the student wishes to study.

PTA To Hear Panel's Talk On Vandalism

"Respect and Responsibility" will be the topic of the Carl Sandburg PTA meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria.

A movie on vandalism and littering entitled "A Nation of Spoilers" will be shown and a panel discussion will follow.

PANEL MEMBERS will include Sgt. Tim Longergan of the Rolling Meadows police department, William Tremelling, Dist. 15 building and grounds director; Nancy Bachmann, a sixth grade special opportunities teacher and Lawrence Csajaghy, an eighth grade teacher.

They will discuss the film and existing problems of vandalism in Rolling Meadows.

Hanover Park Census Set

Hanover Park

Census takers will be knocking on doors in Hanover Park this week. The special census is being taken to increase the village's Motor Fuel Tax fund allotment.

Mayor Eugene Domingue said Thursday he speculates the new population figure will be between 10,000 and 12,000.

Order Two Squad Cars

Hanover Park

Two new squad cars for the Hanover Park police department will be ordered from Tom Edwards Chevrolet in Elmhurst. By trading in two cars, the village will pay $4,446.42 for the two new cars.

Trustee Ed VanCott, chairman of the public safety committee, said the department would prefer Plymouths, but the cost would be an additional $1,000.

ONE OF THE cars will be air-conditioned. Residents questioned why bucket seats were needed. VanCott said they contribute to the comfort of the officers and provide a place for a shotgun rack.

VanCott said the village plans to trade in squad cars every six months.

Name Crise, Gill To Study Team

School Board Trustee Jérimiah Crise of Arlington Heights will represent Dist. 21 schools along with Supt. Kenneth Gill at future meetings of the study advisory council investigating cooperation between the 10 school districts in four area townships.

Crise was chosen at Thursday's board meeting to attend with Gill the meetings of the council. The group will make suggestions to individual districts on how to implement the Jung Report on co-operation between the districts.

Miss Bewley Pledge

Lezli Ann Bewley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carney of 1446 S. Busse Road, Mount Prospect, has pledged Alpha Chi Omega sorority during formal rush at the University of Denver.

3rd Maintenance Man Crossed Off

Hanover Park

A third full-time maintenance man will not be hired by Hanover Park. A motion to hire one was defeated at Thursday's village board meeting.

Mayor Eugene Domingue cast the deciding "no" vote. Trustees Mario Adelizzi and William Hommowun also voted "no."

A motion to hire a man was made by Trustee Gordon Jensen. The village has a vacancy for a full-time man. It is being filled by a part-time worker now. Jensen's intent was to hire this man full-time.

Domingue said he should not be hired on a full-time basis until one of the maintenance men becomes a full time employe for the water department. That will take place when Well No. 4 is in service, probably at the end of this month.

PTA To Hear Panel's Talk On Vandalism

"Respect and Responsibility" will be the topic of the Carl Sandburg PTA meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria.

A movie on vandalism and littering entitled "A Nation of Spoilers" will be shown and a panel discussion will follow.

PANEL MEMBERS will include Sgt. Tim Longergan of the Rolling Meadows police department, William Tremelling, Dist. 15 building and grounds director; Nancy Bachmann, a sixth grade special opportunities teacher and Lawrence Csajaghy, an eighth grade teacher.

They will discuss the film and existing problems of vandalism in Rolling Meadows.

Hanover Park Census Set

Hanover Park

Census takers will be knocking on doors in Hanover Park this week. The special census is being taken to increase the village's Motor Fuel Tax fund allotment.

Mayor Eugene Domingue said Thursday he speculates the new population figure will be between 10,000 and 12,000.

Order Two Squad Cars

Hanover Park

Two new squad cars for the Hanover Park police department will be ordered from Tom Edwards Chevrolet in Elmhurst. By trading in two cars, the village will pay $4,446.42 for the two new cars.

Trustee Ed VanCott, chairman of the public safety committee, said the department would prefer Plymouths, but the cost would be an additional $1,-000.

ONE OF THE cars will be air-conditioned. Residents questioned why bucket seats were needed. VanCott said they contribute to the comfort of the officers and provide a place for a shotgun rack.

VanCott said the village plans to trade in squad cars every six months.

Hanover Park

A third full-time maintenance man will not be hired by Hanover Park. A motion to hire one was defeated at Thursday's village board meeting.

Mayor Eugene Domingue cast the deciding "no" vote. Trustees Mario Adelizzi and William Hommowun also voted "no."

A motion to hire a man was made by Trustee Gordon Jensen. The village has a vacancy for a full-time man. It is being filled by a part-time worker now. Jensen's intent was to hire this man full-time.

Domingue said he should not be hired on a full-time basis until one of the maintenance men becomes a full time employe for the water department. That will take place when Well No. 4 is in service, probably at the end of this month.
